WILSON GROUP OUT FOR CLEAR-CUT STAND ON LEADING CAMPAIGN ISSUES

Have Served Notice They Will Not Stand for Soft Treading on Important Questions.

HONESTY IN OFFICE A LEADING PLANK

Two Factions Lining Up Over World Court—Religious Freedom and Law Enforcement.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Loyal supporters of the late President Wilson have served notice on Democratic leaders here that they will not stand for any soft treading in the New York convention on important issues, including foreign relations, religious freedom and law enforcement. Conferences held by prominent members of Congress during the last few days have brought out the fact that pronounced differences as to the attitude of party men on vital questions exist and will have to be ironed out. The old Wilson group is out to put teeth in the platform, so that it will be impossible for honest opponents to charge that it is weak and evasive.

All agree that one of the first tasks, if not the very first, should be a declaration for absolute honesty in public office. That plank will be caustic and clear, and no one has shown any disposition to go lightly there. Republican leaders will be denounced for efforts to interfere with the Senate investigations that uncovered the Fall, Daugherty and other scandals of the Harding and Coolidge administrations. The Democrats intend to assert that they regret that from executive and judicial sources there were suggestions of interference and promise that such shameful crimes in office shall not occur under a Democratic President.

World Court Issue.

Two distinct factions are lining up for a fight over the world court plank, before the Committee on Platform and Resolutions at the New York convention. Friends of Senator Underwood are in favor of a very conservative declaration on foreign relations. They would side-step the Woodrow Wilson program for world peace. In this position they are supported by others who would curry favor with certain elements of voters who have indicated opposition to the League of Nations. But the Wilson followers are going to the Democratic convention prepared to demand a very strong, clear-cut declaration on this subject. Senators Glass and Swanson of Virginia are looked upon as the leaders of the Wilson policy forces. They would follow the Virginia Democratic platform.

This approves "The proposal of Presidents Harding and Coolidge, that the United States directly adhere to the Permanent International Court of Justice established under the auspices of the League of Nations." The Democrats would add: "The court proposal, essentially sound and greatly to be desired, is but a fragment of a policy which is incomplete and which ought to be frankly and courageously rounded out," and 'it would better exalt the dignity of the United States, as it would more surely confirm the good faith of our Government towards the nations with whom we were associated in the recent war. Should the United States discard the farce of 'unofficial observation' and become a member of the League of Nations upon terms entirely consistent with our sovereignty."

To Be Exacting.

Had Mr Wilson lived, it was asserted today, he would have asked for a foreign relations plank in accordance with his views and devoted supporters have made it known to party workers that they will be very exacting on this issue.

Among those who met here in informal conference this week were Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who will make the keynote speech at New York; Senator Robinson of Arkansas, leader of the minority in the Senate; Representative Garrett, leader of the minority in the House; Senator Stanley of Kentucky, Senator Glass of Virginia and others who expect to attend the Democratic convention.

Southern Democrats here today were sounded out on proposed Ku Klux Klan and prohibition planks.

OLDEST CONGRESSMAN, 89, PLANS UP-TO-DATE CAMPAIGN FOR RE-ELECTION

the Associated Press.

TOLEDO, O., June 14. CONGRESSMAN Isaac R. Sherwood, 89 years old, who filed petitions today for re-election to Congress, said that he intended to make an aggressive campaign. He has served nine terms in Congress and is the oldest member of that body.

"I will shake off some of my 90-year-old modesty and give the people of this district some up-to-date politics this time," said Sherwood, "and if any man says I am not 100 per cent American I shall challenge him on the spot."

LONDON HOG-TIED BY RODEO

Crowd of 90,000 Thrilled by Cow-Boys and Cowgirls.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 14.—a crowd of 90,000 in the great Empire Stadium at Dembley applauded today the opening of rodeo performances by American and Canadian cowboys and cowgirls.

An intense interest has been aroused in the public by these performances. The spectacle is acclaimed as eclipsing any athletic thrills known in London before. The most remarkable performance today was that of Bob Crosby, champion steer roper of the Southwest, who lassoed a big steer which had 20 yards' start, threw it and hog-tied it in 27 seconds. It seems probable the rodeo has come to stay as a London amusement if the crowds keep up today's proportions.

At the evening performance a steer's leg was broken. This brought many in the audience to their feet. They indulged in several minutes of booing and hissing and some women left the stadium. Officials of the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, whose earlier objections to the holding of the show were not heeded, are threatening to bring the matter before Parliament.

ONE OF 5 TAKEN IN RAID IDENTIFIED AS TRAIN ROBBER

Wounded Prisoner Member of Holdup Gang, Mail Clerks Say—Two Others Partly Identified.

ONE SAID TO HAVE MADE CONFESSION

Reported That J. H. Wayne Said He Was Shot by Robbers' Leader for Disobeying Orders.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—A quick solution of all details of the holdup Thursday night of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul mail train, a few miles from Chicago, by four automobile loads of robbers, who obtained money and bonds valued at upwards of $1,000,000, was predicted by the police tonight after two mail clerks had positively identified one prisoner as one of the train robbers.

J. H. Wayne, seriously wounded, and believed by the police to be the robber who was shot by a companion who mistook him for a mail clerk during the robbery, is the man identified. With three other men and a woman, Wayne was taken into custody in a spectacular raid on a flat as the result of a tip.

At first Wayne told the police he was shot while near Hammond, Ind., by a woman of the name of Miss Margaret Ray. Later he said a bootlegger shot him. Five bullet wounds were found in his body and doctors said he probably would die. The other suspects are Walter McComb and his wife, whose flat was raided. Paul Wade, who said he lived in Tulsa, Ok., and James Mahoney, found in the flat.

Description Fits 'Tommy' O'Connor

"We are making rapid progress in the case and expect to reach a solution before long," Mathew Zimmer, deputy superintendent of police, said in announcing the identification of Wayne.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Hoffman said that a description of one of the robbers tallies almost exactly with that of Tommy, "Lucky Tommy" O'Connor, Chicago murderer, who broke jail three years ago, five days before he was to have been hanged.

A new $1000 bill and a $500 bill were found in Wayne's clothing and a $1000 bill was found in Wade's pockets. Serial numbers of the bills do not correspond with those of any of the money thus far reported stolen, it was announced after a check.

May Have Escaped in Plane.

Wade was reported to have been an aviator and this fact led to a revival of the theory that the robbers escaped in an airplane seen near the scene of the holdup after the robbery.

The known loot was increased today to $447,000 in cash and bonds, but it was admitted that more than this amount is missing and unofficial sources placed the loss at between $1,000,000 and $3,000,000. Postal inspectors and Government agents were devoting a great part of their time to investigation of the theory that the robbery was the result of information given by a postal employe or Federal bank employe, this theory being due to the faultless precision with which the holdup was executed.

Trying to Locate Loot.

After two detectives left for the scene of the robbery late today, it was reported that a confession had been obtained from one of the suspects held and that the officers had gone to try to locate the place where the loot was buried.

It was also reported that Wayne had said later that he was shot by the bandit leader for disobeying orders. The police did not reveal which of the suspects had admitted participation in the holdup but said that two others besides Wayne had been partly identified by the mail clerks as participants in the holdup.

The police were attempting tonight to trace the records of the suspects about which little is known. McComb, the detectives said, had been under surveillance several times. The man who gave his name as Mahoney came to McComb's flat while the raid was in progress. Little is known of him.

Wade claimed to be an Oklahoma aviator and said he had come to Chicago to see some big league baseball. An attempt to

MAN HANDCUFFED TO WHEEL DRIVES AUTO 100 HOURS

Former Flyer Breaks His Record by 30 Minutes in Tour in and About New York City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Harold L. Lockwood, former Royal Flying Corps aviator, who started from the city hall last Tuesday handcuffed to the steering wheel of an automobile to beat his own record of 100 hours of driving in and about the city, flinished this afternoon at 5:33. When he pulled up, exhausted, he had driven 100 hours and 30 minutes.

A big crowd greeted him. He was assisted from the car and placed in an ambulance in which he was carried to a hotel. There he was bathed, placed in bed and given the attention of a physician and a nurse. Tonight Mrs. Lockwood, who accompanied him on the last 36 hours of his drive, said he was feeling good and rapidly recuperating. He had a slight hemorhage of the stomach this morning and his heart showed a little weakness, but he quickly recovered.

RADIO BEAM RAY MAY REPLACE HIGH-POWER STATIONS

Communication Sent From England to Argentine by Marconi Via Wireless-Telegraphic System.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, June 14.—The radio beam ray communication between Poldhu station in Cornwall, England, and Buenos Aires, was radio-telegraphic and not telephonic, as reported from London today, according to local officials of the Transradio International, which received the message.

The message was received, it was said, after a successful test which William Marconi, inventor of the wireless, had conducted for two days with the local station at Villa Elisa on a wave length of 94 meters. The officials state that the success attained on this first experiment over such a long distance means that high-power stations are no longer necessary for radio communication.

The message which came from Poldhu station was from Dr. Thomas Le Breton, Argentine Minister of Agriculture, who is visiting in England. It was addressed to War Minister Justo and read:

"Marconi, who unites Latin genius with the power of accomplishment, favors us by selecting Buenos Aires for his first experiment in absolutely direct communication. I take advantage of his generous offer to extend cordial greetings to the defenders of our national colors."

The receiving apparatus here which brought in the message from Dr. Le Breton is of special construction, having three lamps and small cylindrical antenna. The distance between the Marconi station at Poldhu and Buenos Aires is approximately 9500 kilometers (6333 miles).

"HELL" DROPPED FOR "HADES" BY LUTHERAN SYNOD

Action Does Not Imply Repudiation of Doctrine of Existence of the Former.

By the Associated Press.

DE KALB, Ill., June 14.—The word "hell" in the second article of the Apostle's Creed was dropped and the word "hades" substituted in its stead by the Lutheran Augustana Synod meeting here today in its sixty-fifth annual convention.

Hereafter 300,000 members of the Synod, after declaring that Christ was "crucified under Pontius Pilate," will confess, "He descended into hades."

It was made clear that action of the synod does not imply repudiation of the doctrine of the existence of hell, but relates only to the state of Christ following His crucifixion and death. The change in confession of faith was made during consideration of the revised liturgy of the church.

OPENS CLINIC TO CURE COLDS BY CHLORINE GAS TREATMENT

New York Medical School Finds Use of War Gas Perfectly Safe.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The New York post-graduate medical school and hospital announced today the opening of a clinic which will provide chlorine gas treatment for certain types of respiratory diseases. The Board of Health recently opened a chlorine clinic.

At the post-graduate the new treatment is expected to be of particular value in cases of head colds and other affections of the nose and throat.

An officer of the hospital said:

"Although chlorine was the first of the poisonous gases employed for war purposes, its use medically is perfectly safe for the reason that the patient becomes conscious of irritation long before the concentration of the gas is sufficient to cause damage to the tissues."

ZEITUN'S CLAIM TO MRS. DAVIES' ESTATE REJECTED

Jury in Clay County Circuit Court Upholds Former Will After 10 Minutes' Deliberation.

LONDONER PICTURED AS FORTUNE HUNTER

Husband and Two Daughters by Former Marriage Successful in Action Involving $365,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LIBERTY, Mo., June 14.—The claim of Harry Lelio Zeitun, London police court interpreter and adventurer, to the $365,000 estate of Mrs. Julia Woods Davies of Excelsior Springs, was rejected by a jury in the Clay County Circuit Court here today after 10 minutes' deliberation.

The jurors agreed by acclamation that Zeitun had wrongfully influenced Mrs. Davies to leave him her property and cut off her husband, George Westlain Davies of St. Louis, and two daughters, with nothing. Their verdict set aside the will she made in London in 1922 and substituted a former will in which Mrs. Davies divided her property among Davies and the girls.

Husband's Testimony.

The husband, who is an opera singer under the name of Giorgio Salvatore, took the stand this morning and related how "Captain" Zeitun had gone fortune Hunting with Mrs. Davies as the unsuspecting quarry.

"We met him in the lobby of the Hotel Excelsior in Rome," he testified. "He passed himself off as a poor, friendless old soldier of fortune. My wife was drawn to him, unaccountably, but I did not approve of the acquaintanceship. I wanted to know more of Zeitun's social connections.

"However, the man forced himself upon us. He asked for an introduction and when I refused he pushed into an elevator with us one day. 'And this is Mrs. Davies, is it?' he said. So they met.

Sent Back to America.

"A short time after that Mrs. Davies contrived to send me back to America with power of attorney to look after her property. I got suspicious after I reached the United States and hurried back to Europe. I learned that Zeitun had taken my wife to London. In London I was informed that she had gone back to America. I searched European cities for her and then learned that she was in her old home at Excelsio Springs."

A bundle of letters written by Zeitun to Mrs. Davies were introduced. They were all in affectionate vein, addressing Mrs. Davies as "My darling angel," and stating, "My heart is rich in love for you." He signed one letter, "Your husband, Nello," and another, "Your little Nello."

Evidence as to Drug Use.

The contestants introduced evidence to show that Mrs. Davies had been addicted to the use of drugs and was in a mental condition bordering on insanity for six years prior to her death.

Jesse W. Rubey of Kansas City, Mrs. Davies' second husband, testified that she had been periodically addicted to the use of drugs during the 19 years of their married life.

Miss Ruth Rubey and Mrs. James M. Kemper of Kansas City, daughters by former marriages, who with Davies contested the will, testified as to Mrs. Davies' peculiarities.

Zeitun Not in Court.

Mrs. Davies, first will had been probated and the estate was being administered when Zeitun turned up with the second and later will. He has never appeared in America, but engaged Kansas City attorneys to represent him at the trial. He is believed to be in Europe.

Mrs. Davies, who was the daughter of Dr. William S. Woods of Kansas City, was left the income of his $5,000,000 estate. It was to revert to Miss Rubey and Mrs. Kemper upon her death. The money at issue in the will contest was Mrs. Davies' accumulation from her income.

She died in 1922, a few months after making the will in London. Upon her return to America a court adjudged her of unsound mind and her property was placed in the hands of trustees.

Zeitun, after declaring himself as her heir, wrote articles for British newspapers describing how he won the love of "a $14,000,000 heiress" and incidentally her estate, by saving her life when she was ill in a hotel at Rome and deserted by her husband.

INTER-ALLIED CONFERENCE FAVORED

Believes U. S. Is Convinced of Necessity of Meeting—Aims to Re-establish Allied Unity.

WANTS GERMANY IN LEAGUE AT ONCE

"No Reason Why Society of Nations Should Not Start Peace Offensive"—Sees Dark Cloud in Orient.

By ALFRED MURRAY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, June 14.—"An inter-allied conference seems to me to be indispensable. I believe the United States, too, are convinced of the necessity." This announcement was made by Premier Herriot to the New York World and Post-Dispatch correspondent, who is about to give the first details of the policy which the new Governments intends to inaugurate immediately and which has only been outlined hitherto.

Determined to reject all methods likely to compel France to plow a lonely furrow into international politics, Herriot declared he takes office this evening with the set purpose of re-establishing inter-allied unity.

His efforts for international solidarity will go further. "I want to lay the foundations of a policy of Franco-German co-operation," he said. "Only by so doing and restoring international unity, can we avoid favoring the development of revolutionary forces in Germany.

Avoiding Renewed Offensive.

"We know, as well as others, the dangers from German nationalism and Pan-Germanism, but we believe if we pool guarantees and risks and pursue a common policy with the allies, the latter will aid us in preventing any spirit of revenge from leading Germany to renew the offensive.

"Isn't that better than allowing France to bear the burden of an indefinite occupation of the Ruhr?

"The Dawes report offers us the means of co-operation, for it implies, in the event of Germany failing to fulfill the conditions laid down, all the creditor Governments shall act together to compel her to respect engagements.

"So we must get busy right away with the experts' report and have it working without any more delay."

Herriot expressed the conviction that "The German debt must be internationalized and at the same time a solution must be found for inter-allied economic problems."

It was in this connection that he announced his intention to call an international conference, explaining, "These various questions obviously cannot be dealt with or settled by notes alone."

The admission of Germany to the League of Nations is another project figuring at the top of the new Premier's program and forming part of what he calls his "general peace offensive."

Stressing his ambitions in this respect, he opened his mind as follows:

"The international policy, of which the League of Nations is the center, must shake off the character of passivity and resignation and become active, positive—it must in fact, take the offensive.

"Why shouldn't just the generous ideas be pushed with as much ardor and impetuosity as doctrines of violence?

Support of the Masses.

"Peace cannot be founded solely on precautions, peace can not be made against or without peoples. The support of the masses is indispensable, but it is not obtainable by constraint.

"Germany therefore must be given an interest in the solution of

BOERS BELIEVED TO PLAN SOUTH AFRICAN SECESSION

London Realizes Possibility of Serious Trouble Are Indicated If Smuts Is Beaten in Election.

Copyright, 1924, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 14.—The secession of South Africa from the British Empire, with possibilities of serious trouble, will become an immediate political issue if events turn out as now indicated by reports concerning the general elections to be held in South Africa on Tuesday.

It seems likely that Gen. Smuts, who is supported by the whole English press, will be beaten by a coalition of Dutch Nationalists and Laborites. The hope of the Loyalists is that, if Smuts loses, the victorious Boers and labor leaders will quarrel before the secession movement gets under way.

SEVEN NATIONS IN BALLOON CONTEST

Seventeen Bags Will Take Off in International Race Today.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, June 14.—Seventeen balloons, representing seven nations, are being made ready for the take-off at 4:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the fourteenth renewal of the Gordon Bennett cup race for lighter-than-air balloons. Electrical storms—the bugbear of ballonists—threatened for a time, but tonight the weather had cleared somewhat and the latest report is that in all probability the race will be started according to schedule.

Balloon Belgica, piloted by Lieut. E. De Muyter, Belgium, will be the first to take off. The Goodyear, United States, W. G. Van Orman, pilot, will be the fourth to start; the Uncle Sam, United States, Capt. H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis, pilot, will be the tenth, and the United States, Maj. Peck, pilot, will be the next to the last balloon to rise.

St. Louis Pastor to be Honeywell's Aid in Race.

The Rev. W. C. Timmons, pastor of the First Congregational Church, is expected to qualify as a "sky pilot" in the international balloon race, in which, according to plans announced to his friends, he is to act as aide to Capt. H. E. Honeywell of St. Louis.

Honeywell attends the First Church, and recently, when the pastor told him that he expected to be in Europe at the time of the balloon race, Honeywell invited him to take part. The pastor thought it over and accepted the invitation.

HERRIOT FORMS CABINET; TAKES FOREIGN OFFICE

Nollet Is War Minister and Renoult, Chautemps and Clementel Are Among Holders of Portfolios.

AVOIDS FATEFUL 13 BY HAVING 14 AIDS

New Cabinet Will Appear Tuesday Afternoon Before Chamber of Deputies After Conference Monday

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 14.—The French Ministry, as presented by Premier Herriot to President Doumergue this evening, is as follows:

Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs—Edouard Herriot.

Minister of War—General Maurice Nollet.

Minister of Justice—Rene Renoult.

Minister of the Interior—Camille Chautemps.

Minister of Finance—Etienne Clementel.

Minister of the Navy—Jacques Dumesnil.

Minister of Commerce—M. Raynaldy.

Minister of Public Works—Victor Peytral.

Minister of Education—Francois Albert.

Minister of Labor and Health—Justin Godart.

Minister of the Colonies—Edouard Daladier.

Minister of Pensions—Edouard Bevier-Lapierre.

Minister of Agriculture—M. Queuille.

Minister of Liberated Regions—Victor Dalbiez.

Under Secretaries: Posts and Telegraphs—Pierre Robert; Merchant Marine— Leon Meyer; Aviation—Laurent Eynac; Technical Instruction—Vincent De Moro-Giafferi.

Avoids the Fateful Thirteen.

There are 14 ministers, instead of 13, as in the old Cabinet. Herriot, it is said, hesitated to increase the expense of government by enlarging the ministry, but wanted to get rid of the fateful 13 (which was present yesterday in the election of the thirteenth President of the republic on Friday the 13th.)

The new Cabinet will meet Monday morning and will appear before the Chamber Tuesday afternoon.

Gen. Nollet is head of the allied military control mission in Germany. Etienne Clementel recently has been president of the International Chamber of Commerce and was for formerly Minister of Commerce and Agriculture.

Renoult is a former Minister of the Interior, M. Dumesil is a young Deputy, and Camille Chautemps is also a member of the Chamber. Albert and Peytral are members of the Senate. Moro-Giafferi is a member of the bar and was the defender of Landruf, the "Bluebeard of Gambais," when Landruf was tried for murder.

The ministry comprises representatives of Herriot's own radical party and groups associated with it in the successful electoral campaign.

The only non-partisan member is Nollet, whose selection is rather puzzling to political critics, who remark that, while the policy of the new Cabinet is supposed to be one of conciliation toward Germany, the War Department will be in the hands of a man whom the Germans have defied as head of the inter-allied military control commission, and who knows more about the state of Germany's military establishment than any other and whose opinions on this subject lend little toward the mutual confidence necessary for real conciliation. Friends of Herriot say that Nollet was chosen for the purpose of making the Germans understand that, while the new Government was ready to come to a friendly agreement, it intends to see that in the new arrangement France will watch over her security.

Clementel and Renoult are the only members of the Cabinet with considerable governmental experience.

Energy and Audacity.

The others of the Ministry are "young blood," including Herriot himself, whose experience in the country's government is confined to a few months as Food Dictator in the war. The Premier, however, has behind him a record of 20 years' successful administration in Lyons, which passes for the best governed city in France. The combination is conceded on all sides to contain an immense amount of energy and a full measure of audacity.

The Premier has given repeated indications that his foreign policy will be that of the gloved hand, which will, first of all, be offered to Great Britain—as soon as the chamber has passed upon the ministerial declaration and accorded the Cabinet a vote of confidence. It is expected that after Herriot and the British Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald, have gone over the European situation, arrangements will be made for a full allied conference with reference to application of the Dawes plan; the allies then will meet the Germans an an endeavor to bring about a decisive and final agreement on reparations and prepare the way for the entry of the Germans into the League of Nations and an eventual act of mutual guarantees covering all Europe.

Clementel will have perhaps the most difficult task of the new Government in funding France's floating debt and finding money to continue the reconstruction of the devastated regions. He has the advantage of wide acquaintance with the bankers of the world through his connection with the International Chamber of Commerce, and has extended experience in economics and finance that equips him for the great task.

The new Government has a majority estimated all the way from 30 to 100 to rely on at the beginning, which is deemed rather narrow. The opposition, however, will, it is believed, give Herriot full opportunity to show what he intends to do before offering obstruction.

FRENCH PRESIDENT IS A PROTESTANT

By Radio to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News.

PARIS, June 14.—The eldest daughter of the Catholic Church, the country of St. Bartholomew's eve and the banishment of the Hueguenots, has elected a Protestant President. Gaston Doumergue, the new President of France, is a Calvinist (similar to a Presbyterian in America). This unprecedented event shows how complete has become the separation of church and state, how widespread the principle of tolerance, how small the influecne of religion in politics in France.

Millions of devout Catholics still exist here, it is true, particularly among the women of the small towns and villages, whose feelings undoubtedly will be hurt by Friday's events. But their influence upon politics is nil.

Four Catholic cures, members of Parliament, were among those who voted for M. Doumergue. These cures belonged to the bloc national and were enemies of Paul Painleve. Their colleagues some years ago blocked the election of Charles De Freycinet because he was a Protestant.

Ipso facto, the President of France is a canon of the church of St. John in Rome. At least he always has been so until the present. Speculation is rife as to whether the Pope will permit this honor to be conferred upon a Protestant. If not, this may bring a break between the Pope and the Quai d'Orsay—a break which has been brewing since the elections of May 11 and which is expected to take the form of the abolition of the French Embassy to the Vatican.

Commenting on the new chief executive, Mme. De Fraya, France's leading clairvoyant and the successor of Mme Thebes, predicts that his term of office will last only two years and that it will mark the climax of a highly troubled period in politics.

In contradiction of her predictions, however, other obscervers say that M. Doumergue's term should be long and quiet. Elected by votes of the right, acceptable to the conservatives as well as liberals, he stands a good chance of remaining in power, even if the political tide turns again in favor of the bloc national.

Highest Paid Republican Chief.

The salary of the French President is 1,800,000 francs a year (about $91,160 at present exchange rates) including the allowance for entertainment but excluding the travel allowance. He is the highest paid Republican chief in the world. Besides his stipend he gets the free use of four palaces and does not have to worry about furniture or servants.

It is a little known fact, but nevertheless a fact, that he can inhabit the chateau at Fontainebleu, where lived Napoleon and the ancient Kings. Usually, however, the President prefers the chateau at Rambouillet for his summer residence.

METHODIST BISHOP DOUBTS LEGALITY OF CONFERENCE

Meeting to Be Held at Chattanooga Will Have to Pass on Section of Church Law.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 14.—Whether the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, acted within their authority under the discipline of the church in calling a special session of the General Conference to be held at Chattanooga, July 2, to consider unification with the Methodist Episcopal Church, is a matter to be determined when the session convenes, it is indicated in a statement made public here tonight by Bishop Collins Denny of Richmond, Va., one of the five dissenting bishops.

Bishop Denny maintains that paragraphs 37 and 38 of the chapter of the discipling entitled, "Of the general conference," which have been in the discipline for 52 years and which authorize the Bishops to call a special conference, are illegal.

"These paragraphs," he said, "were not referred to the annual conferences, nor did they, according to the record, receive in the general conference the requisite two-thirds vote."

"Nor does any lapse of years," Bishop Denny continued, "make that constitutional which was not constitutionally adopted."

Bishop Denny quoted the Bishops as having stated in 1914 that while there had been "some variations in practice, inadvertent as we must believe, made without challenge, and without debate," no part of the chapter empowering the Bishops to call a special session of the conference should be legally open to alteration, amendment or change."

He then stated: "It has been said substantially that the Bishops are better qualified to construe the law of the church than all the lawyers in the country."

the reparations problem. We must associate her with us in our task.

"And that brings us to a question—and solve it—the admission of the German Reich to the League of Nations and the council. It is amazing it was not realized sooner what a great moral success Germany's admission to the league would be.

"The future policy of Germany depends much more than is thought upon the policy of the allies, particularly on that of France and Britain towards her. A modus vivendi between France and Germany is therefore desirable."

Herriot seemed pessimistic regarding events in the Far East, predicting that the United States decision concerning Japanese immigration "will have serious consequences to the whole world, with inevitable clashes due to the necessity for Japan finding room abroad for her surplus population."

He added, "Evidently Japan will make a peaceful invasion of Mongolia, China, Brazil, Peru and New Caledonia. But will that suffice? Probably Japan will then be obliged to be in a struggle for existence that will shake western civilization for biological laws are unconquerable."

BUTLER GIVES OUT PERSONNEL OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Selections Complete Working Organization of Republican National Committee.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, June 14.—William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican national committee, today announced the personnel of the executive committee of 21 members which completes the working organization of the national committee.

The six principal officers of the national committee are ex-officio members of the executive committee. They are: Chairman Butler, Massachusetts; Charles D. Hilles, vice chairman, New York; Ralph E. Williams, vice chairman, Oregon; Mrs. A. T. Hert, vice chairman, Kentucky; Roy O. West, secretary, Illinois, and William V. Hodges, treasurer, Colorado.

Other members of the committee are: Mrs. John Gordon Battelle, Ohio; William H. Crocker, California; Coleman Dupont, Delaware; Virgil L. Highland, West Virginia; Mrs. Jeanette Hyde, Utah; Joseph B. Keating, Indiana; Charles A. McLoud, Nebraska; David W. Mulvane, Kansas; Mrs. George Orvis, Vermont; Henry Roraback, Connecticut; Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, New York; Fred W. Upham, Illinois; Mrs. M. A. Warburton, Pennsylvania; Miss Bina M. West, Michigan; and Mrs. Byron B. Brooks, Wyoming.

Gore to Contest Nomination.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., June 14.—Former Senator T. P. Gore late today announced that he had decided to contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from Oklahoma, to succeed Senator R. L. Owen. Gore was in the Senate for 14 years but was defeated for the nomination by Scott Ferris in 1920. Reformation and reduction of freight rates, economy of government "until it hurts" and reduction of taxes are three planks of the platform that former Senator Gore has formulated as a basis for his candidacy. Mr. Gore is totally blind.

Silver Refinery Ruined by Fire.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, June 14.—Fire shortly before midnight ruined the silver refinery at the Baltimore Copper, Smelting and Rolling Co.'s plant, Canton. The building, a large and wide one-story structure, was used for the extraction of gold, silver and platinum from the ore imported and smelted at the plant. Hundreds of employes of the company living in the neighborhood joined workers on duty in fighting the fire.

None of those seen would discuss these subjects for quotation, but many of them indicated they were disposed to ignore the klan by name, but write a plank on religious freedom, such as Thomas Jefferson stood for. One Southern Senator declared that the Ku Klux Klan was not big enough to demand an antiklan plank in the Democratic platform, but he would emphatically declare that no sect, order or creed, which interferes with religious freedom, should be sanctioned by the Democratic party anywhere.

Southern delegates among the Congressmen here are in favor of more vigorous enforcement of the prohibition laws. They will oppose any declaration for a change in the Volstead act.

No platform planks have been framed by the Democratic members in conferences here, but all of the outstanding issues have been discussed. It was explained by some of these at the informal gatherings that they have reached no agreement on foreign relations and religious freedom.

APPEAL IS GRANTED IN GUCKENHEIMER CASE

Bail Is Furnished for All of the Defendants Who Had Been Sentenced to Prison.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, June 14.—An appeal was granted late today in the cases of the A. Guckenheimer & Brothers Co. and six individuals convicted of removing 90,000 gallons of bonded whisky from the company's plant on counterfeit permits. Earlier in the day sentences ranging from six months in jail to two years in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta had been imposed and new trials refused in United States District Court by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

Louis Fargas, vice president of the company, and Lewis Brown, a director of the concern, who were sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and fined $10,000 each, and the company, which was fined $10,000, were held under $15,000 bail each, while William J. Ferris, former Government prohibition agent, sentenced to serve two years in prison, was held under $5000 bail. For William Dickerman and E. C. Little, truckmen, each fined $2000 and sentenced to one year and one day at Atlanta, and George Beck, another truckman, who was sentenced to six months in jail, bonds were fixed at $10,000 each. All furnished bail and were released.

Joseph Tito, a truckman, convicted in the same case, was reported to be too ill to appear in court today and he will be sentenced later.

PARLIAMENT ADJOURNS AFTER KIDNAPING OF ITALIAN DEPUTY

No Official Information Regarding Fate of Socialist Member of Chamber.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, June 14.—Parliament adjourned indefinitely yesterday, after eighteen days of life, as a result of the supposed kidnaping of the Socialist Deputy Giacomo Matteotti Tuesday.

The deputy, it is said, was seized by five men as he was on his way to Parliament to make a speech against the Government. He has not been heard from since.

An unconfirmed report last evening was that his body has been found in Lake Cracciano, 18 miles from Rome. Police announce the arrest of three suspects, but withhold the names.

Premier Mussolini expressed great indignation at the crime and told the Chamber of Deputies before adjournment he would bring the guilty to justice no matter what their political status.

The disappearance of Matteotti, known as the "Millionaire Socialist" member of the Chamber of Deputies, today brought about the resignation of the Under-Secretary of State Finzi. He explained that he was resigning in order to defend himself "against the libelous accusations spread against him by the opposition in their allusions to him when they speak of the investigators of the Matteotti case."

SHUTTLE PLANE MAIL CONNECTION FOR ST. LOUIS

Assistant Postmaster General to Propose Supplementary Routes as Main-Line Feeders.

EXTENSION WOULD SERVE 2,000,000

Additional Cost Very Slight, Says Official, Who Will Suggest Change After Inspecting Equipment.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Comptroller General John R. McCarl is willing St. Louis shall receive direct benefit from the transcontinental air mail service which will start July 1, Assistant Postmaster General Paul Henderson said today.

Col. Henderson has changed his original plan for a detour from the direct but unprofitable route of Chicago, Iowa City and Omaha to a route including St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, which would open the air mail service to approximately 2,000,000 persons. He now plans to serve these people by "feeders," or "shuttle planes" operating from St. Louis to Chicago or Iowa City, and from Kansas City to Omaha. In this way, he said, the expense would be cut down considerably.

Before Aug. 1, Col. Henderson will inspect the proposed route from Omaha to St. Joseph and Kansas City. That completed he will fly from Kansas City to St. Louis, inspect the landing fields there, and then continue his flight to Iowa City and Chicago. He departed today for Chicago where he will remain until the transcontinental flyers have made their initial trip. Later he will inspect the lighting equipment from Chicago to Cleveland now being installed, and that between Cheyenne and Rock Springs, Wyo. He has already inspected the equipment from Chicago to Cheyenne.

Law Permits Changes.

Col. Henderson intended to ask Comptroller McCarl immediately for a ruling as to whether the air mail service appropriation of $2,750,000 could be used to put St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph on the transcontinental route. Because of pending legislation, however, he decided to wait until Congress had adjourned. Now he intends to wait until he has made his inspection of the Missouri routes.

The law under which the appropriation was made stated that the route should be from New York to San Francisco by way of Chicago and Omaha. It would seem that this would allow the Postmaster General discretionary powers on the intervening cities, butf since the defeat of Senator Lodge's bill to extend the air mail service to Boston, Col. Henderson is afraid that the Comptroller will rule that congressional enactment is necessary to give service to the Missouri cities. Senator Lodge's bill, which passed the Senate, but was killed in the House the closing day of the session, would have had the transcontinental terminal in Boston.

Col. Henderson said he would base his arguments to the Comptroller on the increased revenue the "shuttle plane" service would give.

To Serve 2,000,000.

"We are primarily interested," he said, "in extending this service to 2,000,000 more people, but we also want to do all we can for St. Louis to show our great appreciation of the interest the city has taken in flying. At the meet last year, the city turned out almost to a man. Never have I seen such enthusiasm."

"The shuttle planes," he continued, "will give St. Louis and Kansas City the same service they would receive by being on the regular route. The flying time from St. Louis to Chicago is about an hour and a half. The St. Louis shuttle planes would leave about two hours before the transcontinental planes were due in Chicago. To catch the eastbound plane scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 7:35 a. m., the shuttle plane would leave St. Louis about 4 a. m.; to catch the westbound transcontinental flyers, due in Chicago at 6:15 p. m., the St. Louis planes would leave at 4 p. m. If Iowa City were selected as the connection center the planes could leave St. Louis a few minutes later. Iowa City is a refueling base and only local mail will be handled by the flyers. The Kansas City service would work on the same basis."

Big Saving of Time.

St. Louis business men by this plan, Col. Henderson explained, would save about twenty hours on their letters to and from New York. This is considered important because of the saving of interest on money in transit. The schedule of the flyers has been arranged with this point in view.

The cost for this St. Louis service would be inconsiderable, Col. Henderson stated as both St. Louis and Kansas City have available landing fields. Col. Henderson also said, he had not decided which St. Louis field would be the best. One of these fields, he explained, would be lighted if the service were established. With the shuttle plane service he considered that the three-mile flashes would not be necessary.

"The actual running expenses for both St. Louis and Kansas City," Henderson explained, "would not be more than $50 a day." Only two pilots would be necessary. We will have 85 planes after July 1 and we could spare several for this purpose."

Col. Henderson said that plan had not progressed far enough to say how much the postal rates would be or whether the Chicago and Omaha hops would be considered zones.

Extensions Are Planned.

The service starting July 1 is merely an experiment, he explained. If this proves 85 per cent efficient, meaning that if the planes operated on schedule that percentage of the time, next year will see an extension of the air mail. In this case, St. Louis will surely be on the air mail map.

Two plans for extension are now being considered by the postal authorities. The first is the resumption of the Minneapolis-New Orleans service and second is a branch from Chicago to Los Angeles. A third which is still in the formative stage would run from Chicago to St. Paul, thence direct to the Pacific coast. The Minneapolis-New Orleans service would be for the intervening cities of Chicago, St. Louis and Memphis. The Los Angeles branch would serve Chicago, St. Louis, Fort Worth, Dallas and El Paso.

The St. Louis and Kansas City shuttle service should come first, Col. Henderson concluded, and that will be up to Comptroller McCarl. McCarl said today that he could not say, or give an opinion until he had a petition from the Post Office Department. He said his department could make a decision within two or three days after getting the data.

Makes Autos Go 40 Miles On a Gallon of Gasoline

Manufacturer of Amazing New Device Makes FREE PROOF OFFER

The Western Specialty Company of Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, announces the perfection of an amazing device which is enabling car owners all over the country to more than double their mileage from each gallon of gasoline used, and at the same time removes every particle of carbon from their motors. When the device is attached, automobiles have made over 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline, increased their power and pep tremendously and eliminated all spark plug difficulties.

This inexpensive little device is entirely automatic and self-regulating and can be easily attached by anyone in a few minutes without tapping or drilling.

The management of the company states that in order to introduce this startling new invention, they are willing to send a sample at their own risk to one car owner in each town who can show it to neighbors and handle the big volume of business which will be built up wherever it is shown.

Just send you name and address to the Western Specialty Co., 200 Lacotah Bldg., Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, and get their free sample offer.

NEW MOVE BY WOMAN WHO LASHED PROSECUTOR

Goes to Topeka to Lay Arson Case Before State Attorney-General.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., June 14.—Miss Lucy Mallory, who yesterday used a riding whip on Samuel J. Shively, County Attorney of Miami County, at Paola, at the same time accusing him of "double-crossing" her in the prosecution of an arson case, today went to Topeka, where, she announced, she will lay the matter before Attorney-General Griffith. Miss Mallory was placed under a peace bond of $1000 after the whipping.

While in Kansas City today she conferred with H. E. Markwell, Deputy Fire Marshal of Kansas, who investigated the destruction by fire of the opera house in Paola, owned by Miss Mallory. She charged the County Attorney with delaying the trial of A. Tiede, accused of arson in connection with the burning of the building.

The opera house, inherited by Miss Mallory, burned Oct. 27, 1921. It was just across the street from fire headquarters and Miss Mallory declared she carried only $10,000 insurance on the building because of that fact. When the building burned, Miss Mallory asserted, it was an $87,000 loss to her.

Tiede, who operated a garage and service station in the building, was charged with starting the fire and has already been tried twice on the charge. Both trials resulted in hung juries.

At the time of the fire Miss Mallory, who had apartments in the building and who was educated at Vassar College, had a girl friend from Vassar visiting her. They narrowly escaped.

DAWES' FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS CHEER HIM

Elaborate Plans for Reception at Train Miscarry, but General Seems Amused.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Brigadier-General Charles G. Dawes came back to Chicago today the Republican nominee for the vice presidency as quietly and unostentatiously as he left it a week ago, a private citizen, to go to Marietta, O., to mingle with old college chums.

Elaborate preparations had been made to receive him, but due to a misunderstanding Dawes left his train an hour before the well-wishers expected him. President Coolidge's running mate seemed amused and just as well satisfied.

He told reporters that he would have nothing to say, at least until officially notified of his nomination. Dawes was then driven to his office in the Central Trust Co. of Illinois. News of his coming preceded him here and by the time of his arrival the welcome-home demonstration was taking place. Here he was cheered by friends and bank employes and smiled broadly but saying nothing, went at once to his office, where he started to open mail and piles of congratulatory telegrams.

A short time afterward he went to the Dawes home in Evanston, where another impromptu reception of neighbors and friends awaited him. The suburb was bedecked with flags in his honor and citizens have been asked to keep them floating for at least a week. Dawes was accompanied here from Marietta by Mrs. Dawes and two former classmates.

(Copyright, 1924.)

LONDON, June 14.—Charles Welford Travis, 21, an American student, was arraigned yesterday charged with the murder of his 10-months-old baby, June 6. The case was put off a week after Dr. David Roxburgh, who had not attended the infant, blamed its illness on American ignorance.

Travis' lawyer had asked if the doctor attributed the child's illness to the mother.

"Yes, she is a very young American," was the reply.

"Why should she be all the more because she is an American" asked the Magistrate. "Are they a more ignorant race in America then?"

"Their ignorance is colossal in their confidence."

Earlier it was testified that the lady had complained of the child crying. The police say Travis put them he placed his hand over the baby's mouth to hush it and when he took his hand away the child had ceased breathing. Next morning he put the body in a bag, took it to Birmingham and left it in a cloakroom.

GARDNER ENTERS RACE MINUS HOME STATE'S SUPPORT

Missouri Delegation, Which He Is Mentioned as Pledged to Back McAdoo, for Nomination.

RURAL NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN FOR

Editorials With His Biography and Record Interwoven Gain Wide Circulation.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

It is seldom a candidate for nomination for the presidency has a favorite son candidate in his own State, but there will be one in Missouri at the Democratic national convention in New York next week. Former Gov. Gardner is the man.

Gardner is going to the convention seeking the nomination, but with the Missouri delegation for which he is a member, supporting another candidate. In fact, Gardner himself is committed to support the candidacy of William G. McAdoo.

Since the Democratic State convention in Springfield two months ago there has been waged through the rural newspapers of Missouri a persistent campaign for Gardner. On the eve of the convention, face the former Governor has nothing to do with it, but the manner in which it has been conducted has indicated very clearly that there was an organized movement with sufficient financial support behind it to make it extensive over the State.

Gardner Propaganda.

There have appeared in a large number of rural newspapers biographies of Gardner cleverly interwoven with the record of his administration as Governor, each containing an argument that "Gardner is the type of man needed in Washington."

One of the more recent publications of the kind was in the Moberly City News, of which Mrs. Anne Nolen Christian, also a delegate to the national convention, is editor. It recites that Gardner came to St. Louis at the age of 16 and obtained a job as office boy in a coffin company. He paid his brother $50 to teach bookkeeping to him, and after two years borrowed money enough to buy a small stock in the company, of which he later became the owner.

"Gardner says that all the security he had to offer was the stock and his life insurance policy," it stated in this article. "But the banker said the best security he offered by Gardner was his reputation for honesty and hard work. Boys, this is something for you to think about if you expect to climb the ladder of success. Yes, this ladder Frederick D. Gardner came up and on this ladder you may go up. Idleness and dishonesty will keep you down always."

Anticipated "Thrilling Moment."

Two days later the Rolla Herald, published by Charles L. Woods, appointee of Gardner when he was Governor, contained a first page editorial about Gardner. The editor said he "could image a thrill a moment in the convention" when Frank H. Farris, arising to present the Missouri vote, would dramatically call upon the delegates "from the east, from the west, from the north and from the south" to "rally around the banner of Governor Gardner of Missouri." The editor expressed conviction that the nomination would come and that Farris would be equal to the occasion.

Gardner's candidacy for the presidency has had rather an interrupted progress. It was first inaugurated in December at a meeting of the Democratic Press Association by Omar D. Gray of Stegeon and Rufus Jackson of Moberly. They said they were actuated by ever Gardner's protest, but it was noticeable at the same meeting that Gardner, instead of rejecting the proffered honor of Missouri's support, outlined his views on public questions in a speech which was accepted generally as the Gardner platform.

Reed Belittled Gardner Platform.

All went well with his candidacy until Senator Reed decided to seek the Missouri indorsement for the presidency. He caused the publication of an interview in which he savagely belittled the platform announced by Gardner.

Gardner then literally fled from the field of battle. Announcing he was not a candidate but would support McAdoo, he hastened to a winter resort in Florida, and remained there until the Reed-McAdoo fight in Missouri was ended. Reed, having been defeated, and McAdoo having failed to obtain sufficient support for an instructed delegation from Missouri, the Gardner organization awoke to the fact that the former Governor probably would have swept the State if he had remained in the race. So they decided to get him back in.

They were handicapped somewhat by his indorsement of McAdoo, but they came to the conclusion that they would make another try for the support of the Missouri delegates if the convention became deadlocked. In furtherance of that scheme they have been making the rural newspapers

Reed Belittled Gardner Platform.

All went well with his candidacy until Senator Reed decided to seek the Missouri indorsement for the presidency. He caused the publication of an interview in which he savagely belittled the platform announced by Gardner.

Gardner then literally fled from the field of battle. Announcing he was not a candidate but would support McAdoo, he hastened to a winter resort in Florida, and remained there until the Reed-McAdoo fight in Missouri was ended.

Reed, having been defeated, and McAdoo having failed to obtain sufficient support for an instructed delegation from Missouri, the Gardner organization awoke to the fact that the former Governor probably would have swept the State if he had remained in the race. So they decided to get him back in.

They were handicapped somewhat by his indorsement of McAdoo, but they came to the conclusion that they would make another try for the support of the Missouri delegates if the convention became deadlocked. In furtherance of that scheme they have been making the rural newspaper campaign. Gardner is for McAdoo but there is no record of objection by him to the organized campaign in his behalf.

FIVE-DAY WEEK, NO VACATION, FOR FORD'S OFFICE STAFF

If New Schedule Continues More Than 12 Weeks, Pay Will Be Cut Accordingly.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 14.—Office employes and executives of Ford Motor Co. will go without their customary two weeks vacation this year under an order that went into effect today. About 23,000 men and women are affected.

Beginning today, the Ford offices are to go on a five-day-a-week schedule.

For the next 12 weeks these Saturdays off for the office employes are to be in lieu of the summer vacation each has received in the past.

If the five-day week is continued after the end of 12 weeks, the pay of the employe is to be cut in proportion, they were notified.

Six weeks or so ago the factory employes were put on a five-day basis. They have never been given vacations.

Henry Ford's view, as expressed by some of the executives, is that if the factory can accomplish the required production in five days a week, it should not take longer than that for the office personnel to supervise production.

TO TEACH CITIZENS TO SHOOT

Senator Brookhart Will Instruct at Firearms School.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A citizens' firearms instruction school will be conducted by the War Department at Camp Perry, O., from Aug. 1 to Oct. 2 under the supervision of Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who is a firearms expert and crack shot.

The school is particularly designed for citizens who have had no experience with firearms. Particular provisions also have been made for police officers, who, the department feels, often are the victims of bandits, because of inexperience in the use of the pistol.

Senator Brookhart was a Lieutenant-Colonel during the war and retains this rank in the Officers' Reserve Corps. He was an instructor of musketry for the overseas forces. Any citizens over 16 years of age will be entitled to admittance to the school, and the only expense will be for transportation and food purchased at cost. The students will not be under military discipline and will be free to leave at any time.

W. VIRGINIA MINERS SUSPENDED

Union Names Ohio Man to Be Head of District.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 14.—The autonomy of district No. 17 of the United Mine Workers of America, which includes practically all of West Virginia, was suspended by the International Executive Board of the union here today, and Percy Tetlow of Ohio was named head of the district.

Union politics hereafter will be pursued vigorously in West Virginia and "differences of opinion among the former district officials, resulting in conditions menacing to the union, will be eliminated," it was announced at union headquarters.

Accident Verdict in Student's Death.

A Coroner's jury which conducted the inquest into the death of Glenn Gammon, 16 years old, high school student of Kinmundy, Ill., who was killed in an automobile accident of the Mascoutah highway near Belleville last Thursday, returned a verdict of accidental death. The body of the student was sent to his home at Kinmundy yesterday. Gammon and five other students of the Salem, Ill., high shool were on their way to St. Louis to attend a baseball game when the accident happened.

ROBBERS GET $1000 IN OFFICE HOLDUP

Exchange Shots With Employe of Company After Taking Money.

Five robbers got about $1000 in cash in the office of the Madison Packing Co., Twelfth and Greenwood streets, Madison, Ill., at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, after holding up three office employes, and escaped in an autmobile after exchanging shots with an employe of the company.

One of the robbers is reported to have fallen after a shotgun had been discharged at him at short range and was helped into an automobile by his companions.

John Frangoulis, 1918 Victor street, president of the company, was in the rear part of the plant, some distance from the office, at the time. He estimated the loss, which is covered by insurance. The exact amount taken cannot be determined until reports of collections by drivers can be checked.

A stenographer and two men were in the office when the automobile stopped in front and three men, each carrying a revolver and unmasked, entered. They forced the stenographer to open the safe and then locked her and one of the men in a washroom. The other man was forced to hold his hands up while the robbers took the cash and several small checks from the safe.

As the robbers ran out a butcher who had seen the holdup through a window, opened fire with a shot gun. He fired twice at a distance of about 40 feet. After the second shot one of the robbers fell. As the machine started away two of the robbers opened fire with revolvers, firing about six shots. A second machine about half a block away joined the first and both sped toward Venice.

The money was to have been used in paying weekly salaries of the 20 employes of the plant. Salaries are paid there about 4 p. m. on Saturday.

MINISTER TO PERSIA RESIGNS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President Coolidge has accepted the resignation of Joseph Paul Kornfeld as Minister to Persia. At the State Department officials stated that the resignation of the Ohio rabbi was wholly voluntary and his wished had been complied with.

The understanding here is that Rabbi Kornfeld upon returning to this country will assume charge of a large Jewish tabernacle in Toledo. At the time of his appointment he was pastor of a smaller tabernacle in Columbus.

NEGRO BURGLAR SEIZES GIRL

Child's Scream Causes Him to Flee From Home He Invaded.

A negro burglar in the home of Richard B. Jordan at 7008 Southwest avenue, early yesterday, invaded the bedroom of Jordan's 11-year-old daughter, Ruth, and seized the girl by the throat. The child screamed and the negro fled through the kitchen door which he had pried open to gain entrance.

The house had been ransacked, Jordan reported, and $2 in cash was missing.

Not Absent in 12 Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

UNIONVILLE, Mo. — Floyd Doyle, 17, who was graduted from the Unionville High School this spring, made the unusual record of not being absent nor tardy during the twelve years of his school life in Unionville. Floyd had the misfortune to break his shoulder during his senior year, but this did not affect his school record.

MISS LOCKWOOD WINS FIGHT FOR HER BABY

Judge Ossing Holds There Is No Evidence to Show She Is Unfit to Rear Son.

Six-months-old Thomas Lockwood was taken back to the house of his birth yesterday in the arms of his mother, there to remain, after experiences seldom encountered by babies.

It was Judge Ossing's decision, in the Court of Domestic Relations, which sent him home, but he is too young to realize the furore that has been made over him; perhaps he never will know.

Little Tom was born Dec. 19 at 4246 Delmar boulevard, the home of his then 17-year-old mother, Miss Fannie Lockwood, who was a telephone operator. Thomas Poepping Jr., former Municipal Opera chorus man, of 313 West Iron street, supposed father of the child, took him away in a covered basket, the night of Dec. 27.

"I'll place him in a home till we can be married," Poepping is said to have told the girl. But Poepping left the basket in the vestibule of St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, where the infant survived the wintry night and was found by a nun. Policemen took it to St. Ann's Foundling Asylum. Later, other policemen carried it to City Hospital, where an agent of the Board of Children's Guardians took charge of it.

Baby Was Adopted.

The board found a well-to-do childless couple, who assumed the baby's care and lavished on it the money and affection they would have given their own child, and even told friends it was their own.

But Miss Lockwood traced her baby and sought to get it back by habeas corpus proceeding. Last month the cooing child, oblivious of its surroundings, was taken to court as "exhibit A." Miss Lockwood could not swear that it was her son, but maternal instinct made her feel sure it was.

The Board of Children's Guardians opposed the contention that the foundling Miss Lockwood claimed was hers, until Poepping testified about the abandonment. Yesterday, little Tom was in court again, in the care of an agent of the board. Judge Ossing looked up at the little group of principals and lawyers and said: "Come up here, Fannie Lockwood."

The girl went to the bench. The Judge told her he had decided to give her back her child, unconditionally. All smiles, she seized the baby in her arms, while her mother wept. Then she and her parents shook hands with the Judge and left for home.

Explains His Decision.

The Judge's decision was explained in a memorandum in which he declared identity of the foundling as Miss Lockwood's baby had been established conclusively by the evidence, leaving only the question of her fitness to rear it. It is the law that an illegitimate child belongs to its mother, who does not forfeit her right by allowing temporary custody to another.

Save for Poepping's unsupported assertion about something Miss Lockwood told him, which she denied in court, there was not a scintilla of evidence to show that she was morally unfit to have her son, the Judge said, holding that her relations with Poepping constituted a single transgression, and not moral depravity. The Judge pointed out that when Miss Lockwood consented to the infant's removal she was distressed, nervous and under a physician's care. Poepping faces Miss Lockwood's paternity charge in St. Louis County.

DUNN LOSES SUIT AGAINST OIL DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

Former Pawnbroker Sought to Recover $40,000 He Invested in Stock of Concern.

A jury in Circuit Judge Taylor's court yesterday returned a verdict in favor of the Oil Development company, a Texas corporation, in the suit of Thomas Dunn, a former pawnbroker, to recover $10,000 he invested in shares of stock of that company. Dunn made the purchase July 3, 1919, from Edward W. Uhri, and it was alleged that the latter was agent for defendant.

Dunn contended that the transaction was illegal because the company did not have a permit under the blue sky law to sell stock in Missouri. The defense replied that the shares he obtained were the individual property of Uhri, who was not its agent. Judge Taylor instructed the jury that if it believed from the evidence the stock was Uhri's the verdict should be for the defendant. Dunn's counsel gave notice of a motion for a new trial.

Uhri and his father, William C. Uhri, were originally included as defendants, but the case was dismissed as to them before it was given to the jury. It appeared that Dunn became dissatisfied with his investment and offered to surrender the stock on the return of his money, but the offer was rejected.

Gen. Pershing Sails for France.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Gen. John J. Pershing today sailed for France with a committee of which he is chairman, commissioned by Congress to study plans for memorials to Americans killed in the war. Gen. Pershing declined to discuss politics other than to express satisfaction with the Republican platform declaration in favor of a merchant marine.

WOMAN INVENTS AUTO THEFT ALARM

Mrs. Sadie L. Mathews Announces Device, Declared to Be Thief-Proof.

At last, the thief-proof automobile alarm. And invented by a woman, who for six years has forsaken social pleasures for a self-installed laboratory in her home which has been the scene of her preoccupation for that period.

It is the Mathews automobile theft alarm, upon which two patents have been granted at Washington, with others pending, and which has recently engaged the attention of the department of electrical engineering at Washington University, where the mechanism was analyzed and the device officially approved.

The inventor is Mrs. Sadie L. Mathews, wife of William T. Mathews, real estate dealer and banker, who resides at 4228 West Pine boulevard. With the completion of the tests at Washington University and having further refined her models to her own satisfaction, Mrs. Mathews yesterday made public the fruition of her experiments, and announced the device was open for sale to automobile and accessory manufacturers.

The Inventor in Her Laboratory.

"I have always been interested in mechanics," Mrs. Mathews related to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch in the "laboratory"—a converted second-floor bedroom, in which the models were displayed on tables, surrounded by racks on which appeared to be innumerable drills, wrenches, dies, pliers, wiring, tubes, wheels and whatnot. "I have never had any shop experience, but I can comprehend the principles of mechanical engineering.

"My interest, however, has been centered in electricity, particularly, circuit wiring. I have been an intensive reader of books on electricity. Six years ago I began to experiment with a few dry cells and a bell, and eventually rigged up an alarm, which operated in principle about the same as the final, patented model which sounds a vibrating horn. What I sought to find, and eventually did, was a mechanism, which would automatically sound the alarm, if the circuit was broken at any point."

Claims for the Device.

The operation, and attendant protection against theft, is better explained in the report of H. G. Hake, associate professor of electrical engineering at Washington University. The alarm, as he analyzed it, provides protection in four ways: when locked, it breaks the ignition circuit, thus making it impossible to start the engine without tampering with the electrical circuits of the car; it will cause the alarm to be sounded if any attempt is made to tow away the car; similarly, if any attempt is made to move the spare tire; and also if there is any attempt to tamper with the storage battery.

Continuing Prof. Hake's report reads: "In the third and fourth cases, mentioned above, the alarm begins to sound immediately under the conditions described, and it will continue to sound until the alarm circuit is broken by unlocking the device by means of the key furnished with the lock. Re-establishing the circuit conditions, existing prior to the tampering, will not silence the alrm. In the second mentioned case (if an attempt is made to tow the car away), the alarm will sound after the car has been moved a distance of 50 feet or so, depending on the adjustments. The alarm will then continue to sound as long as the car remains in that position, or moves in the original direction, but when the alarm first begins to sound it may be silenced by moving the car a short distance in the reverse direction, not to exceed 60 feet. The purpose of this arrangement is to make possible a reasonable movement of the car when it is parked."

In Small Box on Dial Board.

The device itself is housed in a metal box, three by three and a half inches square, set in the dial board, the same as the ignition lock or the speedometer dial. From it run three coil tubes about one-half inch in diameter—one to the battery to draw current, another to the transmission shaft (or the speedometer), and the third about the spare tire (or any other part desired to be especially protected). Turning of a key in the lock "sets" the device by driving a pinion against the transmission and connecting the circuit with the battery.

With the key in the owner's pocket and the device thus "set," the claim is made that the car and its protected parts are proof against the machinations of the car or accessory thief; not to mention persons of less serious intent, such as practical jokers, chauffeurs who borrow their owners' cars without permission, etc.

The car, as stated, may be moved, either forward or backward, its limit of 50 to 60 feet, but then there is set up a continuous, raucous blowing of the horn, which can be heard for blocks, and which can be silenced only by turning the original key in the lock—or demolishing the battery or device. And the lock can't be picked.

Alarm for Money Satchels.

Of course, the principle of property protection described can be extended, and Mrs. Mathews has also devised an alarm installed in a suit case, suitable for the transporting of money by bank messengers. In this case the coil tubing would be wrapped and padlocked about the body of the messenger, the device in the money-carrying case locked, to be unlocked by a duplicate key at the point of destination. A bandit might assault the messenger and cut the tubing, but it would be pretty difficult to escape with the booty and its protective, shrieking alarm.

Agents of insurance companies, writing automobile theft insurance, have inspected the device, as have representatives of automobile and accessory manufacturers. Besides the time, Mrs. Mathews has invested several thousand dollars in perfecting the models and in fighting in the courts, to a successful conclusion, one case of infringement.

The inventor admits that she is fatigued by the long series of experiments, and is hopeful of disposing of the patents at an early date. She is middle-aged, without children, and confesses a fondness for the lighter things of life, which she has denied herself the past six years.

BOY ON WHEEL IS HURT AS TRUCK AHEAD OF HIM STOPS

Three-Year-Old Girl's Leg Is Broken When She Is Run Down by Auto.

Otis Easter, 16 years old, of 922 South Newstead avenue, was seriously injured in an unusual automobile accident on the Kingshighway viaduct, at 7 o'clock last night. Easter was riding north on a bicycle behind an automobile truck, when the truck stopped abruptly and Easter rode head-on into the rear of the truck. He fell to the ground and when the truck started, a rear wheel passed over Easter's right hand.

The truck driver, William Stoops, 3329 Michigan avenue, was arrested on a felonious wounding charge and released on bond. Easter was taken to Barnes Hospital, his arm badly lacerated with several fractures in the hand.

Mary Prestangelo, 3 years old, of 5343 Wilson avenue, ran into the street in front of her home to recover a ball, at 4 p. m. yesterday and was run down by the automobile of Frank Manie, 6953 Fyler avenue. Her left leg was fractured. The driver was charged with felonious wounding.

350 EXCUSES FOR GANGSTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BRAZIL, Ind., June 14.—Nearly 350 reasons are advanced for granting a new trial to Arthur Smith, alias Ed. Barber, of St. Louis, in a motion filed in the Clay County Circuit Court yesterday. Smith, a confessed member of the Cuckoo gang of St. Louis, is under death sentence for the murder of Detective Steve Kendall, Terre Haute, during an oil station robbery there Jan. 23.

The motion alleges that William Silvers, a State's witness and fellow prisoner of Barbers, was induced to testify falsely by promises from a Terre Haute attorney that his own sentence would be reduced. Affidavits from St. Louis physicians are also attached to support the defense's contention that Barber is a drug addict and of unsound mind.

Washington U. Summer School.

Classes in the summer school of Washington University will begin Tuesday morning. The school term will be six weeks. Registration yesterday passed the 250 mark, and more than 500 are expected to be enrolled by the time classes begin. Dr. F. W. Shipley is director.

Woman Forced to Assist In the Capture of Fugitive

Man Wanted Here for Counterfeiting War Stamps Traced to Honduras Through Letter—Will Be Returned.

George A. Moore, arrested here Oct. 25, 1921, on a charge of counterfeiting Government War Savings stamps in a house at 5961 Enright avenue and who failed to appear for trial when his case was called in the local Federal Court two years ago, has been arrested in Sula, San Pedro, Honduras, and will shortly be returned to St. Louis. Thereby hangs a tale.

The infatuation of the fugitive for a wealthy Southern woman resulted in his capture. Moore had known the woman prior to his brief activities here. When he jumped his bond he paid her a visit on his way to the Mexican border.

Letters to Woman Intercepted.

Moore told the woman where he intended to hide out and also that after he left the confines of the United States he would not write to her and then departed. On his way south the fugitive wrote several letters to the woman. Two were intercepted by United States Secret Service men.

After a futile effort to trace Moore by other means, the Secret Service agents went to the woman and showed her the letters, advising her that unless she told where Moore could be found they would deliberately cause her embarrassment by having the letters published and linking her name with that of the fugitive.

The woman gave the information sought and the agents then had little difficulty in finding their man. Moore has been held in Honduras for nearly a month, but because of a revolt in that country arrangements for his extradition could not be completed, but now the order of extradition has been made.

May Be Returned by Airplane.

Detective Sergt. Joyce will make the trip from St. Louis to Honduras to bring Moore back. John Kelly and John Keegan, who signed Moore's bond for $10,000 will pay the expenses of the trip. They said they are trying to arrange for his transportation by airplane, because it would take nearly a month to get him here by rail and steamer.

Moore's companions in the counterfeiting plot were tried here and sentenced. Frank E. Brookes, who was given 7 years in the penitentiary, is at Leavenworth serving his sentence. Charles E. Wheelock, upon whom a similar sentence was imposed, jumped his supersedeas bond of $10,000 after appealing, and is now a fugitive.

FARMER-LABOR PARTY IS COMPLETING ITS PROGRAM

Leader Announces Everything Will Be in Readiness for Convention Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 14.—The program for the National Farmer-Labor-Progressive Convention, or "Third Party" gathering, will be completed Monday, William Mahoney, St. Paul labor leader, and chairman of the arrangements committee, announced tonight. The convention, which will begin here Tuesday, is expected to place a third party ticket in the field for the fall elections. Credentials for approximately 700 delegates have been received, according to Mahoney.

Although Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin has repudiated the convention to be held here, Mahoney said resolutions probably would be adopted instructing the executive committee to indorse La Follette if he is chosen to run for the presidency by the conference for progressive political action to be held in Cleveland July 4.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER

Unidentified Man Found in Mississippi by Watchman.

The body of an unidentified man, which appeared to have been in the water about 10 days, was found in the Mississippi River yesterday at the foot of Rutger street by watchmen on a steamboat. The man was about 58 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, and 165 pounds in weight. His hair was gray and he was partly bald. There was a scar on his right hip. Some of the teeth of the lower jaw were missing. He was clothed in a brown shirt and trousers, black socks and black lace shoes. The body was taken to the morgue.

$60,000 HANGS ON DEFINITION OF WORD

Suit Filed to Decide What Mrs. McChesney's Use of Word "Heirs" Means.

Who are the legal residuary heirs of Mrs. Blanche McChesney?

That is the question to be solved in a suit to construe her will that was filed by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as executor. Mrs. McChesney, who died Feb. 21, 1923, made specific bequests totaling $75,000 and then provided that the remainder of her property, amounting to approximately $60,000, be divided "among the above heirs." It is this provision that has caused the executor to be in doubt who constitute the "above heirs."

Mrs. McChesney's half-brother, Herbert D. Little of Parkersburg, W. Va., and her cousins, Anna and Marie Chandler, each of whom was left $5000, contend that according to law the term heirs means them exclusively, as they are the only blood relatives of testatrix mentioned among the legatees. Consequently the whole of the residue should be divided among them, they claim.

Many Who Claim Share.

Counsel for other beneficiaries argued yesterday before Circuit Judge Frey, who took the will construction case under advisement, that the term heirs was not used by Mrs. McChesney in a technical sense, but as comprehending the persons and corporations named in the will as legatees. Therefore, it was stated, she intended that they should also participate in an equal division of the residue.

Among the latter are Sallie H. McCormick, to whom was specifically bequeathed $10,000; The First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Kingshighway, which Mrs. McChesney attended, $15,000; Harry M. McChesney and Ruth Little Palmer, $5000 each; St. Louis Children's Hospital and the Home of the Friendless, $10,000 each. In this same class might be added Miss Nance Brengle, Miss Frances Collins of 50 Portland place, Walter F. Cole and Mrs. N. A. McMillan, 23 Portland place, to whom were bequeathed various articles of jewelry but no money, and Elizabeth M. Bradford of Charleston, W. Va., who was cut off with $1 in the will.

In addition there is a controversy about a separate bequest of $5000 to Mrs. McMillan "to be used for the welfare of poor homeless children" of this city. Some of the beneficiaries attack this bequest as void, alleging that it is so indefinite as to be impossible of fulfillment, but Mrs. McMillan contends that the provision can be carried out. She asserts she should not only receive the money for the purposes expressed, but also an equal division of the residue for the benefit of the homeless children.

Most of the beneficiaries, including the Christian Science Church, were represented by counsel at the trial. Mrs. McChesney, who was the widow of H. M. McChesney, lived at 5522 Waterman avenue.

Boy Soda Buyers Rob Store.

After lingering over their sodas, two youths in a drug store at 1700 Tower Grove avenue, at noon yesterday, held up the proprietor, Morris Dunn, with one revolver and took $40 from the cash register. The one with the loot departed at once, but his companion stayed behind for 5 minutes bantering with two girl customers and the druggist, before taking his leave.

CLOUDBURST TAKES 12 LIVES; HEAVY LOSS TO PROPERTY

More Than Dozen Houses, Barns and Mills Are Demolished Near Johnson City, Tenn.

THOUSANDS OF ACRES DEVASTATED

Thrown From Horse by Water, Man Is Struck by Another Torrent at Neighbor's Home.

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., June 14.—Twelve known dead, four seriously injured, more than a dozen houses, barns and mills demolished, 20 miles of the Appalachian division of the Southern Railway made impassable, with sections washed away, and thousands of acres of farm land devastated, constituted the toll of a cloudburst in this section early today. It appeared to have its center near Hunter, Siam and Garden's Bluff, and on Little Stony Creek and Blue Springs Creek, where a house in which were two families, went to pieces, taking nine lives.

The dead are: Mrs. Cecil C. Lewis and five children of Stony Creek section; B. A. Smith, wife and son, of Stony Creek section; A. B. Irick of Fish Springs, 6-year-old daughter of N. G. Ellis of Stony Creek section, and an unidentified sawmill worker.

Livestock Washed Away.

Four dwellings, a storehouse and a mill, with considerable livestock, were washed away in the vicinity of Siam and four small houses at Fish Springs went with the tide.

The storm came without warning last night and early today. Its fury was described by Cecil Lewis and his sons, Walter and Charles, 7 and 11 years old, who were brought to a hospital at Johnson City, suffering from bruises and cuts. The younger boy, with cheek cut open, remained in a tree top three hours, waiting for the waters to recede.

Lewis stated that he was thrown from his house when a wall of water he estimated to be 12 feet high and filled with rock, earth and trees, struck the house.

House Turned Completely Around.

After being washed down the valley a short distance, he reached the bank and made his way to a neighbor's house. As he entered the house, it was struck by the torrent, which turned the house completely around. Lewis was again thrown outside, but landed against a barbed wire fence and escaped. His two sons, Charles and Walter, escaped by catching the branches of a tree, almost submerged. The younger boy caught the tree and pulled his brother up, and there they remained until the waters receded.

All communication out of and east of Hunter, six miles from Elizabethton, and from Hampton, four miles to the south, was cut off with the destruction of telephone lines, washing out of railroads and demolishing of roadways.

COOLIDGE ORDERS PAY OF FIELD EMPLOYES RAISED

Executive Action, Effective July 1, Is Taken to Prevent Men Drifting Away From Jobs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—To prevent serious disruption of the Federal service by a general drifting away of employes to other jobs, President Coolidge today ordered effective July 1, the revised salary scales which Congress passed just before adjournment but which did not become law because the bill was not returned from the printer in time for the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House and President Coolidge to sign it.

As a consequence field employes of the Government numbering 480,000 were threatened with a loss of their pay adjustments provided in the field service reclassification bill. The reclassification was carried out to compensate the employes for the loss of the $240 bonus and to equalize the pay for service in the field with that of employes in the District of Columbia. Budget Director Lord pointed out that the amount involved averaged more than $240 an individual.

President Coolidge has requested an opinion from Attorney-General Stone as to whether he is not authorized to sign the bill within 10 days after the close of Congress. He has precedent from President Wilson who interpreted the Constitution as allowing the executive 10 days for the consideration of any measure, regardless of adjournment of Congress before that period elapsed.

Director Lord and Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee met President Coolidge today and the three worked out a method by which the

MISSOURIANS PLAN TO MAKE BOONE'S HOME A SHRINE

This house, which Daniel Boone and son built in the Femme Osage district of St. Charles County about 1800, still stands. A group of citizens has taken it over to preserve for posterity. At the right is a copy of an old painting of Boone, the pioneer, dressed in buckskin for his favorite occupation, hunting.

Homestead in St. Charles County Purchased by Group of Citizens, and State and Nation May Be Urged to Aid Movement.

"Mid the hills of old Missouri, at the gateway of the West," stands the solid old stone dwelling and death place of Daniel Boone, who helped make Missouri history. A group of St. Charles and Wentzville citizens has purchased the homestead and hopes to receive cooperation in making of it a State and national shrine.

Construction of the house was begun in 1800, historians believe. If the place had no historical significance it would still be an object lesson in painstaking workmanship. It required at least two years to build, for the plaster was buried over winter to "ripen."

It stands on a verdant hillside in the valley of Femme Osage Creek, in the southwestern part of St. Charles County and near the Missouri River, but even today fast in a rural stronghold. Its walls of blue limestone are two to three feet thick. Its floors, joists, doors, mantelpieces, window-frames—all the wooden fitting—are of walnut, in excellent preservation.

High Skill in Carving.

Thick beams above the cellar show marks of the adze. Walnut pegs projecting through the wide floor boards indicate how lack of nails to hold partitions was disregarded. Careful, detailed carving on the mantelpiece in each of the seven rooms betrays a high skill with tools on the part of men best acquainted with the rifle. In the attic where some of the smooth, white plaster has disappeared—a former occupant tore it down because he heard it was good for sick cattle—pine laths nearly as symmetrical as the machine-made product can be seen.

It is a roomy dwelling and warm in winter, cool in summer. It measures 28x46 feet and has four rooms upstairs and three down, with wide halls. A wealthy man of 1924 might use it for a country home as well as a pioneer of 1800.

Boone's Judgment Tree.

Just west of the house is a shed, the rock foundation of which is said to have been used for the log cabin in which Boone lived while the stone dwelling was going up. In the farmyard is a pile of logs, formerly used in a pigsty, which are pointed out as originally the logs of that cabin. On the western edge of the yard is the spring which attracted Boone to the location, and, hard by, the great spreading elm known as Daniel Boone's Judgment Tree, beneath which he sat in summer as a magistrate, and administered justice.

Eight miles north runs Boone's Lick Trail, the old road to a salt lick found by Boone near the site of Boonville. It is marked by a granite stone. Several miles farther north is Wentzville, on the new concrete road on which some day automobile tourists will cross the State as quickly as Boone rode a horse through the forests to the Spanish fort at St. Charles.

For years Mrs. Murray E. Forristell, founder of the D. A. R. chapter at Wentzville, has sought to have the Boone homestead made a shrine. She is a great grandniece of the pioneer. Henry Bollman, the German farmer who occupies the place with his wife and son, long refused to sell the house without his whole farm. Finally, March 17, Mrs. Forristell's husband obtained an option on the house, including the judgment tree and spring and 2.87 acres, for $11,500.

State Aid May Be Sought.

Other means failing, R. M. Thompson, editor of the St. Charles Banner-News, obtained approval of the Chamber of Commerce of that town of a campaign to underwrite a $4000 cash payment needed until ville agreed to guarantee the $4000 and Bollmann took a deed of trust for the $7500 balance. Deed to the homestead was issued to Thompson as trustee and the Bollmanns will stay there a year or more to look after the place.

Now the task confronting Mrs. Forristell and the others is to get interested citizens and organizations to make gifts to reimburse the underwriters for the $4000 and then to get the balance needed. The State Legislature may be asked to buy the place for Missouri, or Congress may be appealed to.

What is the attitude of the Bollmanns, hard-working farmer folk, about living in this historic spot? "Ach," said Mrs. Bollmann, "so many people come to see that it takes time to show them through and my dinner burns; I have to charge them for it." Bollmann chuckles about his deal. He bought the 200-acre farm 20 years ago for $5100; he sold the house and yard for $11,500, and still has the farm, some of which is quite valuable.

Born in Quaker Colony.

Who was Daniel Boone, that a fuss should be made over his relics? Many persons seem to think of him as a hunter and explorer without realizing his full place in Missouri and American history. He was born in a Pennsylvania Quaker colony Aug. 22, 1734, according to a church record, the grandson of an immigrant from England. When he was a boy his family moved to North Carolina. "He was a hunter born and loved the solitude of the forest," says one historian, and he was "the match of any Indian in the sagacity with which he detected the footsteps of the red men."

He married Rebecca Bryan in 1755, and in 1769 forsook his family to penetrate the fastness of Kentucky. "Lord Dunmore's war" against Indians took him back to Virginia as a Captain, and after that he was sent to Kentucky a Colonel, to take charge of bounty lands given the soldiers. Lord Dunmore was the last British Governor of Virginia. He built a fort, Boonesborough, on the Kentucky River, and had numerous thrilling fights with Indians, once being captured and adopted into a Shawnee tribe. In 1791 he moved with his family to the Great Kanawha region (now West Virginia), disgusted with Kentucky, which disputed his land title.

Given Land in Missouri.

A son, Daniel M. Boone, went to Missouri and returned with tales of its wild attractions, so the pioneer spirit again seized Boone in 1795 and he journeyed to St. Louis. Here the Spanish Lieutenant-Governor gave him the freedom of the town, paraded the garrison in his honor and made him commandant of the Femme Osage district, with a grant of 1000 arpents of land. This district comprised "everything north of the Missouri River and indefinitely westward." Its name, French, came from a legend of an Osage squaw who was drowned in the creek.

Boone chose land on the Missouri's bank which now has been washed away by the current. Later he was given 10,000 arpents more for bringing settlers to the region, but when the country passed to Napoleon and then to the United States his title became invalid. He petitioned Congress for aid and was given back 850 acres, which he sold to pay debts of honor.

Meanwhile, he and a son, Nathan, and the families took up residence together in the log cabin on Nathan's land, where the stone house

His decision was final in civil and criminal cases for the whole countryside, except where land titles were involved, but he was never called on to condemn a murderer. Whippings were a favorite punishment for thieves and others.

Built Boone's Fort.

Much guerilla warfare with Indians was going on all those years. The pioneer built "Boone's Fort" in Darst's Bottom, for protection. In 1803, it is recorded, Lewis and Clark, the explorers, stopped to consult Boone about conditions in the west country.

Boone's wife died in 1813 while visiting relatives near what is now Marthasville, Warren County. She was buried there and Boone went to live near her grave. He marked his own grave beside hers and made a walnut coffin for himself, which he kept under his bed and lay in occasionally "to see how it fit." He permitted a stranger to be buried in this and had another box of cherry wood made for himself. He visited Nathan Boone at the old home in 1820, took fever and died there, in the northwest room, downstairs, of the stone house, "asleep with all the ghosts of history." He was buried beside his wife.

Missouri failed to look after the graves and Kentucky had the bodies, supposedly, of the two Boones taken to Frankfort, near Boonesborough, in 1845, but the belief still persists that another's grave was opened rather than Boone's, and that the dust of his body still rests near Marthasville, beneath a granite boulder erected by the D. A. R. in 1915.

PROPOSES TO REVIVE HORSE RACING HERE

J. A. Murphy, Promoter, to Launch Plan at Dinner—Cites Court Decision.

Horse racing enthusiasts of St. Louis are to be invited to a dinner to be given the evening of June 24, at Hotel Chase, at which the revival of racing here will be proposed.

Joseph A. Murphy, widely known turf official, who is actively connected with the new race track to be opened at Chicago July 3, is the promoter of the idea here. He will be a speaker at the dinner as well as other horsemen.

The state law against betting on horse races, which spelled the doom of the old race tracks in Missouri, has been so construed by the State Supreme Court as to afford a loophole through which the game can come back, according to Murphy.

Cites Decision of Court.

"In an opinion on an appeal from a decision by Circuit Judge McElhinney, at Clayton, against the operators of the old Maxwelton Park, the Supreme Court said: 'It is the recording or registration of a bet, and not the mere proposal to make a bet, that is denounced in the statute.'" Murphy explained to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

He pointed out that under his interpretation of the ruling, bookmakers may not establish recognized stands or offices for betting on the race track, but they may operate as individuals walking through the crowd. They are permitted under the statute, Murphy believes, to accept written memoranda of wagers from their patrons.

"Of course, no money can be put up and held for the purpose of paying bets," Murphy added. "And the betting must be by gentlemen's agreement. But I think that with these restrictions betting would be permissible."

Several Sites Considered.

He said that various civic and business organizations already had been approached. The plan is to form an association and issue bonds for $500,000, with free stock as bonus to the investors. The association then would purchase one of the numerous sites in and around St. Louis which are under consideration. Among them are the Lambert St. Louis Flying Field, the old Kinloch park, a site on Clayton road in the county, and a site within the city limits in North St. Louis.

"The Chamber of Commerce," said Murphy, "already is committed to an annual livestock show. I have told them that no stock show would be successful here without racing. The two should be run together."

Murphy has no connection with the organization which is planning a race track in East St. Louis.

VIEWS OF FREEDOM FOR PHILIPPINES

Some Declare American Flag Would Be Hauled Down for Another.

(Copyright, 1924.)

MANILA, May 12.—Newspapers here backing Quezon are coming out with editorial statements that passage of the Fairfield bill from the House Committee on Insular Affairs will not quiet the agitation for immediate independence. The Daily Bulletin, American, and supporter of the Wood administration, counters with a partial reversal of its former attitude toward the Fairfield bill, saying tht if passage of the bill will not quiet the agitation—which means, of course, that legislative non-co-operation will not cease—then there is no object to be gained in passing the bill and no reason for any further Philippine legislation.

In general, the situation is, some persons contend, that the stress laid by Quezon on the preamble of the present organic act of the islands, the Jones law of 1916, inaugurated here against the will of the American community, a period which is well described by the term commercial "tenantry—being quite as bad for the country as rear-by-year farm tenantry is for a farm. Instead of new capital flowing into enterprises, in general, the rule is withdrawn of business profits annually and placing them abroad, sending them home. Capital, therefore, does not increase, nor interest rates lower, nor opportunities for employment mount.

Future Uncertain.

This is because the congressional policy leaves the future uncertain. In taking care to make exploitation impossible, and apparently countenancing the many slanders cast upon the resident American community by propagandists, according to these persons, Congress actually provokes the worst sort of exploitation by going contrary to the will of Americans thoroughly disposed, if only given the opportunity, to cast in their lot with the fortunes of the Philippines and their people and make their permanent homes here. It is for this reason that they ask a permanent form of Federal Government, not being carpet-baggers except as their Government, functioning through Congress, makes them so.

It is even prohibited to school teachers to make investments of their savings, only one of the manifestations of an altruism that defeats itself. Such are some of the reasons given why the Fallfield bill's proposal of independence after 20 years is not widely indorsed here, the only pleasing feature of the bill being its pronouncement for absolute independence, from which it is inferred that the peace of America would not be put in jeopardy by arranging to protect the Islands or secure neutrality treaties in their behalf.

Ideas Quite Fixed.

But it is said that commercial tenantry would increase under the 20-year provision in inverse ratio to the approach of the time for hauling down the flag. Ideas as to what would then happen are quite fixed. Without remarking on the fitness of Filipinos for such a status, most men here have a certainty of conviction that they have no economic basis on which to maintain it, and within a very short time after Old Glory came down, another flag, likely enough that of Japan, would go up in its place. America's action thus making it possible to complete an iron rim of insular lands around the coast of awakening China. The Philippines are rich in forests and minerals that Japan lacks. It is said, however, that Quezon has the assurance from Japan that during 15 years after independence Japan will make no aggressive move against them, but will assist them with loans and endeavor to re-establish their overseas trade that is now to the extent of about 70 per cent with America, both imports and exports.

The Philippines Herald, a Quezon organ, gave much prominence to the proposal from Japan of a union of colored races, a sentiment uttered after the exclusion law was approved by the Senate. The same organ published a long argument to the effect that the independence of th islands will only come when America has been turned over to the communists. All radical elements appear to be amalgamated under Quezon.

Man Held on Perjury Charge.

A charge of perjury has been preferred against Othel Early of Greene County, Illinois, by his father-in-law, Grant McAdams, who alleges that Early committed perjury when he swore he was past 21 and McAdams' daughter, Velma, was 19, when he applied for a marriage license at Hardin last week. McAdams claims his daughter is only 16 and Early 19. Early has been bound over to the grand jury of Calhoun County.

RUSSIAN ADMIRAL IN PLEA FOR U. S. OFFICER

Capt. Watson Should Have Been Acquitted Instead of Convicted, Doudoroff Says.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A remarkable letter from Rear Admiral Doudoroff of the Russian navy, sympathizing with Capt. Edward H. Watson, U. S. N., who was convicted of negligence in connection with the loss of seven destroyers at Point Honda, Cal., last fall, was made public here today.

The Russian Admiral declares that instead of being punished Capt. aWtson should have been acquitted.

Admiral Doudoroff is a graduate of the naval college at Petrograd and commanded the flying forces of the Russian Baltic fleet before Russia's collapse during the World War.

The Russian Admiral speaks of his own experience as a naval officer and navigator. He states that before the Russo-Japanese war a severe punishment was expected by every officer of the Russian navy for every accident with his ship, adding, "as a result we have had plenty of good, careful Captains in timbe of peace, who proved themselves in most cases quite inefficient during the war."

"Luck Was Against Him."

Doudoroff then tells how the late Admiral Essen changed this system when he was assigned to command the Russian Baltic fleet. Admiral Essen told his officers that they must learn how to navigate the channels of the Finnish Archipelago without pilots, a thing considered next to impossible before, and promised to stand behind every officer who might get into trouble as the result of an accident. The result was that when the World War came on the officers of the Baltic fleet were able to navigate even the largest battleships through these waters and to stand off the much stronger German fleet.

Reverting to the American destroyer disaster, Doudoroff declared he did not know the actual conditions in which Capt. Watson's squadron was placed at the time of the crash. However, knowing Watson, he expresses confidence that "all that was in the reach of men had been done to prevent the accident," but that luck was against him. After expressing satisfaction that greater loss of ships and personnel was avoided, Admiral Doudoroff says:

Acquittal Urgently Needed.

"Now a courtmartial has to decide what is better to do, to save the triumph of the law of formal justice and to punish every officer who may be found guilty, however small his fault may be, thus breaking a cornerstone of the future brave of your navy, or to show to the whole personnel of the navy that the value of material loss, however great it may be, is nothing to the nation when compared with the spirit of its navy men, from whom much more than ships depends the victory, the real destruction of the enemy.

"You personally may be sorry for your ships, and especially for your men. You may desire punishment as a relief to your own conscience for the wrong (which I cannot qualify as such but as a misfortune) done, but above your personal feelings must be considered of what is good for your navy. And for the latter not your punishment but your complete acquittal is urgently needed.

"Excuse me for this unasked intervention in your personal affairs, but please believe me that it is prompted by sympathy with your case and feeling of real friendship and esteem, as well as the sincere desire for prosperity and glory of the American nation."

REPORT ON DELINQUENT GIRLS' HOME ASSAILED

Research Bureau Failed to State "Whole Truth," Says Head of Board.

The Board of Children's Guardians, through its president, [illegible] Bettman, has replied to criticism of the city's new farm home for delinquent girls of Hanley station road, St. Louis County, made by the Municipal Research Bureau with the assertion that the home was neither just nor economic in its complaints.

In an issue of "What Your Business," the bureau asserted the cost of the home was excessive when compared to the per capita cost of the Bellefontaine Home for delinquent boys; that the capacity would only be 40 girls, and that the operating cost would be $2 a day as compared to $1.62 for the Bellefontaine Institution. Also that there had been delay in completion of the home.

"Whole Truth Not Stated."

"The Bureau's figures seem wholly arbitrary, and the report untrue because the whole truth is not stated," Bettmann said. "In comparing the cost of construction of the home with the Bellefontaine Farms project, the business neglected to state that the project was built in 1918 and the other in 1924. Building costs have trebled in the interim.

"I do not see where the Bureau obtained 40 as the limit of capacity for the home. There are 87 girl wards of the board at present. I believe that all will be accommodated. The fact that does not represent the true per capita expense of the home, as expansion on the original foundation will be less costly while the increased accommodations will make a better per capita figure. Placing a fixed capacity is misleading as the quotas at the home will be moving quotas through the year. Girls will be restored to society and others take their place.

"As to the operating cost, comparison of the home with the Bellefontaine institution is quite unfair. Girls require different treatment from boys, greater privacy and care.

Delays Called Necessary.

"While it is true there have been delays in completing the project, they were necessary delays. In the meantime the farm has not been idle, producing $2000 worth of crops last year. Why didn't the bureau mention that?

"The whole matter has been thrashed out in the Board of Aldermen and all criticisms made by the bureau made by others long before. If the director of the bureau had come to me before preparing his figures I think I could have explained."

South Dakota Cuts Gasoline Tax

By the Associated Press.

WATERTOWN, S. D., June 14.—A reduction of ½ cent a gallon in its price of gasoline, effective next week, was announced today by the State Supply Department here. The present price is 8 cents. Unexpected demand on the State station out of supply yesterday. The State's policy, the manager said, is to handle gasoline at a 2-cent margin. The wholesale price of the cars now in transit has been slightly cut.

Objects Said to Be Nomination of McAdoo and Blocking of Plank Hostile to Invisible Empire.

EXULTANT OVER CLEVELAND SUCCESS

Checkup Indicates That of 1098 Delegates Fewer Than 100 Will Be Members of Hooded Order.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Exultant over its success in excluding an anti-Klan plank from the Republican platform, the Ku Klux Klan lobby is preparing to descend on New York next week and open headquarters preparatory to a drive in the Democratic convention.

This drive, the Post-Dispatch is informed, will have two main objects in view, one the nomination of William G. McAdoo, and the other the elimination from the platform of the plank suggested by the New York World or any other which might be construed as hostile to the invisible government. At least three such planks will be presented to the resolution committee.

Plan to Pack Committee.

According to word which has reached Washington from some of the Southern states, the plan is to pack the platform committee with klansmen from those states which have succeeded in electing members of the Secret Empire to the official delegations. While the hope is that klansmen may be secretly slipped on from many Southern and one or two Western states, the prospects are that the proposal will be successful only in those state delegations in which the klansmen actually hold a majority of the delegation.

A checkup today indicates that of the 1098 delegates, fewer than 100 will be members of the Invisible Empire. The Georgia delegation, numbering 28, is known to be controlled by the klan. Of the Texas delegation of 40, there is reason for believing that a majority are klansmen, although there are known to be at least 16 members who are opposed to the Evans organization.

Eight From Mississippi.

There are also reported to be about eight delegates from Mississippi who are members or in sympathy with the klan and five from Oklahoma. For the rest, there are scattering klan delegates from several other Southern states and probably a few from Oregon, Indiana and Ohio, the klan strongholds of the Middle West. The organization is so closely allied with the Republican party that it is doubtful if a single delegate from either of these states is actively aligned with the K. K. K.

Despite the overwhelming preponderance of the non-klan forces, it is becoming increasingly apparent that it may be no easy task to put over an anti-klan plank. Even Senators who have been avowedly opposed to secret political orders are beginning to hedge and trim on the subject and the same is true of many of those who will occupy important positions in the convention discussions.

The leading anti-klan leaders are looking to Gov. Smith of New York to save the situation. They say that he and Senator Underwood of Alabama, who is ready to go the limit in an open declaration of hostility, can force such a plank through, if Smith takes a positive enough stand. Recent utterances of Smith have led some of them to fear that he might compromise to a certain extent on the plank, in the belief that his own nomination would be a sufficient avowal of the convention's position.

The Alabama Plank.

After the New York World plank, the most drastic to be presented to the resolutions committee will be that by the Alabama delegation, drawn by Senator Underwood. Senator Underwood's proposal is that the convention adopt a resolution reaffirming the position the party took in regard to "know nothingism" in 1856, when the platform stated:

"Whereas an adverse political and religious test has been secretly organized by a party claiming to be exclusively American, it is proper that the American democracy should clearly define its relation thereto and declare its determined opposition to all secret political societies by whatever name they may be called.

"Resolved, That the foundation of this Union of States having been laid in and its prosperity built upon entire freedom in matters of religious concernment, no party can justly be deemed national, constitutional or in accordance with American principles which bases its exclusive organization upon religious opinions and accidental birthplace, and hence a political crusade against Catholic and foreign born is neither justified by the past history or the future prospects of the country, nor in unison with the spirit of religious liberty which manifests itself in the whole history of our institutions, and which consecrates the American system of popular government."

Senator Underwood has given his friends to understand that he considers the adoption of some such plank of more importance than his own nomination. The Platform Committee will also have before it a copy of the Virginia platform, which contains an anti-klan plank written by Senator Carter Glass. This is a declaration for religious freedom ending with the statement that "any sect or order or creed which assails or seek openly or covertly to impair this inalienable right of religious freedom is to be condemned and resisted as a menace to organized society.

STONE REPLACING DETECTIVES WITH LAW SCHOOL GRADUATES

Attorney-General Has Completed a Reorganization of Investigation Bureau.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Attorney-General Stone has completed a reorganization of the Bureau of Investigation which resulted in the ousting of the honorary agents, such as Edward B. McLean, the Washington newspaper publisher, who used the Department of Justice code in communications about the Senate oil inquiry from Palm Beach.

In addition, the Attorney-General has dropped a score or more of regular agents, some of whom had been with the bureau several years. Officers of the department denied today that any deliberate effort had been made to replace so-called Burns men, whom William J. Burns appointed from among detectives who had been with his private agency, with new faces.

It was announced that Attorney-General Stone has approved a plan begun before he took office of bringing in law school graduates to act as investigators for the department. About 20 already have been employed by the Bureau of Investigation.

The scheme, it was stated, is to drop detectives and replace them with investigators fresh from the law universities, eager for experience, equipped to investigate cases from a legal standpoint and prepared to turn their data over to District Attorneys in shape for presentation to the courts.

Graduates of Columbia, Harvard, Chicago, Michigan, California and other universities have been employed for this type of work, and the experiment, it was said, has been a distinct success.

FOUR MORE ALIENISTS TEST STUDENT SLAYERS

Leopold and Loeb Examined as Part of Plan to Prove Them Insane

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—More alienists appeared today at the county jail to examine Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons and confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks. Four alienists went to the jail today and spent several hours examining the youths as a part of the plan of the defense to prove them insane.

Leopold and Loeb were eating breakfast when the doctors appeared. The youths greeted the doctors warmly but seemed amused by the mysterious equipment which the doctors spread out in their cells.

While the defense is busy building up its case the State is preparing to batter it down and has indicated that its main contention will be that the youths were capable of knowing right from wrong at the time the slaying occurred.

MILTON NOBLES, ACTOR AND PLAYWRIGHT, DIES AT 80

For Two Years Past He Has Been Playing Frank Bacon's Role in "Lightnin'."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Milton Nobles, 80 years old, playwright and character actor, who for the last two years had been playing the late Frank Bacon's role in "Lightnin'," died at his home in Brooklyn today.

Nobles began his stage career in 1867, playing in the picturesque Western stock companies of that day. In 1875, he starred in his own dramatization of "Jim Bludsoe," in Wood's Museum, Philadelphia. He was the author of numerous melodramas, among them "The Phoenix," in which he played for 25 years.

The now famous line, "And the villain still pursued her" is said to have originated in this play. In addition to his engagements in the "legitimate," Nobles and his wife, Dollie, played for many years on the vaudeville circuits. Just last week, he appeared in a benefit revival of "She Stoops to Conquer," at the Empire Theater, a comedy in which he had played 52 years ago.

Negro Youth Drowned.

Harry Moore, 20 years old, a negro, of 407 North Commercial street, was drowned yesterday while in swimming in the Mississippi River at the foot of Wash street with two companions. The latter said the man went down when he attempted to swim in front of a log upon which he had been floating about 100 feet from the bank.

PRESIDENT HEARS OF DISCORD OVER BUTLER'S POLICY

Some of Coolidge's Close Friends Said to Be Dissatisfied With New Chairman's Methods.

Post-Dispatch Bureau 20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Dissatisfaction among disgruntled members of the old guard over William M. Butler's methods of running the Cleveland convention has proved contagious to other party leaders, among them being some of the President's close friends.

The Coolidge campaign organization has begun to squeak the day after it started operation. While the discord from the Senate regulars is explainable because they were pushed aside as a deliberate move by the Coolidge spokesmen at Cleveland, opposition to Chairman Butler among those nearer the President arises from grave doubts as to his political sagacity.

It was learned today that the dissatisfaction with the new chairman already has been imparted to President Coolidge, who is understood to have been worried by the estrangement of some of the party leaders by a too evident use of the steam roller at the convention.

Slemp Has Seen President.

The threat of friction between Chairman Butler and other Coolidge leaders—some of the President's cabinet members being placed in the disgruntled class—was a topic of general conversation today, after the Washington crowd returning from Cleveland had related all the convention stories. A report was circulated—which Secretary to the President Slemp could not be reached to authenticate or deny—that he had changed his intention to take a trip South from Cleveland and had hurried back to Washington to tell Mr. Coolidge of the danger of a wide open split before the campaign really opens. Slemp was closeted with the President for some time after his return.

In discussing the convention today an old Republican leader who has participated in many conventions said: "Chairman Butler made more mistakes in less time than any man in a political position with whom I ever had contact."

It is not believed likely that President Coolidge could remake his organization and give Butler another assignment. His more probable course will be to patch things up and hope that in the heat of the campaign the family misunderstandings will be forgotten.

Would Keep Coolidge in Capital.

Apprehension is felt among some of the Republican chiefs that the President may be coaxed from the White House this summer or fall. Opinion seems unanimous that he should remain in Washington, and that he speak in all cases with the greatest deliberation.

While a row is in the brewing over Chairman Butler, the negroes have found cause for complaint over the convention. The charge is being made that the "Jim Crow" policy was enforced at Cleveland and that for the first time at such a Republican gathering complete separate programs for the delegates of the two races were arranged. Negro newspapers in Washington are printing stories that in the Cleveland papers each day there appeared a list of events and entertainments for the delegates and another list "for Negro delegates."

FIVE SOVIET JUDGES FOUND GUILTY OF GRAFT EXECUTED

Former Court Officials Convicted of Bribery and Corruption Put to Death.

By the Associated Press.

LENINGRAD, June 14.—Five of 17 Judges and former court officials convicted of bribery and corruption in connection with the operation of the new economic policy, were executed today. The death sentences of the remaining 12 were commuted to various terms of imprisonment.

The bribery charges against the convicted men concerned the fraudulent granting of immunity to prisoners. Forty-eight persons were placed on trial. Besides those found guilty and sentenced to death, seven were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment, two to five years, eight to three years, while a number of others were ordered deported to Siberia. Three were acquitted.

ACCUSED OF OBTAINING LOANS BY POSING AS POLICEMAN

Edward Shaughnessy, Former Member of Force, Arrested on Complaint of Two Men.

Robert E. Lee, secretary of the Automobile Dealers' Association, and I. J. McNiece, of the McNiece-Hill Motor Co., 5127 Delmar boulevard, brought charges yesterday against Edward Shaughnessy, 30 years old, of the Laclede Hotel, a former policeman, because Shaughnessy recently borrowed $2 from each of them, telling them he was still on the force, they say, and would pay them when he received his wages.

Shaughnessy was arrested, and warrants charging obtaining money under false premises and impersonating an officer, were asked for by the police. They were refused, but a warrant charging embezzlement of $4 was issued.

Shaughnessy was discharged from the Police Department on Aug. 30, 1921, because of intoxication.

COOLIDGE ON MAYFLOWER TRIP

Mondell Among the Guests on Week-End Voyage.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—President and Mrs. Coolidge left Washington today for a trip down the Potomac River aboard the Mayflower, expecting to continue their voyage perhaps until Monday morning.

Although expecting to rest most of the time, Mr. Coolidge planned to take up some pending questions relating to the national campaign. Frank Mondell, permanent chairman of the Cleveland convention and a member of the committee which will formally notify the President of his nomination, was a guest with Mrs. Mondell. Secretary Work and Senator Smoot of Utah also are among the guests.

FIRST CLEW TO CAUSE OF NAVY TRAGEDY OFFERED

Survivor Says Air Pressure That Cleaned Great 14-Inch Gun Barrels Was Unusually Low.

FLEET-WIDE INQUIRY MAY BE UNDERTAKEN

Board Investigating Conditions That Led to Explosion Costing the Lives of 48 Sailors.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 14.—Lack of sufficient air pressure to clean out the great 14-inch gun barrels in turret No. 2 of the battleship Mississippi was the first evidential clew offered today to the board of inquiry investigating the cause of Thursday's disaster which cost 48 lives.

So low was the air pressure in the apparatus that blows out the rifle barrels and closes the breeches that the latter had to be shoved home by hand after the second salvo, according to testimony of Francis Majeswki, plug man, whose duty it was to close the breech. He was one of the three sailors who escaped uninjured from the turret that became the tomb of his mates.

Naval experts pointed out that lack of thorough cleansing of the gun barrels of fumes and gas after each discharge heightened the danger of ignition of powder left in the barrel or any fresh charge that might be rammed in.

The plug man's testimony, said naval officers, if substantiated, might result in a fleet-wide investigation of every big gun to determine whether a similar defect existed on other ships of the navy.

Comment Refused.

Members of the court of inquiry, however, refused to comment on the evidence, reserving their statements for their final reports.

"What was considered a partial solution of the premature firing of the left gun of No. 2 turret after the Mississippi had reached port Thursday afternoon, was contained in the testimony of Lieut. Gyle B. Conrad, one of the last witnesses to appear before today's session of the court of inquiry. He declared that the turret explosion and the resulting fire could have affected wires and mechanism in a manner that would have made possible the discharge of the left gun without firing the center gun, which also was loaded.

The investigation will be continued Monday and there is a general air of expectancy throughout the fleet, the prevailing belief being that the line of evidence offered by Majewski will be emphasized in the examination of other witnesses in an effort to fix definitely the cause of Thursday's explosion.

The man who is believed to know most about what occurred in the fatal moments within the ship's turret is lying aboard the hospital ship Relief, seriously burned. He is F. J. Rynes, chief turret captain, whose station was directly in front of the breech of the gun. Rynes was delirious today and is in a serious condition, but surgeons said they expect him to pull through.

Preparations are going forward for the funeral of the 48 victims of the disaster, which will be here Tuesday, next, with full naval honors.

The caskets containing the bodies will be grouped in the center of Trona Field, where in other days the navy athletes, some of them now among the 48, carried the colors of their different ships in victory in tests of skill and endurance.

Firing Squad of Marines.

In hollow square about the field the escort, composed of detachments from all the battle ships in port, will be drawn up with a firing squad of marines at the head of the pyramid of dead, to fire the last three volleys over the bodies of their comrades.

The funeral addresses will be delivered by Admirals Wiley and Pratt.

Information as to the condition of others injured by the explosion was contained in a bulletin issued to the Associated Press.

W. H. Ball, seaman, first class, whose condition is serious, slightly improved.

Joe Smits, quartermaster, third class, eyes better.

H. C. White, chief quartermaster, improved, less toxemia.

Clyde Bentley, seaman, first class less toxemia and recovery favored.

The remaining seven injured are decidedly better and no doubts are entertained as to a speedy recovery.

Wilbur Pays Tribute to Men Who Lost Lives in Explosion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14. — The Flag day exercises conducted at the Navy Department today were transformed in large part into a memorial for the officers and men who lost their lives in the turret of the battleship Mississippi.

In the course of his address Secretary of the Navy Wilbur said:

"The loss of the men on the [illegible] charge in the turret in which the explosion occurred was wholly unexpected. Our department and the officers charged with the safety of the men in the navy have taken warning from every previous disaster. They have studied other navies and the explosions and disasters in those navies with a view, if possible, to prevent such untoward disasters, but everyone who deals with high explosives and with the great power necessary to maintain and operate a big ship realizes that, at best, after all possible foresight and precaution is taken, there may come these terrible disasters, and we bow in sorrow that these men have passed on and to their parents and relatives that are suddenly bereaved.

"We reflect, however, that there are duties that must be performed; that the nation and the fleet must carry on as customarily. Other men must go into those turrets and encounter these hazards. We know there is this element of hazard and men take it in peace and in war courageously in performance of duties laid down for them."

Rehearing Sought in Murder Case.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—A motion for a rehearing of the cases of Charles G. Merrell and Hugh Pinkley of St. Louis, convicted murderers, whose death sentences were affirmed by the Supreme Court June 5, was filed in the court today by Lacey and Davis, attorneys, of St. Louis. July 18 was the date set by the court for the hanging of the two men.

Henry Ford carried number of delegates in Michigan primaries but Democratic State convention attached delegation to Ferris.
Unless otherwise indicated, a majority vote determines choice where unit rule applies.

Scott Was Not For Watson.

Robert T. Scott, a negro delegate from the Twelfth (St. Louis) District to the Republican national convention in Cleveland, who did not vote with the majority of the Missouri delegation for Gov. Hyde for the vice presidential nomination, said yesterday that his vote was cast for Dawes, and not for Senator Watson of Indiana, as had been reported. "I could not vote for any person from the hot bed of Ku Kluxism," he said.

'UP-FRONT' SEATS FIRST PROBLEM FOR DEMOCRATS

With at Least 20 "Favorite Sons," It Will Be Difficult to Give All Their States Choice Positions.

BOOM LEADERS AND CHIEFTAINS GATHER

Convention Organization Officials and Plain Democrats Drifting Into New York for Convention.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Signs of the near approach of the Democratic convention began to multiply today at national organization officials, subcommittee chieftains, boom leaders, delegates and just plain Democrats began drifting in to size up the pre-convention situation.

Cordell Hull, chairman of the party, held a series of conferences with G. Bruce Kremer, vice chairman, Normal E. Mack, national committeeman from New York, Scott Ferris of Oklahoma, Thomas B. Love of Texas, Isadore Dockweiler of California and Edward Quinn of Massachusetts.

Dockweiler began drafting plans for the seating of delegations, preliminary to a formal session next Monday of the subcommittee which will allot positions on the convention platform.

Workers for William G. McAdoo announced their candidate was en route from California and would arrive next Wednesday to take personal charge of his campaign.

Gov. Smith, already on the field of action, spent the first day as his own campaign director in making two out-door speeches, attending a flag-day dinner, reviewing a parade of Masons, and distributing toys to East Side children.

The National League of Young Democrats, which has opened headquarters, announced through Guy M. Woodward, president, that the league had been organized in Kansas, its eleventh state, and that it had leased an auditorium where convention proceedings at the Garden would be transmitted by a radio to a large overflow audience.

Speculation on Chairmanship.

Much of the pre-convention gossip centers on speculation as to who will be permanent chairman of the convention. The name of Senator Walsh of Montana is the most frequently mentioned. Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut, former national chairman of the party, who is spoken of as a candidate for the presidential nomination, is reported to be slated for chairmanship of the committee on resolutions. Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi already has been formally named keynote spokesman and temporary convention chairman.

Because of the abundance of candidates for the presidential nomination, and an additional number of dark horses, the subcommittee on delegation seating is confronted by a difficult problem.

Dockweiller pointed out that it was customary to give "up front" seats to the State delegations which favorite sons. It is also customary to give prominent positions to the largest delegations, such as New York, with 90 members, Pennsylvania with 76, Illinois with 58, Ohio with 48 and Texas, with 40.

14 States Have Candidates.

Fourteen States now have candidates in the race or almost in, and, according to Dockweiller, there will be at least eight dark horse entries when the nomination begins. Thus 20 of the 48 State delegations will be entitled to up-front places. Add to these the big State delegations that customarily get places easily distinguishable to the convention chairman, and it appears that few of the units are going to be satisfied with rear seats.

Dockweiller, reported as McAdoo's slated floor manager, today characterized as "silly and ridiculous" a statement in a letter the Anti-Saloon League of New York sent to delegates yesterday, that "the Smith - Tammany - Underwood-Wall Street crowd" would control the assignment of places to delegations.

"No delegation and faction will dictate the seating," said Dockweiler. "The subcommittee of the Democratic National Committee, whose members favor various candidates, will make the assignments in the usual manner, according to the justice of the claims of the delegations."

VOLCANO CHASES NATIVES

Inhabitants of Island Forced to Flee From Eruption.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, June 14.—The inhabitants of the Island of Babuyan, in the Babuyanes group, 30 miles north of the Island of Luzon, on which Manila is situated, have fled the island in a panic because of the continued activities of the volcano Babuyau Claro, according to advices brought by the Coast Guard vessel Pathfinder.

The volcano has been in a state of activity several weeks. A report reaching here May 31 said it was throwing out smoke and lava.

The inhabitants, the Pathfinder's officers said, had escaped from Babuyan on rafts constructed by an American lumberman named Sapp, who took the entire population of the place to Camiguin, southeast member of the Babuyanes group, and gave them employment in his sawmill.

FALSE TITLES SOLD BY GERMAN MARRIAGE CO.

Member of Firm Said to Have Wedded 11 Young Women in Less Than Year.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 14.—Titles of nobility to order was the chief stock in trade of Von Hohendorff, Von Hausler & Co., the principals of which were recently haled into a Berlin court. The company, in the words of the Judge before whom the principals were arraigned, was responsible for operating "the most successful wholesale factory for turning out aristocratic marriages ever undertaken by sharpers in Germany.

Alfred Von Hausler is accused of having married in less than a year 11 ambitious young women, all of whom it appeared were eager for a handle to their names and willing to pay liberally for the privilege. One of the victims was a moving picture actress who admitted a title would be worth a great deal to her in business, especially in America. These women paid from $1 to $3000 each.

By ingenious schemes and numerous forged and faked papers giving him fraudulent titles, Von Hausler satisfied their desires to become short-term princesses, but a day of reckoning was brought about by suspicious persons who engaged detectives and the company quickly went into bankruptcy.

The head of the concern was Frau Anna von Hohendorff, who, it was reported in court, collapsed and died suddenly when it became known the police were seeking her. It was Anna, according to the police, who conceived the scheme of making princesses to order and it was she who engineered the plots to get acquainted with young women. She paid Von Hausler a percentage on each marriage.

Von Hausler's trial was postponed pending further investigation. The police said he had several confederates who had not been arrested.

Furthermore, the police expect to find a half dozen or more women who have been victims of the marriage factory.

NEGRO, JUST RELEASED, IS HELD FOR THEFT

Man Walking Rapidly Is Arrested and $150 and Checks Found on Him.

A negro walking rapidly at Fifteenth and North Market streets attracted the attention of Patrolman Deters and Niemann standing there at 5 p. m. yesterday. They took him to North Market Street Station, searched him and found $150 in cash and $55.97 in checks. The money and checks were stolen, they learned a few minutes later, by a negro who entered the dry goods store of Harry Schnuck, 2317 North Fourteenth street, and rifled the cash register while Schnuck's sister, Frieda, was waiting on a customer.

The prisoner said he was George McCauley, 46 years old, released yesterday morning from the workhouse after serving a six months' term for larceny. He and the money were identified by the Schnucks.

ROBISON HEADS LIST FOR NAVY PROMOTION

Former Aid to Denby Is Recommended to Be Named Rear Admiral.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Jacob H. Robison, chief of the Bureau of Engineering, Navy Department, heads the list of six permanent Captains recommended for promotion to the rank of Rear Admiral by the selection board. President Coolidge today approved the report of the board.

Since his appointment as chief of the bureau of engineering in the fall of 1921, Robison has been a Rear Admiral by virtue of his official position. Unless the Senate turns down his nomination when it is sent in next December he will become a permanent Rear Admiral, despite the fact that his name figured very considerably in the Teapot Dome investigation conducted by the Walsh Committee of the Senate.

While Robison as a subordinate of former Secretary of the Navy Denby was not technically responsible for the direct change of policy in the handling of the naval oil reserves, the report submitted to the Senate by Senator Walsh points out that he entered upon his duties as chief of engineering "with a settled conviction that the policy which had been pursued was unwise and that the oil should be taken out of the ground as speedily as possible and stored in tanks at home."

This conviction on Robison's part is traced by Senator Walsh to conversations between the Admiral and Edward L. Doheny, who obtained the lease on Naval Reserve No. 1 in California, while the latter was visiting his son on board a battleship at Pensacola, Fla. Robison commanded the ship.

The list of 22 commanders recommended for promotion to the rank of Captain is headed by Frank R. McCrary, who was recommended as commandant of the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., and of the airship Shenandoah after the huge dirigible broke away from her mooring mast and spent the night out in a heavy gale last January.

Those to be promoted besides Robison ar A. L. Willard, aide to the secretary for the navy yards; H. H. Hough, director of naval intelligence; Harley H. Christy, commanding the battleship California; Noble E. Irwin, commanding the Canal Zone district, and T. J. Senn, commanding the battleship West Virginia.

Commanders to be promoted besides McCrary are: George F. Neal, Robert T. Menner, M. G. Cook, J. P. Jackson, Wallace Bertholf, W. H. Allen, John Downes, J. L. Hilenan, C. T. Hutchins Jr., J. B. Gay, W. W. Galbraith, J. V. Babcock, J. O. Richardson, H. A. Baldridge, G. J. Myers, Donald Bingham, R. M. Griswold, L. B. Porterfield and J. P. Lannon.

Civil War Veteran Ends Life at 83.
By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, Mo., June 14.—Columbus Sires, 83 years old, Civil War veteran and pioneer resident of Grundy County, today ended his life by slashing his throat in a shed on the premises of his daughter's home eight miles north of Trenton. Ill health and grief for his old comrades is believed to have prompted the act.

American Round-World Flyers to Follow the Shore Line to Calcutta

Short Cut Through Pass in Mountains of Malay Peninsula Saves 1000 Miles, Hottest Part of Flight to Come.

By LIEUT. R. J. BROWN Jr., Chairman of the World Flight Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The world flyers are temporarily delayed at Tourane, French Indo-China, while Lieut. Smith, commander of the expedition, installs a new engine in his airplane. It is significant of the completeness of the plans for this expedition, that each time a new engine has been needed by any of the flyers, it has been available within a few hundred miles.

The motor for Lieut. Smith was 500 miles away at Saigon, French Indo-China. He was forced down at Hue, a few miles north of Tourane, French Indo-China, on the shore of the China Sea. The engine was rushed to Lieut. Smith from Saigon on board a U. S. Naval destroyer. It should take about 24 hours to install it and the flyers should arrive at Saigon about the end of this week.

At Saigon, French Indo-China, the flight will be at its farthest southern point and at the nearest place to the equator on the whole route. At this place they will be within less than 2000 miles of Akyab, where the British flyer was forced down several weeks ago and is now preparing to continue his journey.

Saigon is known as the "Paris of the Orient." The aviators will be here in the hottest climate which they probably will encounter during the entire course. It is said of Saigon, "that it is hot as summer in winter and in summer it is as hot as hell."

1000 Miles Shorter.

The course through this division of the route follows the shore line of French Indo-China to Bangkok, Siam, cuts through a pass in the mountains near Mount Koni, 100 miles south of Bangkok, on the Malay peninsula, to the town of Tenesserim; then proceeds northwest to Rangoon, Burma; thence to Akyab and Calcutta. The route across this narrow point in the Malay peninsula will be followed, rather than proceeding around the peninsula, touching at Singapore, which would add 1000 miles to the flight.

Originally a much shorter route to Calcutta was planned overland, using wheels for landings and stopping at Hanoi, French Indo-China, and Mandalay, Burma, famous in song and story. Investigation of the route through this section showed that landing-fields were very scarce and the cost of making them prohibitive, so that pontoons are being used and the shore line followed, as outlined above, as far as Calcutta, India, where landing-wheels will be attached and pontoons removed. Furthemmore, the inland route across French Indo-China and Burma, lies over mountainous country, uninhabited, where forced landings would be disastrous. The coastal route now being followed, even with its crocodiles, swamps and barbarians, but with a chance of resuce by passing vessels in case of forced landings was preferable to the risk of landings in mountains and trackless jungle, uninhabited except by wild beasts and poisonous ingects, with its hopelessness of rescue in case of forced landings before succumbing to the terrors of the jungle.

Scared the Natives.

The route from Tourane, where the fliers were temporarily delayed this week on account of Lieut. Smith's engine trouble, to Calcutta, with mileage, is as follows:

Saigon, French Indo-China, 675 miles to Bangkok, Siam.

Bangkok, Siam, 450 miles to Rangoon, Burma.

Rangoon, Burma, 445 miles to Akyab, Burma.

Akyab, Burma, 490 miles to Calcutta, India.

Two British flights attempting the circumaviation of the globe have met disaster at Akyab. The present one, commanded by Maj. MacLaren of the Royal Air Force, is planning to continue the flight in a new airplane. In 1921 a British airplane attempting the world flight was forced down 40 miles at sea off Akyab.

The two fliers on the expedition floated about, clinging to the wreckage of their plane for several days. The superstitious natives, who inhabit the Malay peninsula in this vicinity, rowed out in small boats to within shouting distance, but did not dare approach nearer for fear of being devoured by what they thought to be the devils of the deep. The British pilots, officers of the Royal Air Force, were finally rescued by a passing vessel. It will be a relief to the American fliers to successfully negotiate this section of the route which lies through equatorial regions and along the stormy Bay of Bengal and avoid the "jinx of Akyab."

To Refit at Saigon.

At Saigon, the fliers will have an opportunity of spending a few hours in checking over their equipment and replacing worn parts, as this is one of the subsidiary depots for the expedition. With the arrival of the flight at this southern-most stop, it may be said that they have successfully dodged the typhoon season of the China Sea, although the rigors of the torrid heat and the monsoons of India are still to be contended with.

The next major depot for giving the planes a complete refitting and installing engines is at Calcutta, India, which marks the departure from the third division of the flight and the entrance into the fourth division. The advance officer of the third division, First Lieutenant Malcom S. Lawton, completed his survey of this section several days ago and is awaiting the flight at Calcutta, to lend every assistance and expedite the overhaul of the airplanes.

These advance officers not only made special arrangements at each of the scheduled stops along the route, but marked emergency areas between the main stops where the fliers could put in in case they were forced down, so that a survey was made of the entire route almost mile by mile, and the information gathered sent to the fliers in ample time so that they could use it while passing over the section to which the report referred.

Radiators Sent to England.

The radiators removed at Tokyo from the airplanes, in order to permit the installation of booster radiators with larger cooling surfaces to withstand the torrid heat, have been shipped through the United States to Brough, England, and will be placed back on the airplanes when the present radiators are removed in England, so that the same radiators will be used over the north Atlantic Ocean, as were used over the North Pacific ocean.

At various times during the flight, each of the airplanes has been delayed and forced to follow the balance of the expedition and in each case the pilot of the plane has demonstrated his ability to fly alone and successfully reach his destination. The first of these cases was at the very beginning of the flight, when three airplanes proceeded, leaving Lieut. Nelson in the "New Orleans" to make some final adjustments on his airplane and follow. Lieut. Nelson followed two days later, making a non-stop flight of nearly 800 miles and overtaking the flight at Seattle, the following day, where he arrived an hour after the other three airplanes.

Lieut. Wade, piloting the "Boston" was left at Seattle, the point of departure from the United States, with mechanical difficulties, on April 6th and followed the flight over an hour later, over the long 650-mile stretch to Prince Rupert, B. C., flying alone through snow and rain storm for the entire distance and arriving an hour after the other fliers.

2000 Miles in One Week.

Lieut. Smith was delayed at Kagoshima, the last stop in Japan last week, with pontoon trouble and waved the other two airplanes to proceed. He followed alone the next day and rejoined the flight at Shanghai. When Lieut. Smith was forced down this week at Hue, French Indo-China, he was then within ten or fifteen miles of the regular stopping place at Tourane, where the other fliers arrived and they will undoubtedly proceed together as soon as Smith's new engine is installed.

For the week ending June 7, the American fliers made over two thousand miles from Tokyo to Hong Kong, China. During the last week they had added one thousand miles to this distance. The delay at Haiphong, French Indo-China, was caused by two days of torrential rain.

Special significance is attached to the arrival of the flight at several stops during the last month. Reaching Japan on May 17th marked the crossing of the Pacific ocean by air for the first time in history. The arrival at Tokyo completed the circumnavigation of the globe, as other sections had been flown previously by flyers of various nations. Reaching Shanghai, China, marked the complete circuit of the earth by air by two nations, the United States and France.

Making Normal Progress.

A French flier had just completed the flight from Europe to Shanghai of nearly 12,000 miles, in 26 days of actual flying time. American naval fliers had flown across the Atlantic ocean in 1919, while the three army airplanes have just successfully linked the United States and Asia by a westward flight. The French and American flights passed each other on June 5th on the 129th meridian and were at that time about 200 miles apart.

Rangoon, Burma, is the antipodes of Washington, D. C., about 1440 miles from Saigon, French Indo-China. Reaching Rangoon, as they would within the next week, the flyers will be half way round the world from the capital of the United States. At Saigon, where the flyers should arrive today or tomorrow, 10,120 miles of the 25,000 miles will have been completed and three and one-half months of reasonable weather still remain to reach North America.

The balance of the distance to be covered to connect up with their starting point lies along the eastern coast of North American and across the United States, so that the flyers have completed one-half of their journey outside of their home continent in less than half the time allowed. We may, therefore, conclude that they are making normal progress.

EXPULSION OF BRITISH CHARGE FROM MEXICO EXPLAINED

Government Accuses Diplomat of Lack of Courtesy and Misrepresentations.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, June 14.—The Foreign Office this afternoon issued a strongly-worded statement giving the reasons for the expulsion from Mexico of Herbert C. Cummins, British Charge d'Affaires here. Its substance is that Cummins for years has been persona non grata with the Mexican Government, which accuses him openly of lack of respect and courtesy and even with wilfully incorrect statements to his Government in reporting local incidents.

According to the statement, the Mexican Government twice asked Great Britain to recall Cummins, the British Government on each occasion backing their man, until, finally, Mexico decided he must be expelled, claiming he is not a diplomat but a private person.

The statement concludes by saying that Mexico is eager to renew friendly relations with Great Britain, but must have acceptable representatives here who will observe diplomatic customs.

TWO MEN QUIZZED ABOUT EAST SIDE DOUBLE MURDER

Italians Held in Madison County Jail in Inquiry Into Killing of Alton Man and Woman.

AUTO SEIZED HERE AS CLEW IN CASE

Spots Found on Machine Are Believed by Sheriff Deimling to Be Blood-stains.

Two Italians were arrested in Alton yesterday, taken separately to Edwardsville, and questioned, separately, in the Madison County Jail, in the inquiry into the murder of Peter Aiello and Dorothy Klite of Alton, whose bodies were found by a roadside near the town limits of Edwardsville early Wednesday.

On the way into Edwardsville, Sheriff Deimling, accompanying one of the men, directed the chauffeur to drive slowly past the spot where the bodies were found. He reported afterward that the prisoner showed great uneasiness at that particular point, and averted his gaze from the north side of the road, where the murdered pair had lain.

Automobile Found.

A Nash automobile, belonging to two brothers, Italians, one of whom lives in St. Louis and one in Alton, and having a tire which makes a mark like that found at the scene of the murder, was found by St. Louis detectives yesterday at the home of the St. Louis brother, on "the hill," in the southwestern part of the city.

The St. Louis brother was questioned yesterday, and the Alton brother appeared voluntarily at St. Louis Police Headquarters, where both brothers waited for Sheriff Deimling. He and the St. Louis police authorities questioned them and both said they were not using the car on the night of the murder, and did not know who had it then, as many persons used it.

One of Men Released.

After the questioning, the St. Louis brother was released, and the Alton brother went voluntarily to Edwardsville with the Sheriff, in the car, which the Sheriff insisted on holding for investigation. The Sheriff said he did not believe either of the brothers knew anything about the crime, but he believed the car was the one used by the murderers.

Spots on the car, beneath the windshield and on the running board, looked to the Sheriff like possible bloodstains, and he said he would have them examined. "I was a butcher formerly, and I know blood when I see it," Sheriff Deimling remarked.

Telling of the arrest of the two suspects at Alton, the Sheriff said that one of them had under his finger nails a substance which he believed to be dried blood, and that this had been removed and would be chemically examined.

Sheriff's Theory.

The Sheriff said his information was that Peter Aiello and Dorothy Klite, who kept house for him in "Dogtown," in the southern part of Alton, were seen as late as 9:30 Tuesday night, in company with two men in the Nash car, in Alton; and that men were seen early Wednesday, cleaning the same machine.

It is his theory that some advances on the part of the other men toward the woman, or some rough jesting directed at her, caused a fight in which Aiello was shot to death, and that the men killed the woman to keep her from testifying against them. She was shot and her throat was cut, and it appeared that this occurred at the place where the bodies were found, while the man's wounds appeared to have been inflicted some hours earlier.

The Aiello-Klite murder was one of two double murders in Madison County within five days. The other was the killing of W. J. Wallace and Charles Virgin, ticket taker and watchman of the McKinley Bridge, at the east end of the bridge, early in the morning of Friday, June 6. No arrest has been made in this case, though the McKinley System has offered $1000 reward for evidence which shall lead to a conviction.

COLON DISPATCH TELLS OF FINDING OF 'BLOND' INDIANS BY AMERICAN SCIENTISTS

Death of Prof. Baer Also Reported—Jungles of the Unknown Darien Country Penetrated.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 14. — A Colon, Canal Zone, dispatch today tells of the success of the intrepid little group of American scientists in penetrating the wilds of the unknown Darien country, of their actually having found the century-old reported "blond" Indians, and of the death of Prof. Baer, who had married only recently and lived in Washington.

Richard O. Marsh, former diplomat, civil engineer and explorer, was leader of the expedition. He caught a glimpse of the white Indians last summer and expected to find their village or villages somewhere in the middle slopes on the Pacific side of the San Blas Mountains. Prof. Baer was the Smithsonian Institute entologist.

Marsh is bringing two white Indians with him.

It was largely because of the dread tropical fever, known as Chagres fever, in addition to the other hardships of the almost impenetrable jungle, that the Darien district had remained a closed book to the white man. The Von Teuber expedition of German scientists entered the wilds there from the east in the spring of 1908, and an American expedition started at the same time from the west.

Only one of six Germans came out alive and only one of three Americans lived to tell the tale. The others died of fever or were killed by the natives.

When the expedition left here on the United Fruit liner Carrillo on Jan. 13, there was stored in the ship's hold a varied assortment of presents with which it was planned to win the good will of the natives, notoriously a fierce and independent people.

There were two lemonwood bows for the principal chiefs, with steel-tipped arrows, and several hundred dollars' worth of trinkets with which to play to the vanity of the Indian women, including strings of glass beads, hair combs and mirrors. For the men of the tribes there were several cases of machetes for use in chopping their way through the jungle undergrowth as well as hunting knives in sheaths.

Native Dugouts Used.

In Panama outboard motors were attached to the native dugouts, craft made by the Indians from solid tree trunks, for navigating the Chucunaque and Tuyra rivers. The expedition was the best equipped that ever entered the Panamanian jungles.

The base of the expedition was at Yavisa, near the mouth of the Chucunaque, and the last known village of the "tame" Indians of the coastal section.

Speculation was rife as to the origin of the mysterious whites, called "Chicunaquas" in the absence of a better name. One guess was that they were a fragmentary survival of some Nordic people. That they were descendants of the original Norseman or of a pre-historic Norse emigration to the Western Hemisphere seemed not impossible from the scientific standpoint.

It was thought that their very isolation for an indefinite time would be reason for establishing amicable relations with them. These people were seen and written of by the Spaniards in the sixteenth century and by the English buccaneers a hundred years later. The Spaniards, in ancient documents, sometimes referred to them as Albinos and again merely as white Indians.

The experiences of these Indian tribes with the white man, represented to them by the Spanish conquistadors and English buccaneers, led them to virtually close their borders to the whites. The Spaniards went to them with the cross and Christianity in one hand and with murder, torture and robbery in the other, belying with their ghastly deeds the religion of love their clerics preached.

Nature of Country.

The nature of the country, with its dense jungles, swift rivers, swamps and precipitous mountains was beyond the powers of the tropic-sapped successors of the conquistadors to endure. The hardy adventurers who followed Balboa, Espinosa and Pizarro pushed onto the easy conquest of the rich Incas Empire rather than fight for uncertain pickings in Upper Darien.

In their determination to add another chapter to the annals of tropical adventure by striking into the forbidden jungle, those in the American party were greatly aided by the American aviators at the Canal Zone. The leader of the expedition was taken on a 400-mile flight in an observation plane to make an aerial reconnaisance of the wilds through which he and the others would hack their way. It was discovered on this flight that existing maps of the country were incorrect. A mountain range charted did not exist and unsuspected waterways were found. It also was seen that the Indians were engaged in a tribal war.

When the dry season set in and the insect pest abated, the expedition set out, and no member of it, with the exception of Marsh, the leader, had ever seen any more jungle than was visible from the observation car of the Panama railroad.

Besides Marsh and Prof. Baer the party included Senor Brin, representing the Panama Government; Herman L. Fairchild, geologist of the University of Rochester; Charles M. Breder Jr., aquarist, acting for the American Museum of Natural History, and Lieut. Paul Benton, staff correspondent of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Lieut. Benton is recovering from an appendicitis operation.

Breder's home is in Newark, N. J. His wife went to Colon to meet him on his return from the wilds and a cable was received by her father-in-law today that he was in a hospital recovering from typhoid fever.

NEWMAN TO SUBMIT NEW SUBURBAN PLAN

United Railways Representative to Explain Offer in Settlement of Bonds Tomorrow.

The Suburban Bondholders' committee, which thus far has declined to accept proposals of the United Railways Co.'s Reorganization Committee, relative to a partial payment on and extension of $6,500,000 suburban bonds under the contemplated reorganization plan, will receive a new offer from J. K. Newman, in active charge of reorganization, tomorrow.

The original plan offered the Suburbans called for the immediate payment in cash of the $2,000,000 consolidated bonds and the extension of the $4,5000,000 general 5 per cent bonds as a first mortgage on the Suburban property, but subject to other issues in priority on the whole system.

The committee objected that its bonds were in default and that the holders were entitled to full payment or its equivalent in an acceptable security or the privilege of taking over the Suburban properties, including 112 miles of the United Railways system.

It is now believed that Newman intends to offer immediate payment of the $2,000,000 consolidated bonds and to improve the position of the $4,5000,000 issue to such an extent that the Suburban committee will recommend that owners of this security retain their interest.

The meeting Monday will be held in the office of Herman Stifel, chairman of the Suburban committee, in the Boatmen's Bank Building.

If the Suburban question is adjusted tomorrow, it will mean that the Reorganization Committee will have completed its third of four preliminary steps working toward relieving the United Railways Co. of the receivership under which it has operated for four and one-half years.

Funds have been raised to pay $600,000 interest on the $30,200,000 general 4 per cent bonds on July 1. Arrangements have been made to purchase the People's Bus Co. for $2,400,000 and the financial plan will have been pretty well completed if the Suburban issue is settled. The important question of a new franchise will then come into the discussion.

Newman has reported himself as satisfied with the progress of negotiations, but refused to go into the details of the plan he will submit Monday.

Voice of Union Labor And the Radical Press

The Post Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of labor unions and the Communists and Socialist Parties showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

$650 A YEAR.
(From the New Majority, Farm-Labor.)

If you were a coal operator and it leaked out that you were paying day labor $2.60 a day would you hang your head in shame? That is the rate just put into effect by large operators in the Connellsville coke district in Pennsylvania, as brought out in a discussion at the annual convention of the National Coal Association. And according to the editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, "There is every reason to believe that this or a similar wage will be adopted by other nonunion operators in the field."

Two hundred and fifty days' work, a generous allowance in this industry, at $2.60 means just $650 a year, or half the lowest subsistence budget for a family.

MONEY ABOVE MEN.
(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

The difficulty about the so-called conscription of wealth, in case of war, is that it carries with it the conscription of men—and wealth would not be really conscripted, whereas men would be taken and set down in front of the cannon's mouth.

Take the Johnson resolution for example—introduced by Congressman Johnson of South Dakota. It provides for an amendment of the Constitution of the United states as follows:

"That in the event of a declaration of war by the United States of America against any foreign Government or other common enemy the Congress shall provide for the conscription of every citizen and of all money, industries and property of whatsoever nature necessary to the prosecution thereof and shall limit the profits for the use of such moneys, industries and property."

"Limit the profits!"

Men are to give up their lives—but speculators and investors are not to give up their profits!

And it is deliberately proposed to write this infamy into the Constitution.

THIEVES.
(From the New Leader, Socialist.)

Out of the depths of his economic hell John Bigol crawled at dawn. Unemployed, father of a large family, living in two dirty rooms and with 26 cents in his pocket, he ventured on a quest for food for his family. Not much to be obtained with 26 cents in a city like Chicago.

Strolling down the railroad tracks in shoes and clothing that matched a figure showing marks of privation, a car of potatoes attracted his attention. A dozen of the tubers are thrust into a bag and the wretched man shambled away with his prize. A flash and a bullet scattered his brains into a bloody froth.

"He's a thief, I tell you," said the railroad detective. "Must have hit him in the back of the head. He dropped right away." "I guess he was a thief," said the Police Captain, as he crushed a potato under his heel. He turned to his desk and wrote on the blotter, "Killed while attempting to escape arrest as a thief."

In the adjoining State of Indiana Lucile Rybolt, 19, pleaded guilty to stealing $2 from her stepmother. The soleman Judge sentenced the girl to serve one to eight years in the Woman's State Prison at Indianapolis.

Thieves, of course. John Bigol's widow and fatherless children weep over the body lying on a slab in the Morgue and Lucile Rybolt is caged from her kin. Stern "justice" goes its way. Sanctimonious moralists rejoice that property is safe.

Who will indict and convict the capitalist system as the thief that robs our children of bread and that guarantees no opportunity to many to provide it? These human tragedies are dragged through thousands of police stations and courts. Out of the shadows come and into the shadows go these wastrels.

PEACE AND ITS FOUNDATION.
(From the Illinois Miner, Labor.)

We are glad to observe the passion for peace behind the demand for the entry of the United States into the world court. But in favoring membership in the world court we want to utter a warning against trusting any court as the sole or chief guarantee of peace. The slogan "Law, Not War," has merit but it is not altogether sound.

Law will not always prevent war. Law is not the same as justice. It is the moral code of the strong. The international law which the world court would have to enforce is in many particulars nothing more than an agreement among thieves.

Peace is too precious a possession to be won without a price. To gain peace requires that we tackle two fundamental causes of war: (1) The attempt of strong individuals, corporations and nations to monopolize for themselves those natural resources necessary for the life of all. (2) Racial prejudice, which makes us forget that other nations and races are made up of men like ourselves.

When the United States uses its marines to back up its investors and oil seekers in Latin America it violates the first conditions of peace. When it forgets the sensibilities of the Japanese and indulges in unnecessary rudeness over the restriction of immigration it violates the second.

There will be no war now over the restriction of immigration, but imperialism and militarism will be strengthened in the Far East and an atmosphere of suspicion and hostility created between the farmers and workers of America, who at bottom have a common desire for themselves and their children.

PETITIONS FOR COMPROMISE ON DELMAR CROSSING ISSUE

Will Be Circulated by Representatives of the Delmar-Skinker Improvement Association.

Petitions urging a compromise between the city and Wabash Railroad officials on the question of a viaduct to replace the Delmar boulevard grade crossing will be circulated among residents of the West End districts by representatives of the Delmar-Skinker Improvement Association.

This action was decided upon at a meeting of the association last week when means of improving the Delmar-Skinker district were under discussion. The viaduct project is now in the State Supreme Court because the Wabash company objects to a viaduct with a 22-foot clearance. City officials hold out for a 22-foot clearance, while the railroad has offered to compromise on 18 feet. The consensus of opinion at the meeting was that, under pressure of public opinion, the two sides would reach an agreement and end the court fight.

The association also voted to champion the extension of the Delmar boulevard "white way" from Skinker to the Wabash tracks, and the opening of Skinker road north from Delmar boulevard.

BURNED BY GASOLINE AT AUTO

Fuel Bursts Into Flames When Being Drained From Can.

George Brunk, 39 years old, of 3101 South Broadway, was badly burned last night when gasoline which he was draining from an automobile in a garage at 3107 South Seventh street, suddenly burst into flames. The automobile and the garage were damaged several hundred dollars by the fire and Brunk was taken to the City Hospital in a serious condition. He was burned on the face and hands. Another man who was helping him in the garage escaped injury. The cause of the fire was not ascertained.

MAGICIAN OF THE SWEET POTATO, PEANUT AND PE

Negro Scientist Has Evolved 300 Commercial Products From Each of Three Plants.

By the Associated Press.

TUSKEGEE, Ala., June 14.—With magic touch Dr. George W. Carver, negro scientist, who for the past 30 years has been a member of the faculty of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute here, has opened a treasure house of nature, hidden for centuries.

Concealed under the guise of a sweet potato, a peanut and a pecan, nature had hidden a myriad of useful products, and these have been disclosed by Dr. Carver, who was born in a slave home on a Missouri farm.

The record of this scientist today stands: More than 100 commercial products from the sweet potato, 200 from the peanut and more than 60 from the pecan.

Not stopping with that, Dr. Carver has transformed a heap of Southern clay into beautiful colors, one of which is the famous blue, the secret of which was believed to have died and been lost to the world with the ancients of the Nile Valley.

This worker with the soil also has been given a fellowship in the Royal Society of Great Britain and in 1923 was awarded the Spingard medal which each year is given to the man or woman of African descent and American citizenship who shall have made the highest achievement in any field of human endeavor.

1216 JAPANESE WOULD ENTE

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, June 14.—Japanese, numbering 1216, including many newlyweds, are seeking admission to the United States through the Port of Honolulu, according to a statement made today by R. E. Burnett, Director of Immigration here.

Three large Japanese ships are speeding eastward with the majority of the Japanese in question aboard. The Tenyo Maru, due here Tuesday, is reported carrying 332 Japanese, Dr. Burnett said. The Korea Maru is due here June 19 with 662 passengers and the Nankin Maru, June 28, with 278 more.

FIRST DEFENDANT FREED IN 'KLAN' MURDER CASE

Jury at Lilly, Pa., Reaches Verdict After Being Out One Hour 20 Minutes.

By the Associated Press.

BRENSBURG, Pa., June 14.—Samuel Evans, alleged member of the Ku Klux Klan, tried on a murder indictment which grew out of a fight between klansmen and the townspeople of Lilly, Pa., April 5, was acquitted by a jury here tonight. The jury deliberated for one hour and 20 minutes.

Evans was the first of 18 alleged klansmen and 13 Lilly residents to be tried in connection with the killing of three Lilly men during the fight. In addition to murder and manslaughter charges, the defendants, who are said to be members of the klan, are charged with carrying concealed weapons. District Attorney D. P. Weimer tonight was undecided as to his next step.

The 31 defendants now under indictment were found guilty of affray and unlawful assemblage, several days ago.

The trouble causing arrests started after the klan held a demonstration and the robed men marched through the village to a special train. Near the railroad station, witnesses testified, a stream of water was turned on the klansmen. A number of prosecution witnesses said a command "Halt—open fire," came from the ranks of the klansmen, while others said the first shots were fired from "behind Frank Miasco," who was described as the victim of the fight.

Judge T. P. Finletter, in his charge to the jury, said the evidence was contradictory.

INGALLS' SON INDORSED IN KANSAS TO OPPOSE CAPPER

Wrong to Align the Farmer Against the Business Man, He Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 14.—Sheffield Ingalls of Atchison, son of the late United States Senator John G. Ingalls, was placed in the race today for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate. A State convention, representing most of the counties of Kansas, declared its belief in the unfitness of Arthur Capper longer to represent the Republican party in the Senate and its faith in Sheffield Ingalls to uphold more truly the principles of the Republican party in Congress.

The other active candidate for the indorsement of the convention today withdrew and himself placed Ingalls in nomination. Arthur Hellman, a young lawyer of Smith Center, was being urged to make the race against Capper. The Western part of the State was declared to be ready to get behind him in the campaign. But he told the convention he was more interested in the cause than in his own personal welfare and felt that Ingalls was the most available and best known candidate the convention could indorse.

Ingalls dropped into the convention hall just as the unanimous vote for him was being taken.

"I welcome this opportunity to demonstrate that an appeal to the courage and common sense, instead of the prejudices and passions, of the people of Kansas will draw an active support," he said. "It is wrong to attempt to align factions against factions, interest against interest or the farmer against the business man."

DIRECTORY INJUNCTION UPHELD

Court Restrains Use of Backs to Phone Books for Advertising.

The St. Louis Court of Appeals, in an opinion Friday, affirmed a decision by Circuit Judge Hall granting the National Telephone Directory an injunction against the Dawson Manufacturing Co. and the Chase Hotel Co., restraining them from attaching to Bell Telephone Directories false backs—covers containing advertisements.

In the suit, brought in October, 1923, the directory company contended that such practice was interference with its business and unfair competition. A demurrer was overruled and an injunction was granted. The defendants appealed.

Three Reversals in Deck Murder Case Too Many For Special Prosecutor

"Befogged and Discouraged" and Not Knowing Which of Its Own Rulings Supreme Court Will Follow, He Quits.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—Declaring himself befogged and discouraged by various decisions of the Supreme Court in reversing and remanding three of the four convictions obtained in the murder of Andrew Deck, volunteer prohibition informer, at Herculaneum, in February, 1921, R. E. Kleinschmidt of Hillsboro, special prosecutor appointed by the Attorney-General has withdrawn from further participation in retrial of any of the defendants.

Reasons were explained at length by Kleinschmidt in an open letter received today by Attorney-General Barrett, following Kleinschmidt's announcement at Ironton Tuesday, when the second trial of William Hayes was called, that he would not conduct the trial. Hayes was convicted of first degree murder at Ironton in November, 1921, and sentenced to life imprisonment, but the case was reversed and remanded for a new trial.

"In view of the decisions of the Supreme Court in the cases growing out of the Deck murder, all but one of which were reversed and remanded for new trial, and one of them a second time," Kleinschmidt wrote, "I feel that I am utterly incompetent to try any of these cases in a major manner which would meet the approval of said court on appeal.

Can't Understand Decisions.

"I conscientiously feel that I would not be justified in continuing in these cases and probably put the state to additional unnecessary expense. With all due respect to the Supreme Court, I am frank to confess that I am unable to understand the decisions it has handed down in these cases either as to the law involved or as to the facts shown in evidence."

As is known, Deck was fatally shot on Feb. 26, 1921, at Herculaneum by James Seward of St. Louis, and died two days later.

The state charged six men with entering into a conspiracy to employ Seward to "beat up" Deck because of his activities against bootleggers and were to pay him $35 for the assault. Seward was furnished with a revolver and billy, it was charged, was paid $20 of the promised $35 and shot Deck after enticing him from his home.

One Conviction Affirmed.

Seward was convicted and sentenced to death and the Supreme Court affirmed the sentence. Acting Gov. Lloyd commuted the sentence to life imprisonment. Ernest Hayes was sentenced to death, but the case was reversed and remanded. William Hayes, son of Ernest was sentenced to life imprisonment and the case reversed by the higher court. Eugene Hayes, another son, was twice sentenced to death and the case twice reversed by the Supreme Court, it being remanded the second time for new trial by the court on June 5, last.

Cases of the three other defendants were disposed of by dismissal of charges or acquittal on first trial.

Special Prosecutor Kleinschmidt pointed out that the Supreme Court, in the case of Ernest Hayes, had ruled as incompetent certain evidence submitted by the State concerning conversations between the defendants following the shooting of Deck, on the ground they took place following the death of Deck, "after the alleged conspiracy had terminated."

Same Evidence Once Upheld.

Kleinschmidt asserted the evidence clearly showed the conversations took place the night of Feb. 26, 1921, nearly 48 hours before Deck died. He further asserted the Supreme Court had not held that evidence incompetent, when passing on the identical evidence three months previously in acting on the appeals of Seward and Eugene Hayes.

"The trial Judge, E. M. Dearing, and I have perhaps been wrong as to some of the law involved in these cases," Kleinschmidt continued, "but we did pride ourselves somewhat upon knowing the facts were as disclosed by the evidence. However, I am just as much at a loss to understand the language of the Supreme Court in reference to the law involved as I am as to the facts.

"In the case of State vs. William Hayes, tried before the decision in the Ernest Hayes case was rendered, the Court, on commenting upon the question whether or not the State introduced sufficient evidence to submit to the jury specifically mentioned the identical testimony from the lips of the same witness, in regard to the same conversation, and held that it was competent evidence and a question for the jury as to whether or not it was true. This was in reference to the same testimony the Court had less than 10 months before, condemned as incompetent."

Must Guess at Procedure.

"Were I to continue in these cases," Kleinschmidt continued, "I would be at utter loss as to how to proceed, whether I should follow the ruling in the William Hayes case and offer the evidence in regard to the conversation, or follow the ruling in the Ernst Hayes case and not offer it.

"My procedure would necessarily be a mere guess on my part as to which of their own rulings the Supreme Court, afterwards would follow."

"I am even more at a loss to understand the Supreme Court's opinion, either with reference to the facts or the law involved, in its latest decision in the case of State vs. Eugene Hayes, decided June 5. And for that reason I deemed it best to withdraw from these cases. This defendant, Eugene Hayes, had been tried twice for this same offense and twice sentenced to hang, and in this last decision the court reversed the case because one of the instructions which did not pretend to cover the entire case inadvertently omitted the word 'deliberately.'

"The word uniformly has been held to distinguish murder in the first degree from murder in the second degree."

Word Twice Used Previously.

"The Court, in its opinion, did not mention the fact that the trial court had, in the first and main instruction, covering the whole case, twice used the word 'deliberately.' Both in referring to the conduct of Seward, the alleged principal, and also in reference to the defendant, his alleged conspirator; neither was mention made that in the second instruction the trial court defined, in accordance with approved definitions, the word 'deliberately,' and that in instruction No. 3, the jury were expressly told that there could be no murder in the first degree without 'deliberation.' The court previously had approved in the first trial of this same defendant the same instruction as No. 7 condemned in this last trial, except that in the former trial the word 'deliberately' was included."

"As you know," he wrote to Barrett, "the omission of this one word "deliberately" in the instruction was first discovered by you in preparing the State's brief and that the point was not raised by appellant's counsel in their original brief. If able counsel for the appellant, working arduously for more than a year in trying to find some reversible error, did not discover this technical defect I am unable to conceive how the omission of the word could by any possibility have mislead the jury which rendered the verdict.

"In explaining why the omission of this word constituted fatal error the court says: 'It is fairly clear that the murder was not contemplated in the scheme.' The court had previously in the some opinion in its statement of the evidence in the case, mentioned the fact that the defendant made a trip to St. Louis and found Seward, furnished him a revolver and afterwards paid the sum of $20 for his services in shooting Deck.

Under False Impression.

"Again I find that I have been laboring under a gross misapprehension as to the facts in these cases, for I had always been under the impression that when a person hires another for the express purpose of assaulting his enemy and furnishes him a .38 caliber revolver and a billy for the purpose that the only possible reasonable construction to be placed upon the intent is that of murder even though the defendant himself in explaining his conduct afterwards uses the expression 'beat up' instead of the more gruesome term of murder.

"My false impression was strengthened in this particular case by the additional evidence that the defendant traveled about 40 miles in locating a person available for the task and that the first person approached refused to accept the employment and that Seward was sent by defendant to Deck's home when the latter was in bed and probably asleep."

Kleinschmidt stated to Barrett that all the exhibits in the cases still were in his possession and would be turned over to the attorney appointed by Barrett to carry on the prosecutions. After Kleinschmidt withdrew, the William Hayes case was reset for June 26 on the docket of the Iron County Circuit Court. Kleinschmidt suggested appointment of B. J. Marbury of Farmington, who assisted in the trial of two of the defendants in the cases.

Barrett said he had not decided who he would appoint pending a conference with attorneys.

NEXT CONGRESS TO GET NATIONAL ART GALLERY PLANS

Effort to Obtain $7,000,000 Appropriation for Building to Be Renewed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Plans for the proposed national art gallery building in Washington will be submitted to Congress at the next session, the American Federation of Arts announced today. An appropriation amendment authorizing the construction of the art gallery at a cost not to exceed $7,000,000 was offered at the last session of Congress by Senator Lodge and the federation expressed confidence that the necessary funds would be provided at the next session.

Congress already has set aside a site for the national gallery building. Charles A. Platt of New York is now at work on the plans and design for the building. He was selected by the regents of the Smithsonian Institution, which is the custodian of the national gallery of art.

BOBBED HAIR NO OBSTACLE TO WOMAN MISSIONARIES

Two Girl Physicians With Shorn Locks Accepted by Lutherans.

DE KALB, Ill., June 14.—Two bobbed-haired girl missionaries will soon begin ministering medicallyy natives of China and Africa, it was reported today at the thirty-third annual convention of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Augustana Synod. The society is meeting in connection with the sixty-fifth annual convention of the synod.

"I'll have no time to fuss with my hair when I get to Africa," said Miss Bertha Anderson, medical graduate of the University of Chicago, in announcing that she would bob her hair as soon as she should reach her field this fall.

A girl whose hair is already bobbed, Miss Hulda Thelander, Minneapolis, who carried off the highest scholastic honors at the medical school of the University of Minnesota, will leave shortly for China.

Miss Mabel Ekstedt, who is being educated by the society at the University of Oklahoma, addressed the convention.

Reports showed that the organization has 53,558 members. Its total income last year was $82,-558.

GIVEN DOWRY AFTER WAITING 25 YEARS

Baroness Is One of Four Heirs of Trust of Gen. Harney's Daughter.

Circuit Judge Frey yesterday held that Baroness Elizabeth de Noue de Menou, of Larache, Morocco, could collect a wedding dowry of 120,000 francs which was promised to her 25 years ago by her mother, the late Baroness Eliza B. Harney deNoue d'Este. The money was not paid at that time because of legal complications which arose in the affairs of a trust estate in this city, from which it was to come. The dowry originally would have been $25,000 in American money but owing to decline of the French franc now amounts to about $5000.

Baroness de Menou is one of four heirs of the trust in which their interest was approximately $200,-000. Her mother before her marriage was Eliza B. Harney, a daughter of Gen. William Harney of St. Louis. Through the partition of the John and Bryan Mullanphy estates, she and her children became beneficiaries of property from these estates, the mother deriving the income during her life. It was provided that the trust was to terminate at her death, which took place Aug. 6, 1921, but has remained in force until now owing to the legal difficulties whic were only recently settled.

It appeared that at Elisabeth the Menou's marriage her mother contracted that the wedding dowry was to be paid in installments, but before any installment fell due Baroness d'Este and her children were obliged to pledge the property as security for an obligation of $65,000. Consequently this prevented immediate fulfillment of the contract, but now, by the Court's decree, the Baroness receives the overdue marriage gift as well as the full amount of her inheritance.

Judge Frey decreed that one-third of the estate shall go to Guimette de Noue, a granddaughter of the deceased Baroness; another one-third to Comtesse Beatrice de Montlivault, and Jehan de Noue, also grandchildren, and the remaining third to Baroness de Menou.

Charles M. Polk, attorney for the Baroness, was allowed a fee of $3000 for professional services in the litigation and P. Taylor Bryan, attorney for the trustee, a fee of $2000. The case was said to be one of the most complicated ever handled by a trustee.

ASTORS WILL ENTERTAIN VISITING AMERICANS

Secretaries Hughes and Hoover to Be Cliveden Guests; Convention Delegates Also Expected.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—Cliveden, ancient country estate of Lord and Lady Astor, situated on the bank of the Thames near Taplow, will be the scene of two large garden parties to visiting Americans during the coming month.

On July 19 the Astors will entertain the delegates to the advertising convention and their families, and on the 27th they will stage a similar party for the delegates to the Bar Association convention.

During the week end following the latter affair the Astors will have as house guests at Cliveden Secretary of State Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and other American notables, who will on that occasion have the opportunity of striking up friendly acquaintance with some of the leaders in the political life of Great Britain.

Lord Astor's racing stables, which are among the largest and most sumptuous in the country, are at Cliveden and form one of the private show places of Buckinghamshire. It was on this estate several centuries ago that a mansion, part of which still forms a section of the present great structure, was built for the then heir to the throne.

A few hundred yards from the mansion is a small natural amphitheater, where, according to county legend, "Rule Britannia" was first sung, the occasion being a royal garden party.

The first Lord Astor erected a chapel on an estate near by which overlooks a small cemetery where now lie the bodies of British, Australian, Canadian and American soldiers who died during the World War in the hospital conducted at Cliveden.

ANOTHER MILLMEN'S HEARING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—Another hearing in the anti-trust proceedings against the St. Louis Millmen's Association and the member companies of the organization will be held at the Hotel Statler in St. Louis Monday. The record that is accumulating in the case is getting very voluminous and has already amounted to more than 1700 pages of testimony. The defense has not yet closed its side and after they conclude their testimony the State's rebuttal will be taken.

The record of the proceedings has already exceeded that taken by the State in the anti-trust proceedings against the St. Louis Lumber Exchange, which led to the ousting of the exchange and fines aggregating $56,000 against the nineteen member companies. The record in the lumber case was so voluminous that the Supreme Court held it for about a yea rbefore disposing of the proceedings.

New Missouri Champion Tied but Once After Taking Lead on the First Hole.

WINNER 4 UP AFTER THE MORNING ROUND

Loser Plays the Better Golf in Afternoon, but Makes Up Only Two Holes.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Donald Anderson, a slender slip of a youth, with such excellent co-ordination of his muscles that he can drive with the longest hitters in the district, won the Missouri golf championship yesterday afternoon by defeating Lawson Watts, a fighting golfer from the Country Club, in a thrilling 36-hole match. Anderson never was down, but, nevertheless, despite his lead, he was the under dog all the way and it took courage as well as ability to beat his skillful, calculating opponent.

It was a battle between stylists. Both play their wooden shots with grace and rhythm. Both cut into the turf according to the book in making their iron shots. There is nothing unorthodox about the form of either, and the ease with which they made their strokes and overcame a seeming handicap when a hole appeared to be lost, gave the gallery of 200 the impression that it was a poorly played match.

Watts Shoots 75 in Afternoon.

But the cards disprove that. Watts, four down at lunch, went out in the afternoon and shot the heavy Midland Valley course in 75, four over, par. He made a few slips, it is true, but in most cases his slips were failures to beat par, and when a man does that the failure is not to be criticised as poor golf.

Watts whittled down that four up lead in the afternoon. He lost the second hole and became five down, but then he began beating back. He halved two in a row and then won No. 5 with a par three. He won No. 6 with a par four and No. 8 with a par three. He halved No. 9 and made the afternoon turn two down.

Watts missed a chance on No. 11, but Anderson also was off and the hole was halved in slovenly six, the only poorly played hole of the match. Watts won No. 12 with a four, cutting Anderson's lead to one up, and that was the last hole Watts won. Nevertheless, Anderson was the man on the defensive on the next five holes and while he earned his victory, it must be conceded that whatever element of luck there was favored him. Anderson ran down a long putt on No. 13. It was a good putt, but long putts usually are lucky and this one made the gallery gasp. The ball rolled slowly up to the hole, looked in for a fraction of a second, got dizzy and dropped in. Watts had played the hole perfectly and had a three-foot putt left for a birdie four. He made it, but it was discouraging to be putting for a half when it appeared a moment before to be a certain win which would square the match.

Bad Break for Watts.

The next break and the one that the gallery agreed was the deciding point of the match came on the sixteenth hole, a 231-yard one shot hole. Watts found the edge of the green with his drive, while Anderson hooked to the rough, with his pitch over the embankment surrounding the green and then won short with his third. He ran down his fourth, however, but Watts had only a three-footer for a win. The green sloped near the flag and Watts had to be careful with his putt. He hit it accurately enough, but the ball, curving to the hole, perched on the lip and stayed perched. It would not get dizzy and the gallery went tramping off to the next fairway, convinced that Watts' last chance had vanished.

Thrilling Finish.

The gallery was right. Anderson shot poor golf on the seventeenth to get a halve and then they went to No. 18. Watts had the better drive, but Anderson sent a beautifully arching pitch straight for the pin. The ball hit on the edge and rolled up to within eight feet. Watts had a 20-footer for a three. His only chance was to win the hole. It was too late for a half. He studied carefully, putted and missed. An-

Averages 114 Miles an Hour—Wunderlich Seriously Injured in Crash.

By the Associated Press.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 14.—The semiannual 250-mile automobile race on the Altoona speedway this afternoon, for a purse of $25,000 and points in the 1924 national championship, was captured by the veteran driver, Tommy Murphy, who pushed his car to an average of more than 114 miles an hour, a new track record. Murphy flashed home in 2:11:2, leading Fred Comer across the line by more than six miles. Antonine Mourre of France, a newcomer in racing circles of the United States, was a close third.

Jerry Wunderlich, one of America's speed monarchs, came to grief on the back track, which was made dangerous by intermittent rainfall during the afternoon. Driving at break-neck speed in an effort to catch the fast-flying leaders, Wunderlich was traveling at a terrific pace when his roaring car skidded not far from the spot where Howard Wilcox met his death last year. The machine flashed down the wet boards and crashed to the infield, with Wunderlich under the wreckage.

He was carried from the field unconscious and the thousands of spectators were stunned when the official announcer told them that the valiant driver had died in the field hospital of a broken neck. This report was unfounded, for Wunderlich was alive and in an Altoona hospital, suffering from a brain concussion and a broken ankle.

The attending doctors tonight announced that his condition was as good as could be expected and that his chances for recovery were excellent.

The fortunes of the race alternated frequently until Murphy took the lead. Harry Hartz and Tommy Milton, who finished fourth and fifth, led the pack at the outset, driving their powerful machines to the limit. For a time it was feared the rain would cause a halt, but the judges decided otherwise. Murphy, who drove the race with but one stop to change a tire in the record time of eight and a fraction seconds, forged ahead, and at the half way mark the 1922 champion flashed into the lead. He held the position to the end.

The drivers found it hard to keep their cars on the slippery board incline. Time and again the spectators were brought to their feet when one of the machines lost traction and skidded down the slope. When five of the racers finished the judges, because of the rainfall, ordered the others flagged from the track.

Murphy, by virtue of his victory, took the lead in championship points and a $9000 prize. Comer was awarded $4500; Mourre, $2500; Hartz, $1750, and Milton $1250. As the other drivers were flagged, the judges will award additional prizes later.

Senators Win Third Straight, Browns Drop to Sixth Place; Wingard Batted From the Hill

Sisler Shifts Batting Order in Vain Endeavor to Break Batting Slump of Team—Manager Gets Two Safeties of Four Hits Made Off Mogridge.

By Herman Wecke

Ernie Wingard, sensational young southpaw pitcher of the Browns, went the way of Urban Shocker and Dave Danforth and, as a result, the Browns yesterday dropped their third straight to the Nationals, 7 to 3. It was the Browns' fourth successive reverse and incidentally the loss dropped Sisler's men to sixth place in the A. L. flag race. A crowd estimated at 10,000 persons witnessed the rout.

Wingard was on the hill for the first five innings and started the sixth. While he was on the job, the Nationals scored six runs and connected for eight safeties, most of them coming when they did the most damage. It was Wingard's third defeat of the season.

In an effort to shatter the team's losing streak, Manager Sisler shifted his batting order. Marty McManus was back at his old position at second and batted in the clean-up position. Sisler moved himself up to second, with Robertson dropped to sixth. However, the change did little good as all the Brownie batters could do was to connect for four safeties against the southpaw pitching of the veteran George Mogridge.

Sisler Hits the Ball.

The Nationals' left-hander kept the Browns' four hits scattered. Sisler singled in the first for his first safety in eleven official trips to the plate. He made the second hit for his team in the third. Jacobson doubled with two on in the sixth and Williams who had gone fourteen official trips to the plate without a safety, pounded out his tenth home run of the year in the eighth with no one on base.

That was the sum total of the Browns' offensive against Stanley Harris' veteran left-hander.

Wingard started in great style. He got three men on easy rollers in the first. "Goose" Goslin, a left handed clubber, started the second with a smash into the right field bleachers. After that Wingard came back to retire six men in a row. Starting the fourth, Matthews singled and with the Nationals playing orthodox baseball, Manager Harris sacrificed. Goslin then doubled and Ruel singled, putting two runs across.

Pruett Replaces Wingard.

In the fifth, Peckinpaugh opened with a double and Shirley's sacrifice and Mogridge's long fly gave the fourth run. Then came the sixth. Harris bunted safely and went to third on Robertson's wild throw. Goslin singled him across, and Wingard was replaced by Pruett. Shirley's single counted Goslin with the second tally of the inning.

With one out in the Browns' half of the sixth, Williams and McManus walked and rode home on Jacobson's double to the extreme corner in left field.

Goslin opened the eighth against Billy Bayne, who went in after Pat Collins hit for Pruett, with his fourth safety. Ruel walked and after Bluege and Peck had gone out, Shirley's single counted Goslin with the final run for the visitors. It was Goslin's fourth run of the day. In the Brownie half came Williams' four bagger.

As a result of yesterday's defeat, the Browns have a 5-6 record against the Eastern clubs.

The Athletics call today to open a four-game series. It's Urban Shocker's turn to work for Sisler, but there is a chance that George Lyons will draw the assignment.

PHILS BEAT PIRATES IN EXCITING GAME, 3-1

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—A single to right field in the eighth inning by Mokan with the bases filled gave the Phillies a 3—1 verdict over Pittsburg in a close and exciting battle. Pittsburg was leading 1—0 when the Phillies went to bat in their half.

Sand beat out a bunt and Harper doubled. Williams was purposely passed to get at Mokan. The move proved unwise, Mokan breaking up the game.

WEISMULLER DEFEATS KEALOHA IN 100 YARDS

By the Associated Press.

LONG BEACH, N. Y., June 14.—In the final appearance of the men and women members of the American Olympic swimming team before embarkation Monday, mixed quartets representing the East and West furnished the feature by swimming a dead heat in a relay race of 120 yards. Johnny Weissmuller of the Illinois A. C., defeated Pua Kealoha of Honolulu in a 100-yard match race.

PATTERSON DEFEATED IN COAST TENNIS TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., June 14.—Robert Kinsey, Ray Casey and Peck Griffin of San Francisco, and Wallace Wesbrook of Los Angeles moved into the semifinals of the men's singles in the third annual Montecoto Country Club invitation tennis tournament today, after a series of hard-fought matches.

Kinsey defeated Capt. Gerald Patterson of the Australian Davis Cup team, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4, while Casey was eliminating Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles, 19—17, 6—4. Peck Griffin defeated Howard Kinsey of San Francisco, 7—5, 6—3, and Wesbrook defeated Pat Ohara Woods, also of the Davis Cup team from Australia, 8—6, 6—3.

Sunday School Athletic Meet Won by Tyler

West Presbyterian Team Second, One-Half Point Behind Winners.

The honors of yesterday's annual Sunday School Athletic Association track meet, held at Francis Field, went to the Tyler Place Church, when the athletes of that congregation rolled up a total of 54 points, nosing out the West Presbyterian class by a half point. The Tyler Place team will receive a trophy for yesterday's accomplishment, and medals will be awarded to the winners of each event.

The winning Tyler Place team was especially strong in the intermediate division, which corresponds to the Junior class of the Interscholastic league, as it scored 31 points in that division, a mark more than twice that of its nearest rival. Several members of local high school track teams were entered in this class.

The First Presbyterian team, finishing third, took the honors in the senior events, by totaling 26 points, giving it a margin of over ten points greater than the closest contestant. The West Presbyterians captured Junior honors, with a 24-point score.

Other than the closely contested battle of the first and second teams, yesterday's field day was without a distinctive feature. The Sunday School athletes did not succeed in breaking any records and in the majority of the events did not even approach previous marks. Some, however, did equal and better a good number of the marks made in the recent Interscholastic meet. This is no mean achieve-

BOROTRA BEATS LA COSTE FOR FRENCH HARD-COURT TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 14.—Jean Borotra today won the hard court tennis championship of France, defeating Rene La Coste 7—5, 6—4, 6—6, 5—7, 6—2.

La Coste played his usual steady game, but Borotra played super tennis. For the most part Borotra stationed himself at the net and just reached for La Coste's returns, placing them in corners of the opposite court to gain his points. He was superior also in his attack.

Borotra's victory is pointed to by tennis enthusiasts as having emphasized anew that France has three No. 1 players who cannot be separated by the ratings. Henri Cochet has defeated La Coste twice and lost to him once. Borotra has lost to La Coste twice and beat him once while Borotra and Cochet stand one-all since Jan. 1.

The new champion of France, with Cochet, La Coste and Jacques Brugnon, will represent France in the third round of the Davis Cup competition against India, which begins in Paris June 17. French tennis officials are full of hope that the Indian players will be eliminated and that France once more will reach the European finals and make the journey to the United States to meet the American zone finalists.

Former Soldan Star Wins 200-Meter Race In Olympic Tryouts

Paddock, Beaten by Bowman in 100-Meter Withdrawn—Murchison Unplaced—Taylor Sets Hurdle Mark.

By Charles E. Parker
Of the New York World Sport Staff

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 14.—"Finland, read 'em and weep."

A long, lean, chocolate-hued citizen, waving aloft his carefully kept summaries of the final Olympic tryouts, roared that remark at the conclusion of those tryouts this afternoon.

He had journeyed to the Harvard Stadium intent on cheering to victory such fellow Afro-Americans as DeHart Hubbard and Ned Gourdin. Like many another in the moist mass of onlookers he had come to felicitate a few and found himself marveling at the many super-athletes who wrote athletic history at Cambridge today.

"Finland, read 'em and weep"—homely, slangy admonition directed at America's leading rival for Olympic honors—epitomized the feelings that surged in 40,000 hearts, for the tryouts which began so auspiciously yesterday continued their glorious way today, offering convincing proof that the present generation of American athletes surpass those of all time, and that the team which will sport the proud shield of Uncle Sam in the eighth Olympic at Colombes Stadium, Paris, next month is the mightiest galaxy of track and field men ever developed in this or any land.

Many Records Broken.

All who kept careful records felt the urge to wave them in the faces of those nations who send their young men here to gain athletic training and draw them back to oppose America in the Olympic games, and who have combined in altering the Olympic program and scoring system in a manner calculated to impose a burden upon unconquered American teams.

Notwithstanding the time-honored warning, "pride goeth before a fall," many in attendance at today's meet were remarking, "Bring on your Finns; bring on your whole tribe of European, Asiatic, African, South American and Island athletes—Uncle Sam is ready for them."

The day was not an ideal one for those finely conditioned stalwarts who appeared for the ultimate tryout engagements. Rain began to fall early in the morning and a mean drizzle continued throughout the afternoon, softening the running track, covering with treacherous moisture the jumping take-offs and the implements employed in the field events. Yet to the three world's records, one American record and two Olympic records which fell in yesterday's onslaughts were added a new world's record in the 200-meter dash; a new world's record in the 400-meter hurdles, the equaling of a world's record in the 110-meter hurdles; the equaling of the world's record in the 400-meter run; the equaling of the American record in the 800-meter run; the equaling of the American record in the 1500-meter run and the surpassing of the Olympic record in the 100-meter dash.

Scholz and Murchison Are Named Members of U. S. Olympic Team

A complete list of athletes picked to represent the United States at the Olympic track and field championship to be run at Colombes Stadium, France, next month, will be found on Page 5. A total of 102 stars were named. Among them were Jackson Scholz and Loren Murchison, two St. Louis boys.

Scholz Sets Dash Record.

Jackson Scholz created the 200-meter mark when he swept the course in 20 9-10 seconds; George Taylor in lowering the world's 400-meter hurdle record set a mark of 52 6-10 seconds; Frank Johnson of the Illinois A. C. equaled Earl Thomson's 110-meter hurdle record of 14 8-10 and J. Coard Taylor in matching his 400-meter time of yesterday equaled that now created mark.

Ray Buker with 3 minutes, 55 8-10 seconds for the 1500-meter run and Biff Richardson with 1 minute 53 6-10 seconds for the 800 meter were the two to equal American records and Chet Bowman, the surprise winner of the 100-meter dash was the youth who surpass the Olympic mark of 10 8-10 seconds for that event.

Spirited as were yesterday's preliminaries, they were not to be compared with the heart stimulating engagements of today. Each athlete to compete had survived those preliminaries and knew that his rivals of today had been similarly tested and proved and into his efforts he put every ounce of energy and the last whispering breath of courage.

Murchison Is Shut Out.

Nor were the upsets fewer than on the day of the trials. The 100-meter event produced one of those when Chet Bowman, who had barely struggled into a qualifying position soundly whipped his field, a race in which Loren Murchison, the national champion, was shut out, and in which Francis Hussey, the schoolboy star, fought his way into the scoring fourth position.

Another came in the bristling $00-meter run in which Bill Richardson of Leland Stanford emerged the victor over such tried and proved stars as Schuyler Enck, "Soapy" Watters, Larry Brown and others. Both Watters and Brown were shut out in this record-equalling test.

Still another developed when Charley Paddock, advertised as the "Fastest Human," finished last in the 200-meter dash.

In the field events the upsets were more numerous and fortunate were those who accomplished good marks on Friday, for under the conditions of today few were able to equal or improve their performances of yesterday.

Tootell Beats McGrath.

Fred Tootell managed to nose out Matt McGrath in the hammer throwing, but Glenn Hartranft, world's record holder in the discus scored no better than fifth place, and in the shot-put he was forced to content himself with second place.

Many were the star athletes who were shut out in the course of the day.

Murchison and Leconey lost out in both sprints; Helffrich, Watters and Larry Brown in the middle distances; Comins in the broad jump; Owens, Myers, Scholpp and Carr in the pole vault were but a few of their number.

As has been the case in the preliminary tryouts, the work of schoolboy prodigies [illegible]

GEORGE KELLY DRIVES IN 8 RUNS, GIANTS WIN FROM REDS, 8-6

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 14.—The Giants won by a score of 8 to 6 from the Reds today in an exciting game in which George Kelly played the stellar roll. He drove in all of the Giants' 8 runs with three homers and a single. He was intentionally passed on his other appearance at the bat. Both teams used three pitchers. Barnes, Oeschger, Sheehan and Benton were harshly used. The attendance was 25,000.

DAZZY VANCE FANS 11 CARDINALS AND DODGERS WIN, 5 TO 2

Brooklyn Pitcher Strikes Hornsby Out Three Times; High and Fournier Star

Rickeymen Get Nine Hits, but Vance Gets His Strikeout Ball Working in the Pinch—Has Fanned 28 Men in Last 27 Innings.

By Thomas S. Rice,
Baseball Editor, Brooklyn Eagle

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 14—Dazzy Vance pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 5 to 2 victory over the Cardinals today, evening up the first two games of the series.

Vance fanned eleven of the Cardinals, which accounts for the fact that nine Cardinal hits were good for no more than two runs.

Whenever Vance felt himself cramped he relieved the tension by whiffing a batter or two.

Vance fanned eleven Cubs in nine innings on June 9 and six Pirates in nine innings on June 4, which gives him a record of 28 strike-outs in 27 consecutive innings, and he has won all three games.

He has won nine and lost two.

Hornsby led the Cardinals whiffers today. He struck-out on his first three times up.

The first time he died on a called third strike, a knee-high fast curve over the outside corner.

The second time he swung at a third strike that was also a wide curve.

The third time he had a third strike called that was precisely like the other two death-dealers. Hornsby came up in the seventh, after Smith had bunted safely with two out, took a bad ball, took a perfect strike, and fouled to Fournier.

Heinie Mueller walloped Vance for a double over second base in the second inning with one out, and was sent home by Gonzales' single to center. Heinie doubled over third in the fourth inning with two down and Douthit fanned.

Vance Saves Himself.

How Vance worked on the principle of every man his own hero in saving himself was demonstrated in the fifth inning. Gonzales filed out but Cooney singled whole-heartedly to center. Arthur Delaney was fanned, making two out. Flack and Smith singled to center, which scored Cooney with the Cardinals' second and last run and put Flack on second, with Smith on first. There was the great opportunity for Hornsby to obtain revenge upon this pitcher who had fanned him twice. Vance let out another link and fanned Hornsby for the third time, on a called strike, low and outside.

Vance wound up the game by whiffing Cooney and Sherdel, the last two men up in the ninth.

Jess Haines lost a 12-inning duel to Vance in St. Louis and was the logical choice to start against him today, but Haines was not fooling the Dodgers much on this damp afternoon when the rain kept down to 10,000 a crowd that might have run to 20,000 in decent weather.

Andy High Triples.

Andy High opened the very first inning for Brooklyn with an unmitigated triple to right and scored straightway on Wheat's single to left that was the first of three consecutive hits for Wheat. Fournier followed with a prodigious single to left center which was the first of four consecutive hits for the Frenchman. He died trying to stretch that single in the first inning. Smith and Hornsby snagging him at second. Fournier made three doubles yesterday in four times up and was over ambitious.

Andy High, the St. Louis native son, started the beginning of the end of Haines and the Cardinal hopes by opening the third Brooklyn round with a nifty single to right. Johnston sacrificed. Wheat made a mysterious home run over the right field fence. He caught a low ball on the handle of his bat, about six inches from his hands, and raised it over the right field fence, scoring High ahead of him. Considering that the wind was against Wheat the sailing of that ball into the great beyond the fence is a mystery, but the homer of Jacques Fournier immediately thereafter offered no mystery. Jacques took a roundhouse swing and the ball is still going on the other side of the right field wall.

Arthur Delaney allowed the Dodgers three hits in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, but looked pretty good at that. Toporcer fouled out for Delaney in the seventh and Bill Sherdel finished. Bill yielded a hit to center by Vance in the seventh. High sacrificed, and singled by Johnston and Fournier scored Vance with the last run.

Doak Traded to Brooklyn Club

Cardinals Obtain Pitcher Leo Dickerman in Exchange for Veteran.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Leo Dickerman, pitcher of the Brooklyn Robins, was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Bill Doak, veteran spitball twirler, today. The deal was closed after the game between Brooklyn and St. Louis at Ebbets Field this afternoon. No cash was involved in the transaction.

Doak came to the Cardinals in 1913 and the following year he topped the National League pitchers in efficiency with an earned run average of 1.72. In 1921 he also led the hurlers in the Heydler circuit, permitting 2.58 earned markers a contest. His greatest number of victories came in 1920, when he captured 20 contests. This season Doak has started but one game. However, he has done well as a relief pitcher.

Dickerman served his first year in the majors in 1923, coming from the Southern League.

Jack Butterfield, professional billiard player and instructor, is manager of the new billiard room which has been opened by the City Club in the basement of its new club building at Eleventh and Locust streets. Butterfield formerly was manager of the billiard room of the Mercantile Club. Prior to that he had charge of billiards and bowling for the Oakland Athletic Club of Pittsburg. Butterfield plans to conduct tournaments for club members during bast fall and also to stage

The Man Who Spilled the Beans for Wills

By Burris Jenkins

Defeat by Wills May Mean Title Match and Fortune for Madden

One Promoter Has Already Offered Champion $150,000 Guarantee to Meet the Game Irishman.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF BARTLEY MADDEN, the 30-year old fighter who spilled the beans for Harry Wills, the negro challenger of Jack Dempsey, is properly exploited, he ought to transmute that one display of mettle into a small fortune.

Bartley's role has been cast in minor parts, heretofore, but already his remarkable gameness in standing off Wills for 15 rounds has won him the offer of a fight with Jack Dempsey.

This offer has to some seemed ridiculous, in view of the fact that in all these years none has picked on the sturdy Celt as one capable of giving the champion a fight. Since Dempsey has refused to accept a bid of $150,000 to meet Madden, the champion possibly thinks that this old gamester is far from being the easy picking the croakers have tabbed him.

Remember they said before the Wills fight that Madden was a 100 to 1 shot; but there were moments when the battle seemed not so very one-sided. Madden's showing against Wills is all the more remarkable since none of the standard boxing guides has seen fit to list him. However, the high cost of breaking into a guide may have decided Bartley to save his money and try and get along without a bought-and-paid-for place in the published Hall of Fame.

Another Joe Grimm.

TO GET a line on this modern Joe Grim we have to dig into the files—and it is some dig, for Bartley has been battling a decade. After burning many midnight kilowatts several facts were exhumed that put Madden in a better light. Madden, from these, appears to be a determined, strong fighting man who unfortunately has not been equipped with a devastating punch.

However, he has yet to meet the man who can bring him low for the count. Thus far, as nearly as the records of the past reveal, he has never been knocked down. On the other hand he has been outpointed several times.

Bartley is a mauling fighter with a damaging but not a killing wallop. He has faced some of the best men in the country and none can say that Madden has been disgraced. Unspectacular, he still can do a day's work and take the consequences like a regular guy.

No Set-Ups for Madden.

THERE are few "ham" opponents in the record of Madden, who began his career in the stable of Frank Moran and his "Mary Ann. Frank who is Carpentier's only rival for the crown of the world's most successful loser. Like Carpentier, Moran suffered many defeats, but never ceased to be a drawing card to the time he retired.

Madden had rough sailing in Moran's hands, for about all Moran owned was Mary Ann, a knock-'em-dead wallop. However, he learned much from Frank.

Madden's first four ring efforts of consequence resulted in defeats at the hands of Battling Levinsky (twice), Bob Moha and Jim Coffey—all in the limelight then.

Then he got a start by knocking out Coffey, who notoriously owns a "glass jaw." Joe Cox of Springfield (Mo.) fame, the man who, Referee Jim Bronson declares, made Jess Willard crawl through the ropes and quit, was Madden's next knockout victim. And that about closes the knockout feats of Bartley.

Then he began to take on the dangerous fighters. He gained a decision over Bill Brennan for one thing. That was six years ago when Bill was as good as at any time in his career. He made Joe Jeanette quit (claiming a foul) in the fourth round and Jeanette was one of the toughest of all specimens in the ring at that time. Bill Miske and Tom Gibbons outpointed him, but the Fultons, Jack McAuliffes, Marty Burkes and all that kind were lucky to get draws with Madden.

Had Madden only had a real SOCK in either or both hands, he might today be ranked with the world's great. But because he is just a mediocre mauler, a rough, tough fighter, he gradually escaped notice. He was really rated lower than he deserved. His bouts were never spectacular, not often interesting. But he was hard to beat—and he still is at the age of 30.

Dempsey Bout Visualized.

WHETHER they will attempt to exploit Madden into a match with Dempsey remains to be seen. The effort has been made; may be renewed. If it is made the resulting bout may see a great exhibition of courage, but it will not be interesting and may be regrettable.

It can be visualized now—a murderous punch against an unconquerable heart. It means a cruel fight, for Madden undoubtedly has wonderful resistance. Dempsey's best might not finish him quickly. Madden, on his part, could not hope to do more than delay the finish while taking ghastly punishment.

And yet, for any other opponent in the world today, Madden is a stumbling block. Bartley's situation is a sad one.

He's too good to be beaten by most foes; and not good enough to whip them decisively.

Here are some of the important fights in Madden's record:

Aug. 19, 1914, lost to Battling Levinsky, 10 rounds.
Dec. 1, 1916, lost to Bob Moha, 10 rounds.
May 3, 1917, lost to Jim Coffey, 10 rounds.
June 18, 1917, lost to Levinsky, 10 rounds.
Nov. 22, 1917, knocked out Coffey in seventh round.
1917, then unobtainable, knocked out Joe Cox, three rounds.
July, 1918, won newspaper decision over Bill Brennan, eight rounds.
July 15, 1918, lost newspaper decision to Wilson.
Nov. 11, 1919, Joe Jeanette quit in fourth round, claiming foul blow.
June 4, 1920, won newspaper decision over Bill Brennan, 12 rounds.
Aug. 23, 1920, won newspaper decision over Mike Burke.
Dec. 10, 1921, lost newspaper decision to Tom Gibbons, 10 rounds.
June 12, 1922, drew with Fred Fulton, 12 rounds.
Nov. 27, 1922, won from Powell, 15 rounds.
Oct. 5, 1923, won from Jack McAuliffe, 12 rounds.

Miss Collett Is Greatest Woman Golfer in World

Sarazen Asserts She Could Hold Her Own With Most Men Stars.

By Gene Sarazen,
American Professional Golf Champion.
(Copyright, 1924.)

In again winning the women's Eastern golf championship, a title she had little difficulty in annexing away last year, Miss Glenna Collett has proved herself to be the greatest woman golfer the world has ever known. I know there are many who will dispute this statement. Nevertheless, her record is proof enough of her greatness.

It wasn't her victory at Baltimore recently so much as her game which convinced me that Miss Collett today is playing better golf than she has ever played before. She is still a young girl and is constantly improving. There seems to be no limit to her game. Right now she could hold her own with the great majority of men golfers, amateurs and professionals.

In her first round at Baltimore she had a 76. Imagine that on a par layout of 72, one of the longest courses in the country. It was here that Francis Ouimet sprang into fame. It was on this course Jess Sweetser blossomed forth as a mighty golfer. And now comes Miss Collett with a score that only a few of the great army of men stars have beaten.

Gets Tremendous Power.

The Providence girl is able to score so amazingly well because of the tremendous power in her golf swing. Unlike most women golfers, Miss Collett pivots more accordingly gets her body into the swing as she goes into the ball. Most women are arm-golfers. That is, they hit practically without turning the body to any great extent.

Miss Collett, too, has a fine back-swing than any other woman. Only Cecil Leitch of them I have seen equaled her in this respect. Of course, a fast swing is not hazardous for most golfers. But the great player gets much of his power by reason of that kind of stroke.

Another difference between Miss Collett's game and that of most women is that she is not afraid to whip the club into the ball. She swings at it like any professional would.

Her long game has always been magnificent. Where she has been weak is in her short game and in this department of the game where one can slip more strokes than anywhere else along the route. I understand that Miss Collett has improved considerably, however, in this respect within the past year, and if this is the case I cannot see how anyone is going to beat her in any tournament this year.

Should Finish Undefeated.

Miss Marion Hollins, who won the Metropolitan championship recently, has great power, but lacks the steadiness that characterizes Miss Collett's game. If she can chip and putt as well as she drives and plays her iron shots Miss Collett should go through the year 1924 unbeaten.

Had she won the national championship last year Miss Collett would undoubtedly have visited England this spring to compete in the British ladies' championship. Those who are of the opinion that Joyce Wethered is the greatest woman golfer, would then have had an opportunity to compare the games of these girls.

Detroit Loses To Yanks, 6-2

No Further Disturbance Among Players—Meusel and Cole Suspended.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 14.—Landing on Rip Collins for three hits and mixing these with two bases on balls in the first inning New York slipped over four runs and sewed up its final game of the series with Detroit today, a game which it eventually won by a score of 6—2.

Bob Meusel, Yankee right fielder, and Pitcher Bert Cole of the Tigers were out of the game under suspensions, meted out by President Ban Johnson as a result of Friday's free-for-all fight between New York and Detroit players and the fans. Babe Ruth and other players prominent in the disturbance have not been punished but it is possible that further action will be taken after Ban Johnson receives Umpire Evans' detailed report.

The spirit of animosity which pervaded the two camps yesterday was noticeably absent today. The players appeared willing to let things stand as they were.

Burke, who started the game in Pratt's position at second base, was chased from the game at the start of the fifth inning by Umpire Ormsby, Burke's offense being a few choice words not usable in a family newspaper after he had been called out on strikes.

WHITE SOX CHASE ROMMEL AND DOWN LONELY ATHLETICS, 10-3

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The White Sox ran their string to three out of four from Mack's Athletics today, easily winning the final game of the series, 10-3. Dixie Leverett yielded only seven hits and fanned six, while pasing but one. Two of the three Sox errors assisted the Mackmen in scoring.

The pale hose attacked Rommel fiercely, chasing the slim right-hander in four innings after counting seven times on eight hits and two errors.

Princeton Wins From Yale, 7 to 0

Townsend, Tiger Pitcher, Holds Blue Team to One Hit to Gain Shutout.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 14.—The Princeton nine won its first commencement game here on University Field this afternoon before crowded stands by blanking the Yale team by the score of 7 to 0.

Charlie Townsend, Tiger moundsman for the entire nine innings, pitched the best game of his career, holding the Yale batters to one lone hit. The Tigers, on the other hand, had no difficulty in connecting with Ducky Pond's offerings and pounded him for a total of seven hits, including five safeties, a triple and a double.

INDIANS BEAT RED SOX, 3-2; M'NULTY STEALS HOME IN ELEVENTH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, June 14.—The Indians split even with the Red Sox when they won the final game of the series, 3—2, McNulty making a clean steal of the plate in the eleventh inning with Murray pitching. Smith and Piercy engaged in a hurling duel with Smith on the way to victory, 3—1, when with two down in the ninth the Red Sox tied it up on successive hits by Boone, Shanks and Exnell. Smith gave way to Coveleskie at this stage. In the eleventh, McNulty singled, took second when Todt threw low to first trying to double Pat off the bag and took third on Speaker's pop double to left. He then stole home.

OHIO STATE DEFEATS CHICAGO AND TIES FOR LEAD IN BIG TEN

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 14.—Ohio State went into a tie with the University of Michigan for the western conference baseball championship this afternoon when the Buckeyes defeated Chicago, 9 to 6, in the first game of the Big Ten season. It was the tenth defeat for the Maroons, who failed to win one game in the race.

George Kelly Hits 3 Home Runs, and Wins Place in Hall of Fame

NEW YORK, June 14.

GEORGE Kelly's feat of getting three home runs in today's game with Chicago, not only tied the modern record for runs batted in during a single game, but placed the Giant slugger in a class by himself as the only man in major league history who has twice hit three home runs during a single contest. He first did the trick on Sept. 17, 1922.

Ken Williams of the St. Louis Cy Williams of the Phillies, W. J. Haslins of the Athletics are the only other players who have made three home runs during a single contest in the twentieth century. Bobby Lowe of Boston in 1894 and Ed Delahanty of Philadelphia in 1896 are the only major leaguers who ever made four home runs in a single game.

Kelly's home run total for the season now is six.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 14.—The Yale Varsity crew earned the right to represent the United States at the Olympic games by winning the eight-oared race on the Olympic rowing try-out course on the Schuylkill River today. Navy officers crew finished second, one length to the rear. The Navy Varsity was third and the Junior Varsity fourth. New York A. C. was last.

The time of the winning crew was 5 minutes 51 4-5 seconds, said to be a world's record for the distance and a quarter.

It was one of the most thrilling and keenly contested races in all the history of Inter-Collegiate rowing and the margin of the winning crew at the Judges' stand was so slight that only the most judicious cared to pick the winner. The second crew covered the distance in 5 minutes, 53 seconds flat. The Naval Academy eight at the Olympic games four years ago set a new world's mark for the two miles, being timed in 6 minutes 2 3-5 seconds. The Olympic distance is slightly longer than the one rowed here.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 14.—The Yale Varsity crew earned the right to represent the United States at the Olympic games by winning the eight-oared race at the Olympic rowing try-outs on the Schuylkill River today. The Navy officers crew finished second, one length to the rear. The Navy Varsity was third and Penn Junior Varsity fourth. New York A. C. was last.

The time of the winning crew was 5 minutes 51 4-5 seconds, said to be a world's record for the mile and a quarter.

It was one of the most thrilling and keenly contested races in all the history of Inter-Collegiate rowing and the margin of the winning crew at the Judges' stand was so slight that only the most audacious cared to pick the winners. The second crew covered the distance in 5 minutes, 53 seconds.

The Naval Academy eight at the Olympic games four years ago set a new world's mark for the 2000 meters, being timed in 6 minutes 1 1-5 seconds. The Olympic distance is slightly longer than the one rowed here.

One of Best in Decade.

The Naval Varsity had one-third of a length of open water separating its bow from the stern of the officers' shell. The Penn Junior crew was one length and two-thirds behind the Middies and the New York A. C. shell was six lengths behind the winners.

The showing of the Yale varsity justifies its ranking with the best eight-oared varsity crews of the past decade and the wonderful comeback of the navy officers, seven feet short of another triumph, must go down into the rowing books as one of the most extraordinary feats in the history of the sport.

Both crews were wonderful examples of the best in intercollegiate rowing. Beautiful to watch, possessed of extraordinary power and displaying throughout the gruelling race all that is best in sound coaching systems.

The bow oar in the Yale boat at times seemed to be out of unison with the remainder of the boat. He rowed as if his shoulder muscles had suddenly tightened, but this did not detract from the smooth gliding and the speed of this great eight.

Gilmore Wins Singles.

In that killing finish the only break in the mechanism of the officers' boat was a small spray of water which shot up from the oar of No. 4. The old slashing drive at the finish which had brought them the Olympic title in 1920 was there, but in the place of Leander Crew was one of the finest eights in the annals of sport in America. The conditions were ideal. The wind had died down and the water had become calm.

Throughout the entire race the outcome was between Yale and the ex-Middy crew.

W. E. Garrett Gilmore of the Bachelors' Barge Club of Philadelphia, defeated the elite of the American sculling world in winning the single sculls race by slightly more than two lengths of open water and qualifying for the Olympic games. Paul V. Costello of the Penn Athletic Club crossed the line in second place with a half length advantage over Russell Godman of the Union Boat Club of Boston.

Edward McGuire, the sculling cop from Buffalo, winner of the national title last summer at Baltimore, had to quit about 400 yards from the finish.

Miss Collett Is Greatest Woman Golfer in World

Sarazen Asserts She Could Hold Her Own With Most Men Stars.

By Gene Sarzen,
American Professional Golf Champion.
(Copyright, 1924.)

In again winning the women's Eastern golf championship, a title she had little difficulty in carrying away last year, Miss Glenna Collett has proved herself to be the greatest woman golfer the world has ever known. I know there are many who will dispute this statement. Nevertheless, her record is proof enough of her greatness.

It wasn't her victory at Braeburn recently so much as her scores which convinced me that Miss Collett today is playing better golf than she has ever played before. She is still a young girl and is constantly improving. There seems to be no limit to her game. Right now she could hold her own with the great majority of men stars, amateurs and professionals.

In her first round at Braeburn she had a 76. Imagine that, over a par layout of 72, one of the hardest courses in the country. It was here that Francis Ouimet came into fame. It was on this course Jess Sweetser blossomed forth as a mighty golfer. And now comes Miss Collett with a score that only a few of the great army of men stars have beaten.

Gets Tremendous Power.

The Providence girl is able to score so amazingly well because of the tremendous power in her golf swing. Unlike most women golfers, Miss Collett pivots more and accordingly gets her body into the swing as she goes into the ball. Most women are arm-swingers. That is, they hit practically without turnnig the body to any great extent.

Miss Collett, too, has a faster back-swing than any other woman. Only Cecil Leitch of those I have seen equaled her in this respect. Of course, a fast swing is very hazardous for most golfers. But the great player gets much of his power by reason of that kind of stroke.

Another difference between Miss Collett's game and that of most women is that she is not afraid to whip the club into the ball. She swings at it like any professional would.

Her long game has always been magnificent. Where she has been weak is in her short game and it is this department of the game where one can slip more strokes faster than anywhere else along the route. I understand that Miss Collett has improved considerably, however, in this respect within the past year, and if this is the case I cannot see how anyone is going to beat her in any tournament this year.

Should Finish Undefeated.

Miss Marion Hollins, who won the Metropolitan championship recently, has great power, but lacks the steadiness that characterizes Miss Collett's game. If she can chip and putt as well as she drives and plays her iron shots Miss Collett should go through the year 1924 unbeaten.

Had she won the national championship last year Miss Collett would undoubtedly have visited England this spring to compete in the British ladies' championship. Critics who are of the opinon Miss Joyce Wethered is the greatest woman golfer, would then have had an opportunity to compare the games of these girls.

OHIO STATE DEFEATS CHICAGO AND TIES FOR LEAD IN BIG TEN

By the Associated Press.

t CHICAGO, June 14.—Ohio State went into a tie with the University of Michigan for the western conference baseball championship this afternoon when the Buckeye nine defeated Chicago, 9 to 0, in the last game of the Big Ten season. It was the tenth defeat for the Maroons, who failed to win one game in the race.

George Kelly Hits 3 Home Runs, and Wins Place in Hall of Fame

NEW YORK, June 14.

GEORGE Kelly's feat of making three home runs in today's game with Cincinnati not only tied the modern record for runs batted in during a single game, but placed the Giant slugger in a class by himself as the only man in major league history who has twice hit three home runs during a single contest. He first did the stunt Sept. 17, 1923.

Ken Williams of the Browns, Cy Williams of the Phillies and W. J. Henline of the Athletics are the only other players who have made three home runs during a single contest in the twentieth century. Bobby Lowe of Boston in 1894 and Ed Delehanty of Philadelphia in 1897, are the only major leaguers who have ever made four home runs in a single game.

Kelly's home run total for the season now is six.

MRS. STERRETT WINS VALLEY GOLF TITLE, BEATING MISS BURNS

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., June 14.—The Missouri Valley bowed today to its new women's golf champion Mrs. D. Sterrett of Hutchinson, whose uphill fight from a handicap of three down on the fourteenth tee, won for her the final match and the supremacy of five states.

By virtue of their victories in the semifinal roundds yesterday, Mrs. Sterrett and Miss Miriam Burns of Coffeyville, Kansas City, were paired for the last stand today. It required 20 holes of exciting play—the most evenly matched in the week of tournament action—to decide the 1924 championship. The two were even up at the turn; even up at the eighteenth, and victory came only with the last putt on the seventieth green.

The contenders yesterday had narrowed from more than 100 women of Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Oklahoma, to four of the favorites. Two Kansas City women were eliminated in Friday's sessions.

Anderson's Victory Due To Two Fewer Strokes On Green, Card Shows

IN the Anderson-Watts match a count was kept of the putts taken by the two finalists and it happens that the difference between the putt totals of the two golfers represents exactly the margin by which Anderson defeated Watts.

In the afternoon round, Anderson took 18 putts on the first nine and 18 coming home, while Watts, taking 18 on the outward journey, came back with 16, for a total of 34 to Anderson's 36. In the 18 holes he reduced Anderson's lead by two, the margin represented in the putts.

Anderson had a total of 155 strokes for the 36 holes and 76 of the strokes were putts. Watts took 156 strokes and 72 of them were on the green.

WASHINGTON ROOKIE SEEING THE COUNTRY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Pitcher Ray Joyce, Washington recruit, is seeing the country.

He made the training trip with the Senators, was farmed to Minneapolis, thence to Memphis, returned to Washington and is now with New Haven, from which team Washington secured him in a draft.

MACK STILL ADMITS HIS CLUB WILL BE RUNNER-UP IN A. L.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—Connie Mack is about ready to hedge a bit on his prediction that the Athletics would finish second.

In making such a prediction, Mack based his hopes on much improved pitching. So far his club hasn't got it. Rommel is the only pitcher who has been effective.

After winning three straight, Rommel was knocked out in his fourth start by the Boston Red Sox. Lee Fohl's club, while it doesn't have much speed, packs a wallop and will make trouble for many a pitcher this summer.

"I have four pitchers, Harris, Naylor, Heimlich and Hasty, who have enough stuff to be winning pitchers in the American League, yet so far none has come through consistently.

"Naylor's great start last season caused me to believe that he had arrived. I am still banking on him to have a great year. Heimach has far more stuff than some of the pitchers rated as star southpaws in the American League. Hasty and Harris should win. The latter has the best curve ball in the American League.

"Rommel seems all set for a big year, but he must have assistance. Unless my pitching comes through for me, as I feel it should, my club may have considerable trouble making good my prediction that we would finish second."

FOURTEEEN NATIONS IN INTERNATIONAL RIFLE SHOOT TODAY

By the Associated Press.

RHEIMS, France, June 14.—The international rifle tournament, which precedes the Olympic competition at Chalons, opens here tomorrow. Fourteen nations are entered and, judging from the results obtained thus far in training the battle will be hotly contested.

Teams representing the United States, Argentine, France and Haiti have been on the ground for a week or 10 days to become accustomed to the ranges. They have been shooting excellent scores which if duplicated in actual competition are certain to leave all former records far behind. The Argentine and United States teams appear to be the favorites at present, although experts agree that it is impossible to predict the winner.

The team from Switzerland, which has just arrived, is another favorite, while Belgium, Norway and Finland, whose teams are due to arrive this evening, are also regarded as having a fair chance for victory.

The first event will be a 300-meter rifle competition commencing tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Spain and Portugal announced they would default in this event, owing to their rifles not having arrived. The guns are believed to be lost somewhere between the Spanish frontier and Rheims.

MARCUS HORSESHOE CLUB MEETS SOUTHWEST TEAM

The league leading Southwest team of the Municipal Horse Shoe League will meet the Marcus Avenue Horse Shoe Club this morning in the weekly round at the Fairground.

The Buster Browns are scheduled to meet the Fairgrounds while the Gus Klemmes and Lucidos of Granite City will meet in the other games.

The Buster Browns will also play off four postponed games with the Marcus Avenue Club and the Lucidos and Fairgrounds will play off 12 postponed games.

Triple A Wins From Puritans, Ties for Lead

Engineers Win Eighth Straight Victory—Freight Accounts Win.

The Fisher Bodies team defeated the Puritan team by a 6 to 5 score in 12 innings in the feature game of the Manufacturers' League yesterday. The game marked the first defeat of the season for the Puritans and with the Liberty-Central and Triple A teams winning their games caused a three-cornered tie for first place.

The Libery-Centrals won from the Wabash, 11 to 7. The Liberty team scored 10 runs in the first three innings.

Triple A won from the Sunlights by a 6 to 4 score. Both teams scored all of their runs in one inning. In the other game the Renards defeated the Rock Island team by a 10 to 1 score. Miller held the Rock Islands to four hits.

Railroad League.

The Mobile and Ohio team went into undisputed possession of first place by defeating the Frisco, 9 to 7, yesterday. A series of base hits, followed by a home run by Gell, in the fourth inning won the game. Bell, for the winners, went well until the eighth, when he permitted Frisco men to fill the bases and then forced in a run. Steggeman, his relief, put a stop to the threatened Frisco rally.

Errors in the first inning were largely responsible for the defeat of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. at the hands of the Katy outfit. Otherwise this game was well played, with several circus catches being made by players from both teams. The Katy team was out-hit, but they made the most of their wallops, playing errorless ball, besides.

Olympic Jumping Rule Says Feet Must Go First

Diving Over, Head Foremost, Prohibited in High Jump Event.

By Walter Camp.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, June 14. — There has been so much discussion, born of Olympic games enthusiasm over the fairness or unfairness of a high jump, that the readers of this column may be interested in knowing the exact wording of the rule, so that they may judge for themselves as to the fairness of the various performances.

"A fair jump," says the rule, "is one where the competitor has cleared the bar and when in so doing his head does not go over the bar before his feet, and is not below his buttocks, as and when the buttocks clear the bar. Neither diving nor somersaulting over the bar shall be permitted."

The reader may also see references to the "roll." This style of jumping was invented by Beeson and Horine out on the Pacific Coast. Formerly a high jumper ran practically directly at the bar and then took his spring off the back foot, throwing the forward foot over first and following with the other. This is generally known as "scissors jumping." In the "roll," the man jumps off the forward foot, throwing his body up first, the body being on a horizontal line, then bringing his foot up parallel and rolling over.

There was a great deal of fitness in the selection of Dayton as the scene of the National Public Links golf championship, which starts on the Hills and Dales Course on June 23. For Dayton is a golfing city of more than ordinary enthusiasms. It boasts a golfing population of some 6000 men and women; it has admirable and numerous golf courses, and it even boasts a local golf magazine.

This is Dayton's first national golf event, and it is certain that the visiting "bugs" will be regally entertained. Plans worked out for the week account for almost every minute of every day, leaving just enough time for sleep.

Ira McKee, second baseman of the Naval Academy baseball nine, has won his baseball "N" and thereby set a new record for future Admirals to shoot at. The baseball "N" is his third letter. He wears the football "N" with two stars and the basketball "N" with two stars. This is the largest total ever won by a midshipman.

It would indeed have been tough on McKee had the old single sport rule, which was advocated at several colleges not so many years ago, prevailed at Annapolis.

The Ed Leader stroke, which has proven its worth in the East in the last two years, will get another test next Friday—a test of its versatility.

Yale's powerful crew, having shifted from preparation for her annual four-mile race with Harvard, to preparation for the short race on the Schuylkill for Olympic honors, must now swing back to the four-mile pace—and must accomplish the shift in four days of training.

Yale took a chance in her decision to enter the Olympiad trials and it may prove disastrous in next Friday's race at New London. But the writer is inclined to doubt that it will. Shifts in pace can be made more readily by a Leader-coached crew than by the average boatload of sweep swingers.

GEORGE DUNCAN BEATS MITCHELL, AND WINS GLEN EAGLES TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

GLEN EAGLES, Scotland, June 14.—George Duncan, veteran British golf professional, today defeated Abe Mitchell, another noted golfing champion, by 8 and 7, in the deciding 36-hole match of the Thousand Guineas tournament.

This is the first time in his professional career that Mitchell has lost a 36-hole match. Duncan was invincible in today's play, reeling off frequent birdies and exhibiting a putting touch that was almost magic. He had a card of 66 for the first 18 holes.

Under bright blue skies 6000 golf loving Scots watched Duncan utterly crush his old comrade and rival. It was the first time in all their matches, whether of 18 holes or 36, Duncan has come away with Mitchell's scalp.

Mitchell played a sure and steady morning round of 71, yet when he went into luncheon he was five down. Duncan having set a new low record for the course which measures 6340 yards, and is regarded as the finest inland course in the British Isles. He was as brilliant after lunch as before.

10. In the other tilt, Beaver was the victor over Wellston, 19—4. In Division B Mt. Morish won from Polar Star, 6 to 1, while Magnolia and Good Hope battled to a 10 to 10 tie.

DONALD ANDERSON WINS STATE GOLF TITLE, DEFEATING WATTS 2 UP

derson, needing only a four to win the match, ran down his eight-foot putt for a birdie and made the final score two up.

It was a brilliant finish to the match, and there was no fluke about the victory. True, Watts ran into five stymies in the morning, three dead stymies and two half stymies. But that is part of the game, as laid down by the ancient golf nuts and being part of the game cannot detract from Anderson's glory just because they happened to be all against Watts.

Anderson's morning round showed a score of 77 to Watts' 81 and in the afternoon he shot 78 to match Watts' 75.

Medart Beats Held.

Eddie Held and Bill Medart played off the tie for the low medal prize yesterday afternoon. Medart stroked the course in 77 and beat Held by two strokes, convincing the golf followers that his showing in the district and state tournaments meant he had come to stay as one of the red hot title contenders in the St. Louis district.

ZEV, 1923 WONDER HORSE, UNPLACED IN BROOKLYN HANDICAP

Hephaistos Wins Feature Race at Aqueduct, With Sunsini in Second Place

Crushing Impost of 130 Pounds Proves Too Much for Hildreth's Champion of Last Season — Dunlin Finishes Third but Is Disqualified by Judges.

By George Daley
(Of the New York World Sport Staff.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—Zev made a bitter right to win the thirty-sixth renewal of the historic Brooklyn handicap before a shouting mob of over 20,000 men and women at Aqueduct today, but ran unplaced under his crushing impost of 130 pounds.

This wonder horse of a year ago gave way in the last furlong after sharing in the pacemaking with Prince of Umbria and Hephaistos, closing with a rush on the outside, under Johnny Maiben's strong handling, won this coveted turf classic in a whirling, driving finish with three other horses.

Hephaistos, the five-year-old son of Vulcain-Neva W., has ever been an honest and consistent horse. He had a pull in the weights today with 102 pounds up, and ran to the very top of his form. After breaking in a forward position he was outrun in the first quarter and for a time was far back, in eighth place. He began moving up approaching the far turn and by the time the long stretch was reached was not far behind the leaders, in sixth place.

At that point Zev and Prince of Umbria were stil fighting along in front, with Dunlin and Enchantment pressing them closely.

Hephaistos Comes Fast.

Inside the last furlong pole Dunlin took command, but just when it looked as if the four-year-old for which E. F. Cooney paid $20,000 three weeks ago would justify his purchase, Maiben brought Hephaistos up on the outside with a well-timed rush, to carry off the $10,000 purse, and to earn the glory of winning the Brooklyn handicap.

Hephaistos won by half a length with the fast closing Sunsini second, a scant three parts of a length in front of Dunlin, which beat Enchantment a head for third money. It was a great race and well up to the best traditions of the old-time fixture, which had its first running far back in 1887 at the old Gravesend track when Dry Monopol, Blue Wing and Hidalgo finished heads apart, in a furious finish.

Dunlin, unfortunately, was not allowed to reap the fruits of running third. After working his way to the front at the last furlong pole, when it looked as if he would carry off the rich prize he bore over toward the rail and in the opinion of the stewards interfered with Enchantment. For this he was disqualified, although McAtee did not lodge a claim of foul. This moved Enchantment up into third money, which worked to the advantage of those who fancied the Greentree stable's Rialto and Cherry Pie, as all three horses were coupled in the wagering.

Could Not Concede Weight.

In the last exciting furlong Sunsini dropped from the clouds to finish a strong running second.

Hephaistos ran the mile and a furlong in the good time of 1:50 4-5. It was a striking performance, although the time was well back of the track record of 1:49, established by Grey Lag in 1921.

Zev simply could not concede the weight, while Old Mad Hatter, his stable companion and winner of the Suburban handicap at Belmont Park, failed to go to his rescue when the struggle grew hottest in the last quarter.

Some questioned the wisdom of Sande in taking so much out of his mount in the first mile, but Zev is a free running horse which likes to have his own way and to the credit of the boy it must be said that once having taken his position he did everything possible to save something for the struggle through the last furlong.

Frank Brown was so elated over the victory that he could hardly talk, while Johnny Maiben, a modest fellow, contented himself with saying:

"I was glad to win a Brooklyn handicap. That horse is honest and gives everything he has and he was running so smoothly at the end of the stretch that I felt confident he would be fighting it out at the end."

PETERSON RUNS 217 IN TRIAL MATCH FOR NEW BALK LINE GAME

Charles C. Peterson, playing in the final block of 300 points at the proposed new 18.2 balk line game against Dr. Turner Friday night, ran his 300 points while the doctor was shooting 23. Peterson played sensational billiards before a large crowd, his high run being 217. He finished in six innings, for an average of 50.

Peterson found the new style of play not difficult enough for such men as Hoppe and Cochran. The play was tried out in an attempt to find a game that will place title-seeking professionals on a more even footing. By doing away with the square places at either end of the table, it was believed that almost all of the short table play would be eliminated, forcing the players to resort to general billiards thereby creating more interest in the game.

Peterson, Monday, will engage

COL. LYMAN T. HAY IS NAMED PRESIDENT OF FAIRMOUNT JOCKEY CLUB

Col. Lyman T. Hay, owner of the Hotel Jefferson and other hotels in the South will be president of the Fairmount Jockey Club and Allen T. Spivey, publisher of the East St. Louis Daily Journal, its vice president, J. F. Peck, Fairmount's general manager, announced Saturday night.

W. Frank Carter, Charles Lamp, Edward J. Bakewell, August A. Busch Jr., C. Bruce Head, Warren C. Anderson, Charles L. Geraghty, J. H. Rickman and Scott Greenfield are among the St. Louisans associated with the project.

Beside Spivey, prominent East St. Louisans who will be members are Frank Doyle, Joseph Maher Jr., Judge G. F. Stapleton, C. S. Broderick, Harry J. MacRoberts, E. J. Delmore, Phil H. Cohn and William P. Lantz. J. F. Edwards and N. S. Shoulders of Collinsville are also connected with it.

Spivey's acceptance of the vice presidency is held to indicate the present Illinois State administration's approval of racing conducted in proper manner, as Spivey is generally accepted as the down-state Republican "whip" for Gov. Len Small.

Grading and construction will start Tuesday, with the William H. Smith Co., builders of the Missouri State Life building and a number of municipal projects, in charge. The Smith company's crews completed the tract's survey a week ago. Legal adjustments held up actual construction until now.

Ferris Net Team Wins Club Match

Playing of Norton Features—Country Club Wins One Match.

The Ferris Tennis Club team scored a decisive victory yesterday at Triple A courts over the St. Louis Country Club in the inter-club tourney for the Warner Cup, when they annexed four out of the five scheduled matches. The Triple A-Forest Hills encounter was not played on account of wet courts and will be contested today.

Inasmuch as the Country Club team had defeated the Ferris racqueteers 3—2 last week, yesterday's result was somewhat of a surprise. Ferris' junior stars have been showing gradual improvement, however, in their match play and the steadying influence of B. I. C. Norton has aided a great deal.

In the feature match of the day, Norton and his protege, Clark Smith, defeated Joe Werner and Stacy Gamble quite handily. The second set in particular brought off some excellent rallies, and was not terminated until after the score had been deuced.

Summary of yesterday's matches:
Ferris 4, Country Club 1.

B. I. C. Norton, Ferris, defeated Joe Werner, Country Club, 6—2, 6—4.

H. Cushman, Country Club, defeated R. Dietrich, Ferris, 6—3, 5—7, 6—2.

Jake Lynn, Ferris, defeated J. Lionberger, Country Club, 6—3, 6—4.

Norton and Clark Smith, Ferris, defeated Werner and Gamble, Country Club, 6—1, 7—5.

Lynn and Brockmeyer, Ferris, defeated Country Club by default.

EPINARD IS COMING TO AMERICA IN JULY

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 14. — Pierre Wertheimer has canceled all Epinard's engagements in England and intends sailing with his famous horse direct to New York from Havre during the early part of July. Wertheimer said the horse is coming round first rate and has suffered no ill effects from the match race with Sir Gallahad and the other engagement wherein he met defeat by Premontre at Long Champ.

"My plans for my American trip remain unchanged," said M. Wertheimer.

Pilgrim Plays Matthews.

Pilgram and St. Matthews are scheduled to play today in the feature game of the Concordia League double-header at High School Field. Marting and Schierenbeck will probably do the pitching. In the second tilt, Zions opposes Bethlehem. Engler and Van Matre are scheduled to pitch. First game at 1:30 o'clock.

VOIGT, WASHINGTON PUBLIC LINKS CHAMPION, WINS SPRING TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—George Voight, Washington's public links champion, who will represent this city in the national public links championship tournament next week at Dayton, O. today won the Columbia Country Club's annual spring tournament by defeating Walter Tuckerman of Columbia, 3 and 2. In the semifinals, also played today, Voight won from Roland McKenzie, Columbia's boy wonder, by the same score.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14. — This city will make a bid for the Middle States regatta. Baltimore, through the Arundel Boat Club, also is in the field for the regatta, which is held annually on Labor day. Last year's Middle States was held on the Schuylkill and proved a big success.

DANISH DAVIS CUP TEAM DIVIDES TWO MATCHES WITH ITALY

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, June 14.—Despite the fears of Danish sporting circles that Denmark would be unable to win through the Davis Cup third round in competition with Italy honors were even this afternoon at the end of the first day's play. Baron de Morpurgo of Italy defeated Erik Tegner of Denmark in straight sets, 6—3, 6—1 6—2, and Axel Paterson of Denmark defeated Baron Colombo, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4.

The two Italians who played today form Italy's entire team, as Sabbadini and Serventi were unable to come to Copenhagen. Baron de Morpurgo is considered the most redoubtable opponent of the Danes. His footwork is excellent and it is recalled that he defeated the Hungarian ace, Von Kehrling, in the final of the Vienna tournament recently by 3 to 1.

Chicago Derby Field Greatest Of 1924 Season

Revival of Famous Turf Classic Inaugurated in 1880, Scheduled for July 12.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 14.—With the opening of Chicago's third great racing season in 25 years on July 3 at the Hawthorne track, the Middle Western metropolis is taking on somewhat of an old-time appearance.

Fifty-two days of racing have been arranged for Chicago this year, the first time such an elaborate program has been mapped out since famous old Washington Park closed in the early years of the twentieth century. From that compare favorably with those offered at other metropolitan tracks have been offered for the coming season and as a result the best grade of horses from the different sections of America are being shipped to compete for the rich prizes.

The Chicago Derby, first run at old West Side Park in Chicago in 1890 and won that year by Isaac Fonso, with the then famous Jockey Overton in the saddle, has been revived as a feature of the meeting season. It is to be run on Saturday, July 12, and will carry $5000 in added money.

Nellie Morse Entered.

The best 3-year-olds in America have been nominated for the derby, including Black Gold, winner of the Kentucky Derby; Nellie Morse, winner of the Maryland Futurity and Mad Play, who won the $50,000 Belmont stakes. Should all of these start, it will be the first running of these three 1924 headliners and the race is already attracting a tremendous lot of interest.

Other rich events that have been arranged are the $5000 Independence Day Handicap and the Labor Day Handicap carrying a like value. There will be daily features, the values of which will run from $500 to $2500, with no purse offered during the meeting of less than $1000.

The Hawthorne track, from which its day when racing started over there, has been entirely remodeled for the coming meeting. A $100,000 club house has been built, new stables and shed rows have been added and the plant in general beautified until it ranks among the best in the country at this time.

Many horses are already quartered there. Others are arriving daily as turf scenes, familiar to the closing of '23 years ago, are being enacted.

TWO ST. LOUISANS NAMED MEMBERS OF U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM

Murchison and Scholz Picked For the Dashes

Committee Selects 102 Athletes to Represent Country in Games at Paris.

PADDOCK IS ON SQUAD

19 Veterans of 1920 and One From 1912 on Team Which Sails Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 14.—Athletic stars of the East surpassed their rivals from other sections of the country and carried off nearly half of the places on the American Olympic track and field team, analysis of the selections tonight showed.

The Atlantic seaboard gained 49 of the 102 places while the Middle-west accounted for 32 and the Far West 18. The South scored only three times. The athletes are scheduled to sail Monday.

College performers carried off the honors in the rivalry with club stars by a margin of 53 to 44, with four school boys and a service representative also on the list.

Three others, including two service men and a college representative, were picked conditionally, thus making it possible that final decision may boost the team total to 105.

Nineteen veterans of the 1920 Olympic team, and one of the 1912 squad, Matt McGrath, are among the selections, but only seven of these were point scorers. McGrath, who won the hammer throw in 1912, and Charley Paddock, 100 meter victor in 1920, are the only members who have held Olympic championships.

So keen was the battle among the sprinters that the committee, after long deliberation, picked 10 of them for the team without placing them in their events at this time. All of those among the seven 100 meter and six 200-meter finalists were selected, in addition to Fred Lovejoy of the New York Athletic Club, who was shut out in the semi-finals of the longer dash.

Complete selections for the American Olympic track and field team, announced tonight by the American Olympic Committee, are:

CANADIAN AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY TO BE PLAYED AT TORONTO

TORONTO Ontario, June 14.—The Canadian amateur golf championship tournament, after an absence from Toronto of five years, returns this year and will be played over the Rosedale course the week of June 30. This will be the twenty-fifth renewal of this annual competition.

This championship has never been captured by an outsider, although several players from the United States have been entrants.

ST. LOUIS STARS WIN OVER DETROIT, 2 TO 1

The St. Louis Stars defeated Detroit yesterday at the Stars' park, thereby taking the first game of a series of four. St. Louis scored one in the fifth, also and another in the ninth, winning the game by 2—1.

Detroit has the lead in the Negro National League.

The second game of the series will be played at the Stars' park today.

Public Schools Fail to Decide Baseball Title

Unfavorable Weather Conditions Prevents Finals for Post-Dispatch Trophy.

A. E. Kindervater, director of physical culture for the public schools of St. Louis, announced last night that the usual elimination series and the final matches to decide the annual public school baseball championship would not take place this year, owing to the many interruptions of the schedule caused by bad weather.

The annual battle for the Post-Dispatch trophy and medals usually is completed before this date. Unusual rains have curtailed or delayed the schedules of all groups.

Following are the final standings of the various groups:

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE OFFICIALS PLAY THEIR ANNUAL BASEBALL GAME

The officers and league representatives of the Municipal Baseball Association will meet this morning in their annual baseball game at Grounds No. 6 in Forest Park. The two teams are captained by Charles Dailey and George Dempsey. Pollock and Dailey will form the battery for the Daileys while Dempsey and Vollmer will work for the Dempseys. The game is scheduled for 8:45 a. m.

Scholz, a Member of 1920 Olympic Team, Is Surprise of Tryouts

JACKSON V. SCHOLZ of St. Charles, Mo., former student at Soldan High School, St. Louis, and later star sprinter of the Missouri University Track and field team, is one of the surprises of the spring campaign.

Scholz while a member of the 1920 Olympic team, was just a second string performer. He was not expected to beat Murchison or Paddock at distances as great as 100 meters.

This year the sprints were thought to be between both Paddock and Murchison. Scholz, who has been in university and club athletics for over eight years, was not thought of. Then, unexpectedly, at the Yankee Stadium trials he lowered one record, and equalled another three times.

Yesterday he again lowered a world's record, the 200 meters, and ran a fine race in the 100 meters.

He is a member of the New York Athletic Club team.

American Poloists Star.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 14.—The American polo players, Stephen Sanford and Earl W. Hopping, playing Nos. 1 and 2 on the Eastcott, were stars in the match played today with the Seventeenth Lancers at the Ranelagh Club, Eastcott winning by 10 to 3.

Wimbledon Meet Opens Wednesday

Miss McKane Leads English Team Against American Invaders.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 14.—Only three members of the British team which meets the American women tennis stars in the international matches at Wibledon next Wednesday and Thursday have thus far been selected. They are Miss Kathleen McKane, Mrs. Geraldine R. Beamish and Mrs. R. C. Clayton, all of whom participated in the international team contest at Forest Hills last year.

The other two places on the British team are likely to be given to Joan Austin and Evelyn Colyer, bobbed-haired young girls who jumped and volleyed their way into the finals of the doubles at Wimbledon last July to the surprise and delight of the spectators, all of whom referred to them as "the kids" or "the children."

Miss Wills vs. Miss McKane.

It is likely that the two champions, Helen Wills of California and Miss McKane, will oppose as number ones of their respective sides, Mrs. Mallory taking number 2 position in the singles.

There will be seven matches, five singles and two doubles in the Wimbledon competition. Mrs. George W. Wightman, captain of the American team will not play in the singles but will pair with Miss Wills in the doubles. The other American doubles will consist of Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Miss Eleanor Goss.

The weather still remains cool. It was only fourteen degrees above freezing this morning, but the rains have ended after a long wet spell. The weather bureau is predicting warmer and brighter days next week, which prognostication is extremely welcome news to the shivering American visitors.

Course Closed to Public After Owner Is Ordered to Wait

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, June 14.

AFTER being ordered, by a crowd of golfers, to wait his turn on his own links, near Grimsby, last week, the Earl of Yarborough has ordered that the golf course in Brooklesby Park shall be closed to the public.

The incident occurred when the Earl arrived on the course for a round, and found a number of players waiting to drive off from the first tee. The Earl allowed many of the public to use the links, but hordes of people have been flocking to the course lately without obtaining the necessary permit, and the park has become littered with paper and the remains of al fresco luncheons.

Much damage has been caused by novices cutting up the greens, without attempting to 'replace the divots."

Wenzler Wins in Southern Tourney

Memphis Youngster Defeats Giddens, 3 and 2, in Golf Event Final.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 14.—Henry Robert Wenzler, known to the golfers of Dixie as Jack Wenzler, 21-year-old golf marvel from Memphis, Tenn., won the Southern amateur golf championship today, finishing 3 up and 2 to play over Nelson Giddens, also of Memphis, in the 36-hole finals.

The champion is a newcomer among major tournament players. He won impressively, marching straight on through various rounds and vanquishing in his swift rush to victory Perry Adair, winner of the Southern title last year, and Frank Ryan, Metropolitan and New Jersey champion.

Giddens simply did not have the experience or shots to equal Wenzler's startling game in the opinion of the galleries and experts who watched his work today. The new champion from every tee exhibited marvelous control and superb strength, he also possessed the faculty of coming through with sensational shots when super-golf was needed to win a hole.

A gallery estimated at more than 3000 followed the final today despite a hot sun 'n a cloudless sky.

for Comfort

Style illustrated is Lastlong Athletic.

The difference is in the fabric

If you like athletic style underwear you'll like the Lastlong kind better.

Instead of a hard woven, clammy cloth you get a fine, soft, non-irritating, elastic knitted fabric that absorbs perspiration.

Lastlong is loose-fitting, cool and comfortable. Made of the best featherweight, flat-knit cotton fabric produced in the U. S. A.

Size 40, athletic style weighs less than 6 ounces. What could be more comfortable?

Lastlong is obtainable in short sleeve or sleeveless three-quarter leg; athletic style suits; athletic shirts and drawers for men; boys' athletic suits. Popular prices.

If your dealer doesn't have Lastlong ask him to get some from his wholesaler.

FEUD DUEL VICTIM MAY DIE

Difficulty Between Ball and Colson Families in Kentucky.

By the Associated Press.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., June 14.—Probable fatal wounding of George Colson by Floyd Ball in a pistol duel in a drug store here late today marked a flare-up in the Ball-Colson feud. Both principals had figured in previous engagements between the opposing factions.

Ball was arrested and placed in jail. Reports from a hospital where he was taken were that Colson was "barely alive" as a result of four or five pistol bullet wounds. Probably the most notable encounter between members of the Ball and Colson families was a fight in the courthouse in Pineville in May, 1922. In that engagement, Ripley Ball was killed and Clay Colson, Frank Ball and John Hurst were wounded.

MOVE FOR REPEAL OF MISSOURI DRY LAWS

Anti-Prohibition Society Renews Efforts to Have State Follow New York's Example.

In the hope that 2¾ per cent beer will be legalized when Congress meets again in December, the Missouri Antiprohibition Society has renewed its efforts toward having the State prohibition laws repealed, such as already has been done in New York State.

Even though Congress voted beer back, its manufacture, sale and possession in Missouri would be illegal as long as the State bone-dry laws remained in effect. Likewise, the State prohibition enforcement machinery will exist as long as the State dry laws stay. Thus the antiprohibitionists hope to kill with one stone the proverbial pair of birds—to abolish State prohibition enforcement and to pave the way for beer's return.

Frederick Parks of Kansas City, superintendent of the Antiprohibition Society, is in St. Louis arranging the local campaign, which takes the form of obtaining sufficient signatures of voters to have the proposed repeal voted on. Parks says Secretary of State Becker assured him the repeal could be voted on at the November election if the necessary signatures—5 per cent of the voters in two-thirds of the congressional districts—were obtained by July 7.

It is estimated that a total of 49,000 signatures will be required. No trouble in getting them is anticipated, as Parks says 40,000 have been obtained since last fall. 15,000 of them in St. Louis. The local drive is expected to bring the St. Louis total up to at least 22,000.

John P. Penza, president of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association, will conduct the campaign for signatures here, with offices at 522 Wainwright Building. Petitions for enactment of a measure repealing all of the bone-dry statutes enacted in the State, 16 groups of statutory sections in all, will be circulated, beginning tomorrow.

COURT DENIES DR. MANNING PRIVILEGE OF BEING "POOR"

Admits Ability to Furnish Bond of $10,000 Without Fine, Judge Trieber Points Out.

Dr. Thomas S. Manning, convicted of violating the Harrison anti-narcotic act and sentenced Thursday by Judge Trieber to 10 years in the penitentiary, was denied permission yesterday to prosecute his appeal from the judgment and sentence as a poor person.

The cost of an appeal in a case such as Dr. Manning's, exclusive of attorneys' fees, is about $400. In his application to sue as a poor person Dr. Manning said he has not sufficient means to pay for the appeal.

In denying the application, Judge Trieber said Dr. Manning had signified his ability to gave a superdeas bond of $10,000 pending action on his appeal, and would have given it but for the provision inserted by the Judge requiring his sureties to guarantee the payment of a $6000 fine assessed by the court in addition to the penitentiary punishment and the costs of the case, and if able to do that then he should be able to pay the expenses of an appeal.

KIWANIANS ON WAY TO DENVER

Those Remaining at Home Will Observe "All Kiwanis Night Tomorrow.

Two special Pullmans left St. Louis last night carrying the St. Louis delegation to the eighth annual International Kiwanis convention, which will be held next week in Denver.

Members of the Kiwanis Club of St. Louis remaining at home, will observe the national "All Kiwanis Night," tomorrow night, with a dinner and entertainment at the City Club. Joining in with the other 1242 Kiwanis clubs in the United States and Canada, with a membership of 88,000, the program will be simultaneously observed, even the hour being synchronized. There will be a 15-minute period when an identical program will be carried out, consisting of a fellowship moment of silence, singing of a song dedicated to the organization and the reading of a message from Edmund F. Arras, president of the Kiwanis Club International. The St. Louis program will be broadcast by radio station WCK (Stix, Baer & Fuller) from 7:20 to 7:40 p. m.

ST. LOUIS RANKS LOWEST FOR U. S. BOND SUBSCRIPTION

Federal Reserve District Gives $8,441,500 for Certificates of Indebtedness.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The St. Louis Federal Reserve District subscribed less than any district in the country for the issue of 2¾ per cent Treasury certificates of indebtedness, dated June 16 which will mature Dec. 15 of this year according to a Treasury announcement today. The St. Louis district subscribed $8,441,500 and was allotted $2,572,000 worth of the certificates. Except to the Treasury this was the lowest allotment made.

The Kansas City district subscribed $12,650,500 and was allotted $3,956,500 worth of certificates. The entire country subscribed $609,192,500 from which allotment for $193,065,500 was made. Of this sum $124,608,400 represents allotments on subscriptions for which Treasury certificates maturing June 16, 1924, or Treasury notes maturing June 15 were tendered in payment, the announcement said. This was the lowest paying security issued by the Government for 15 years but was oversubscribed four times.

The Best Investment You Can Make

Calvin Coolidge Says:—

"We need homes in which home life can reach its finest levels, and in which can be reared happy children and upright citizens."

Herbert Hoover Declares:—

"The profoundest influences of early childhood are those of the family circle. The warmest memories of later years center in the home."

Warren C. Flynn, Esq., Mayor of University City, Writes:—

"The development by you of the University Hills Subdivision in the heart of University City on the plan now so well under way, is very pleasing to me as Mayor of the city. I believe this district will be a beauty spot for residences which will reflect credit on the community as well as yourselves."

W. W. Butts, Esq., Realtor, States:—

"I consider University Hills the best located, most convenient and the prettiest subdivision that has been opened up in any territory adjacent to the City of St. Louis. As a resident of University City, I am proud of this development."

We Recommend for Your Inspection THE HOMESITE SUPREME

COUNT PALFFY"S TREASURES OF ART UP FOR AUCTION

Napoleon's Bed in $2,000,000 Collection of Late Hungarian Magnate.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PRAGUE, May 27.—A part of the famous art collection of the Hungarian magnate, Count Palffy, who died in 1908, will be sold at auction this month. The treasures which are stored in the four Palffy castles are valued at $2,000,000.

Among the articles to be put on sale are Napoleon's bed, the furnishings of Maria Theresa's drawing room, two Rubens, a series of old Dutch masters and the famous "Head of Christ" by Guido Reni.

Another sale will take place in the autumn and will consist largely of porcelains.

Leo Becker and wife; a six-family tenement 721-23 Lami street for Ferd. M. Pfeiffer and wife to a client of Selbertz Realty & Investment Co.

M'DONALD REPORTS LEASE OF 3 NEW TOBIN BUILDINGS

John E. Tobin, president of the John D. Tobin Real Estate and Investment Co., has erected, at a cost of $70,000, three two-story business buildings with separate heating plants, electric elevators, and all modern conveniences, covering lot 70x109 feet, at 1510-1512 and 1514 Pine street.

The buildings have been leased through the McDonald Real Estate Co. to the following parties: 1510 Pine street to the J. E. Barbour Co., thread manufacturers of Paterson, N. J., and 1512 Pine street to the Foamite-Childs Co. of Utica, N. Y. 1514 Pine street to Crown Electrical Supply Co. of St. Louis.

The buildings will not be ready for occupancy until July, but were leased from the plans. There is tendency for business to move west on Pine street as the erection of the Bell Telephone Co. building on the block bounded by Pine, Chestnut, Tenth and Eleventh streets necessitates tenants in this block to secure new quarters.

Predictions are that Pine, Chestnut and Olive streets will develop rapidly in the next few years.

BUILDING AND LOAN LEAGUE IS STARTED

New Organization With Charter From State Replaces Former Unchartered One.

The St. Louis Incorporated League of Building and Loan Associations completed its organization last Wednesday at the American Hotel by electing A. F. Leonhardt, president; R. J. Richardson, vice president; James L. McQuie, second vice president, and E. A. Kamp, secretary and treasurer, to serve for the ensuing fiscal year. It was the June monthly meeting of the body.

The incorporated league as it is now constituted was chartered by Secretary of State Becker last April, it succeeding the former St. Louis League of Building and Loan Associations, a body which was not incorporated. President Leonhardt was president of the old league, which now passes out of existence, and Richardson was vice president. The membership of the committees on publicity and advertising, legislation, new members and civic cooperation will be named in a day or two by President Leonhardt and officially announced at the July meeting of the league.

Building activities as they exist in St. Louis and the immediate vicinity were reviewed, and every association in attendance reported a heavy demand for funds from members for home building. While the unfavorable weather has retarded the completion of homes which were begun earlier in the year, it was announced that the domicile building energies during the remainder of the year will establish a new record.

Building and loan associations of the city and county now members of the incorporated league which had representatives in attendance are: Lafayette Mutual, Washington, American, United Railways, St. Louis, Hamiltonian, Economy, Midwest, Real Estate, Kirkwood, General Hancock, Equality, Mount Olive and the Pulaski. Other associations which were members of the former league and which have affiliated or intend to do so by the time the July meeting is held are: The Bohemian-American, "Slovan," Columbia, Conservative, Croatian-American, Farm and Home, City, Cupbles, Gas and Electric, Midland, Missouri, Nickel Savings, Parnell, State Savings, Security, Tower Grove and Southwestern, Utility, Dividend Plan and the Webster Grove. These associations are all members of the Missouri State League of Building and Loan Associations.

HARRIS-WEINBERG REALTY CO. REPORTS LEASES AND SALES

The Harris-Weinberg Realty Co., 1012 Chestnut street, report the following sales: Filling station and two stores, southeast corner Sarah and North Market leased to the Texas Co. for Mandel Fry and Isadore Fry; two stores at 3209-11 Ivanhoe, sold to A. M. Washauer; one of the stores was leased for a long period to Kroger Grocery Co.; 1571-15 Grevois, two stores, sold to a client of the Brinkman Realty Co.; filling station and two stores at Clara and Terry, sold to H. Glitt and H. Frad; 4455 Page avenue to Charles and Katherine Cowen; 4458 Page avenue to Henry Shalin and wife½ 2224 South Third street, to John D. Frick; 1434 N. Thirteenth street to Sophie Grossman.

NEW QUARTERS LEASED BY THREE CONCERNS

The J. W. Schloemann Leather Co. has taken a long lease of the four-story and basement building at 23 South Fourth street. Alterations and improvements are to be made. The Schloeman company has been located at 725 North Eleventh street for 20 years, but was forced to seek larger quarters.

The Carroll Furniture Co. has leased the two-story building at 1715 Walnut street for a warehouse and stockroom.

The Winship Boit Co. of Wakefield, Mass., has leased the sixth floor in the building at 1517-19 Washington avenue for an office, salesroom and stockroom.

All parties in these transactions were represented by Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

800 CLUB SITES BEING OFFERED AT AUCTION

Leonard Walton and son of Louisville, Ky., with the assistance of the Mottaz Land Co. of St. Louis, are offering at auction 800 club sites on the Meramec and Big Rivers about one mile southwest of Eureka, Mo., on the House Springs road and at the Big River Bridge known as the Radeacker-Roques bridge.

There are numerous beaches on the property, swimming, boating, fishing, plenty of spring water, natural forest trees and shrubbery with picturesque scenery.

A number of these lots will be given away free to prospective house builders as an inducement to build the vicinity up as rapidly as possible.

NEW YORK June 14.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Renewed activity and strength in the markets confirm the view that they had been thoroughly liquidated. As there has been no particular change for the better in the industrial situation, it may be inferred that the rally has been due largely to the extraordinarily easy money market and the accumulation of investment funds. Available supplies of bonds having been reduced to a level at which fresh buying caused sharp advances, investors have turned their attention to the better classes of stocks. Some of this buying undoubtedly has been in anticipation of the distributions of interest and dividend payments which come with the turn of the half year. In addition, the adjournment of Congress has removed a restraint which had affected investment buying. Congress having failed to pass hostile legislation, railroad stocks have been bought with more confidence. The firm stand of the Republican convention behind President Coolidge also has removed another uncertainty. That an accumulation of buying should be released by such a combination of circumstances is only natural.

Prewar Money Market.

"Meanwhile the money market has dropped back to prewar levels and actually is below that at London. The heavy gold imports, which are swollen by interest payments on the British debt, the fall in commodity prices, the diminishing supplies of short term paper and the reaction in business, have combined to produce a condition which is startingly different from that which prevailed during the depression of 1923. It is small wonder that the Federal Reserve Bank has reduced its discount rate to the lowest on record. The reserve banks themselves are contributing to the current ease. As their discounts fall and as the supply of acceptances diminishes, they are striving to maintain the volume of credit which they are extending to the country. They are doing this by purchasing Treasury paper and so keeping their earning assets from dropping. In taking the Treasury notes and certificates out of the market they diminish the supply of short-term paper which is available to the private banks and other enterprises or institutions possessing idle funds. These funds seek utilization elsewhere and so drive down rates. The reserve banks, in other words are helping to create an easier market by their open market policy and then are following down that market with their discount rate. The reaction in industry has gone far enough, however, to justify rather vigorous attempts at assistance.

"That industry has, in fact, curtailed radically is abundantly apparent from the condition of the iron and steel trade and of the equipment business, and from an inspection of the unemployment figures. The reaction has been surprisingly sharp and severe. It seems that, as usually is the case, the size of stocks of materials has been underestimated. Instead of being below normal, they seem to be greater than average. Possibly one explanation of the misconception is that retailers in many instances have succeeded in making manufacturers carry their stocks for them. The stocks, nevertheless, exist. Meanwhile the weather continues unfavorable. While the situation plainly is not satisfactory, it would be a mistake to become too pessimistic. The building boom does not appear to have lost all its strength as yet. Sooner or later, the weather is bound to improve. Rising one. It is perfectly clear that the period of time during which the buying of steel products can continue at only 20 per cent of capacity is strictly limited.

Rally in Wheat Prices.

"One encouraging event of the past week is the rally in wheat prices on the Government crop report. With approximately 100,000,000 bushels less wheat indicated than at this time last year the price of the commodity rallied over 8 cents. Such a gain means much to the farmer. Ordinarily a great loss in production would be considered a calamity. With the existing wheat situation it is a blessing. Canadian crop, furthermore, promises to fall below the tremendous yield of last year. The season still is young and the crop may yet improve greatly. If, however, the grain growers receive reasonably good prices for their products this fall, the economic outlook will be greatly improved."

"Stock market values generally held firm today with trading moderately active. Announcemnt at the opening of the market of a 50-cent reduction in the price of Eastern grades of crude oils brought a mild selling wave into the oil shares, but these issues were not greatly upset and the selling did not become general. Railroad stocks again gave evidence of accumulation, while numerous industrial specialties were bid up to new high levels on the movement. While this was going on, however, profit-taking in scattered stocks brought some lossse. Bonds enjoyed another strong and active market.

"A decrease of three millions in surplus reserve reported by the Clearing House leaves that item standing at $36,000,000. An increase of 122.4 millions in demand deposits was accompanied by a rise of 151.6 millions in loans and discounts. Reserve of the member banks in the Federal Reserve Bank rose $13,000,000, while circulation increased moderately.

Exchange Market Quiet.

"Foreign exchanges again were quiet and firm trading taking on the character of a midsummer half holiday. Such interest as existed was confined almost solely to French francs. Following further improvement in London, where the market closed before the opening on this side, francs moved up 11 points to 5.36 cents. Actual business transacted even in this currency was small. Belgian francs moved in sympathy with French exchange and sterling was ¼ of a cent higher at $4.31½. With the exception of Japanese yen, which weakened 10 points to 40¾ cents, other foreign currencies were virtually unchanged on the day.

NUMBER OF NEW HIGHS ON CURB DURING WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Many strong features developed in trading on the curb exchange the past week, a number of stocks moving up to new high records. Hazeltine was especially prominent in this group moving up two points to above 34 on continued accumulation. Duhilier also sold at a new high on its heavy dealings. Lehigh Valley Coal law which was passed at a new high on its heavy dealings. Lehigh Valley Coal law which was passed at a new high on its heavy dealings. Gillette safety razor had the widest range advancing 7 points to 280.

The utility stocks continued extremely active, Appalachian Power ranged from 80 to 85 and Commonwealth Power 86 to 90. Lehigh Power was a feature Friday when it sold above 69 against 65 the low price for the week. Adirondack Power moved up from 21½ to 24. Hudson In-

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, June 14.—The Summer Street wool markets closed the week quietly, but on a more hopeful note. Reports from Jefferson, Tex., indicate that growers of fine wool there are showing a willingness to accept offers of 46 to 48c rather than withhold their wool.

LOSSES RECORDED BY HOGS DURING WEEK

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Year ago.
Cattle and calves	88,802	26,201	23,421
Hogs	92,510	95,404	78,531
Sheep and lambs	20,655	15,298	24,754
Mules	437	482	437
Totals	130,404	137,385	125,143

Hogs are some of the plainer grades of stock closed lower for the week at St. Louis National Stockyards, while other classes finished about steady. Best clipped lambs, prices for which were 25c advance. Combined receipts were moderate, the six-day offering numbering 130,000 head. Last of this total cattle arrived made up 22,893, or a smaller supply of this class than the previous week. Most steers started the week on a strong basis, although this initial strength was lost in later trading. Closing prices were mostly in medium and native offerings of grass grassers and 25c lower in the native classes. The bulk of the native steer supply cashed at $8 to $10.75. Common kinds varied down to $6 and best droves cashed at $10 to $10.50. Yearlings were also off, which there was a $12.75 clean-up sale, cleaned at $12.75. Light steers and heifers showed steady trend on the latter days, although the week's range was 25c to 50c lower. Some of the plainer kinds, however, were 15c to 25c lower. Top yearlings were $10.50 for a common youth. Cows and bulls were 25c to 50c lower, with the bulk during the week $4.50 to $6.50. Low end making $4 and the top is quoted at $7.50. Canner and cutter cows likewise were steady to lower. Cutters are quoted at $3.50 and canners at $2.25 to $2.75. Bulls stand an advance in one stage of the week, but closed with the advance all lost. Some of the plainer kinds, which were 15c to 25c lower. Top sausage bulls sold at $6.25, with the bulk of sales $5.50 to $6.00. Calves were numerous at 30 to that figure. Butcher cows were about steady, the bulk during the week $4.50 to $6.50, with a few good to choice kinds $7 to $7.50. Low end making $4 and the top is quoted at $8.50. Canner and cutter cows likewise were steady

Bible Colporteurs, 'Best Salesmen in the World,' Work for a Bare Living

More Than 30,000,000 Bibles Are Sold Every Year by These Missionary Agents, Who Carry Best-Selling Book

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 13.—"It may surprise you to know that the best-selling book in the world, year after year, is the Bible," says E. E. Wilson, writing in the June issue of Farm and Fireside. "In eight years, Harold Bell Wright's books, the second-best sellers, have only sold 10,000,000 copies, whereas in that time more than 240,000,000 Bibles have been sold. More than 30,000,000 Bibles are sold every year.

"The Bible has been translated into 770 languages. 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' is translated into only 23 languages.

"Back in the thirteenth century, seven hundred years ago, there were only a few Bibles in existence. They were so rare that they were chained to big pulpits in the cathedrals, and professional readers, of whom there weren't many either, read to the public out of them. A Bible then cost $25,000 to $30,000. Today, anyone can buy a Bible for a few cents. The American Bible Society of New York recently announced it had received an order for 1,500,000 Bibles, to be sold for one cent apiece.

"It is interesting to note that the first book ever printed on a printing press, several centuries ago, was a Bible; and one of these first Bibles recently sold to a collector in New York for $50,000, the highest price ever paid for any book.

The Persons Who Sell Them.

'But the most interesting thing about this Bible business is the men and women salesmen. They are the best salesmen in the world because they believe so strongly in their product, and sell it at a fair price. They are not called salesmen, but colporteurs, which means burden bearers. Ninety-one of them are scattered over the United States, representing the American Bible Society, Astor Place, New York City. Part-time colporteurs number 191, and 450 others give some time to the work each year.

"These colporteurs are not overpaid by any means. None of them earns more than $100 a month, and very few of them that. All of them could earn much more selling something else, but prefer to take less pay and sell Bibles. For instance, William Kowalik of Chicago sold Bibles in nine languages, all of which he read and spoke fluently, for $70 a month. He is now selling insurance at $50 a week because his Bible firm decided to cut expenses and laid him off.

Long-Suffering Agents.

"These colporteurs are the most persistent and long-suffering people in the world. They are frequently abused, cursed, and beaten in the places they go throughout the country where they are not welcome. One of them, Wright A. Sulliman, who has sold Bibles all over the United States, recently said of this phase of his work:

"'Ridicule is the hardest thing I have to combat in selling Bibles. It's hard to be made fun of. I've had doors slammed in my face; I've had a gang bully break up a meeting I was holding, and I could stand it; but when a paper bag, filled with water, was dropped on me while I was conducting a street meeting and my audience went off into guffaws of laughter, I—well, I won't say I enjoyed it.'

"Today the presses of many lands turn out upward of 5,000,000 copies of the Scriptures annually to be sold by Sulliman and his fellow colporteurs for the American Bible Society. This organization has circulated over 156,000,000 copies of this book in more than 175 languages and dialects during its 108 years of existence.

"Not only is the organization the largest publisher of a single book in the United States, it is also the only publishing house that does not need to consider the danger of flooding the market. It is a non-profit organization.

"To the farthest corners of the earth go the colporteurs of the American Bible Society. They sell from door to door, and in all sorts of unusual, unexpected and unique ways. Sometimes they rent a stall in a Filipino market place or erect a tent in the courtyard of a Confucian temple in order to catch the passing trade of the natives as they come to buy provisions or flock on a feast day to a sacred shrine. In Siam there is a floating store in the unique form of a Bible boat, which winds in and out through the sluggish streams of the country, peddling its wares.

"These colporteurs journey to the four corners of the earth, down the highways and along the byways of civilization, visiting the homes of the rich and poor, the dweller in the crowded city and the peasant in his lonely hut.

"In South America the colporteur often resorts to a mule, strapping his pack of books to the back of the plodding beast as he goes about the lands. It was the Rev. Mr. Cobie in Japan who devised a rude cart to be pulled by the willing coolies, and after he had packed his Bibles thereon he found that there was also room for himself as well. Thus was invented the famous Chinese jinrikisha.

Campaign in Philippines.

"One colporteur put over a campaign in the Philippines during which 40,000 copies were sold. The drawing card was the substitution by the colporteur of American-made movies for Filipino-made cock fights, the price of admission being nothing less than the purchase of a Bible.

"The colporteur sells to everyone in this country the purchasers include the groceryman, ashman, and the gardener, the Jew and Gentile the Filipino butler and the French maid.

"Not every product could be sold alike to a passenger through the window of a Pullman car and a few moments later to a brakeman while he was sitting on the cowcatcher of a slowly moving train.

"On a busy day the colporteur makes good use of his noon hour, for, placing a stack of Bibles by his plate on a lunch counter, it is not an unusual occurrence to dispose of them by the time he has finished his meal. And sometimes, in a section where produce is more plentiful than coin of the realm, a Bible will cheerfully be exchanged for a basket of berries or a bushel of beans.

"Along the water front in Brooklyn, Staten Island, and New York Harbor the Bible salesman uses a motor boat for taking his wares to 'those who go down to the sea in ships.'"

Sold From a Baby Buggy.

"On the streets of a western city an outstanding figure is the vendor of best sellers who has variously used, for conveying his stock in trade, a wheelbarrow, a small portable booth, and a baby buggy! Through rural sections of the Middle West a familiar sight is the colporteur's wagon which somewhat resembles a gypsy van.

"Out at Coney Island, the famous summer playground of the East, the 'Bible Guy' is a well-known figure, his booth, which attracts large throngs of pleasure seekers, wearing a sign which states:

"'Satan Trembles
When He Sees
The Weakest Saint
A-reading These (Bibles)'

"Some of these colporteurs make selling records that would be envied by a salesman in any other line of business, whether the product he were offering the public were flivvers, safety razors, or wrist watches.

"One of the most successful colporteurs upon the staff of 2700 in the service of the American Bible Society is G. A. Perkins of the Southwestern Agency, who has been with the organization for nine years. During this period Mr. Perkins has traveled 32,000 miles in 12 different states, disposing of 132,000 volumes of Scripture in 32 different languages.

In the Arizona Desert.

"'I have worked,' said he, 'on the border of Mexico, crossed the deserts in Arizona, been among the Black Hills of South Dakota, worked among the lumberjacks of North Minnesota, and during those 10 years on the firing line I have made the distribution of 21,000 Bibles, 40,000 Testaments, 71,000 Gospels, or a total of 132,000 volumes in 32 different languages, and in 12 different states. Thousands of Bibleless homes have been furnished with the Word.

"'For the lack of money I have sometimes slept in old store buildings, in church belfries. Sometimes I have had to live on 15-cent meals, and oftentimes just two meals a day. Sometimes I have not had enough food to nourish the natural body. I have walked many times until I would stagger.

"'About five years ago I told one of the officials of the American Bible Society that I wanted to go to the hardest place they had, and he said, 'That is New Orleans.' I said, 'I want to go.' He said, 'They will set the dogs on you down there.' I said again, 'I want to go.' About two years later I came.

Salary $75 a Month.

"In order that a subdepository might be established in this city, where there is more Bible destitution than in any city in the United States, my salary was reduced to $75 per month. I pay $32 of this for house rent. That leaves me $43 to support my wife and myself, and sometimes I pay a part of this out to help others.

"No one knows what a Bible missionary is up against, unless he has been on the firing line himself. Last week a man cursed me and called me vulgar names when I gave him a Gospel.'

"Another successful Bible salesman is the Rev. J. P. Welliver of Northern Minnesota. Amusing as well as tragic things happen to these Bible salesmen. An incident told by Mr. Welliver will illustrate:

"'In one neighborhood I sold a Bible to a young man who took it home and began to read it aloud to his mother. She shortly asked him where he got that book, and he told her he got it from me. "Well, it's just like Welliver," she replied, "to write that stuff and send it out here for us to read." This is perhaps my best compliment in 20 years.'

For the Literacy Test.

"The Bible is the first book that the immigrant to America sees when he lands at Ellis Island, this volume having been chosen by the Department of Labor for the literacy test which every newcomer must pass.

"Today the Bible is said to be available to seven out of every ten people in the world in the language they can understand. It is the only book in practically every known tongue; and it is the world's best seller year after year."

STRANGE TALES OF WEIRD BEASTS IN ARCTIC REGION

Great Tract Under Exploration, Some Say, May Be Home of Mastodon Herds.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

NENANA, Alaska, May 16.—The unknown Arctic region between the Colville and Porcupine Rivers, where Dr. Philip S. Smith has led a party of the United Geological Survey on a perilous mission of exploration, is the locale of strange tales, spread among fur traders and gold hunters by the native Eskimos and Indians.

The territory which the Smith party has gone to investigate and chart appears in the maps largely as a blank space. Certain rivers, like the Colville, never have been traced to their headwaters, and what in the way of topography and resources lies within an area of 35,000 square miles has been a matter of conjecture.

Reports have trickled out of the Polar Basin that great lakes of oil were to be found in this wilderness. But the Eskimos and Indians tell stranger stories. They say the land is haunted by weird beasts, some of such immense stature that they leave tracks as large as dinner plates. It is said that no Indian can be persuaded to penetrate the region, even though tempted by the promise of abundant fur. The lore has it that there are great areas of hot springs, where the snow never falls and the streams never freeze.

Some of the more credulous of the white men, linking the tales with their scientific reading, contend that there still may lurk in the far North remnants of the mastodon herds that have left their bones and ivory in almost every stream bordering the lower Yukon River.

Jazz Rage in Germany.

By the Associated Press.

HEIDELBERG, Germany, June 14.—Jazz has become such a rage in Germany that musical students have been searching through the works of old masters with the hope of finding inspirations which might be modernized. They contend they have found traces of airs very suggestive of the jazz of today in some gypsy tunes of Robert Alexander Schurmann, one of Germany's best known composers of the old school.

"G.O.P. Convention and Platform Proud as a Plug Hat and as Futile"--William Allen White

Highly Respectable, but Not Important, Is Kansan's Estimate of Cleveland Meeting —Prohibition of Blocs Prize "Bone."

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE,
Noted Kansas Editor and Publicist.

NEW YORK, June 14.

SEEN in the perspective of 48 hours after the adjournment, the Republican national convention looms up as proud as a plug hat and as futile. It is highly respectable, but not important, this ticket and candidates, together one and inseparable. The candidates run the gamut from frigid New England conservatism to hard-boiled Mid-Western reaction. The platform is nondescript where it should be definite, and definite where it will do no good to be cocksure.

For instance, to illustrate, the planks on the tariff probably mean that the Tariff Commission shall investigate schedules and the President increase or decrease tariff rates in accordance with the facts. The platform as read by the chairman in the convention spoke of decreasing the rates if investigation warranted it, but the printed platform only speaks of increasing the rates, and nothing is said about the Tariff Commission doing the investigating. Yet the plank follows the general lines of those drafted by the liberal members of the Tariff Commission.

On transportation nothing definite is outlined. Senator Capper or Senator Brookhart could stand on the Republican transportation plank and defy the East. A whole agricultural bloc could be organized on the railroad plank. It seems to mean something but it is just words. The convention went wild over Mr. Mellon, author of the Mellon income tax plan. But the platform left the Western insurgents free to vote against any Mellon plan as often as they please. The child labor amendment is merely "submitted to the states for consideration." It is not indorsed. Anyone can take any position upon child labor and be a Republican, as he may take any position on the labor question, and be a Republican.

Stand on World Court.

The most definite stand taken on any question is taken upon the question of foreign relations. There the Republicans are rather definitely put back to the position of the reservationists of 1919. We are told that America will not join the League, and no sane American desires America to join the League as it now is constituted, but no prohibition from joining the League, if it mends its way and its constitution, is held in the Republican platform. More than that we are recommended to join the World Court which is being organized by the League. Still more than that, we are pledged to recognize the League in the next four years as Presidents Harding and Coolidge have recognized it by co-operating with its various commissions, and considering its reports.

The League plank is definite in its silences, in what it does not say. It leaves little room for the irreconcilable to function in Congress as a Republican. He will have to organize his own little bloc.

But there again the one absolutely definite plank in the platform prohibits blocs. And much good it will do! It seems to be aimed at the Westerners who sallied out and joined with the Democrats to secure legislation demanded by their constituents. That plank was the prize plug hat in the stock. When the platform makers had written that plank they felt they had said something. As a matter of fact that is the least stable of their declarations. The kind of men it is aimed at will laugh at it. Imagine Brookhart of Iowa, for instance, paying the slightest attention to that plank. He wants his job. He will know what he thinks his constituents want him to do that he may keep his job, and all the planks aimed against blocs in the world will not affect him. He will be a Republican and a radical in spite of the conservative ticket and the nondescript platform.

Trespass Notices Futile.

There is no way to keep Western Republicans from voting for men on the Republican ticket if they like the men, and there is no way to keep those men when they get back to Congress, from voting as they think their constituents desire them to vote. Moreover, there is no way to keep these Western Congressmen from organizing outside of the Republican party to get things done in Congress which will please their constituents. Passing funny trespass notices against cyclones in Republican platforms will be futile no matter how respectable it may look, and how safe the trespass notice may read.

Republicans of the West, in their tendency to stand for the needs of their section, and to oppose things which may be needed by other sections of the country, which are bad for the West, are ignorant of the deep-seated feeling of the Western Republicans against Eastern party control, perhaps this opinion will come as news. Of course, there are many Republicans out West who agree with the present leadership of the party. They are the types that belong to the organization, and attend conventions. But the voting is done by majorities who are opposed to the domination of conservatism. In every State west of the Mississippi large groups of Republicans will pay not the slightest heed to its antibloc plank of the platform, and will go right ahead electing men to Congress who will vote for the things which the Western Republicans demand. Much good it will do to make snoots at them in the platform. The trouble with making snoots at the Westerners in the platform is that unless you have a gun it only spoils your face.

How They Hold Their Jobs.

Capper, Brookhart, Norris, Borah, La Follette, Ladd, and all Missouri Valley Republicans who voted with the Democrats when they felt like it will keep right on doing it. For after all, to put it upon its lowest terms, that is how they hold their jobs. In addition to which consideration, they and a majority of their constituents believe that these votes were properly cast. A strong opinion in the West believes these things for which the men in the various blocs stand for. They actually think they are right, and so long as this is a free country and so long as the right of free discussion holds in the country about the only way to stop these bloc Senators and Congressmen from voting outside the party caucus is to come out and talk to the people, convince them that they are wrong.

But it is a bad premise for discussion to assume that the men who have voted in line with the common belief out West should be read out of the party. That will achieve nothing.

The West will not surrender. It will smile tolerantly at the plug hat talk of the platform and continue to vote the Republican ticket sending men to Congress who will go their own way. The West feels that it has the same right to its brand of Republicanism as the East. It does not believe in Democratic waste, and sees no hope of a third party. It feels that the fighting is too good inside the Republican party, and results too easily obtained to go voting the

Herriot, the New Premier of France

CLOSE-UP OF RADICAL SUCCESSOR OF RICHELIEU, TALLEYRAND, GAMBETTA AND CLEMENCEAU

"I Am Not a Radical or a Socialist, but Just a Democrat," Says Man in Baggy Clothes and Thick-Soled Shoes — Counts Himself One of the Masses, but He Is a Literary Man of Ability and Is One of the Immortals.

EDOUARD HERRIOT.

PARIS.

IT is a distinguished line which Edouard Herriot joins as Premier of France. The list of Prime Ministers includes some of the most famous names in the history of France and the world.

Into this position before Herriot, have come and worked and gone out of it Sulky, who gave form to the Government under Henry IV; Colbert, who founded the financial system, and Mazarin, the master of foreign affairs. Later came Richelieu, poet, priest, soldier and consummate diplomat.

Under the great Napoleon was Tallyrand, who pitted his wits successfully against a hostile Europe for many years and who sold Louisiana to the United States. More modern names are Favre, Tiers, Simon, Gambetta, the patriot, Delcasse, who riled the Kaiser at Agadir; Briand, Poincare and Clemenceau, who kept the will to win alive in France through the dark years of the World War.

Herriot is a big man, with great square shoulders, a large head, a turned-up nose, a thick dark moustache and crisp, black short-cut hair which comes well down on his forehead. A Parisian magazine that recently asked its readers to indicate by vote the 20 most polite members of the Chamber of Deputies found Herriot's name at the head of its list.

But politeness in this case is not to be confounded with elegance. On the contrary, Herriot wears loose-hanging clothes and thick-souled shoes, and is the antithesis of the dandy. Nevertheless, his simplicity of manner and his natural frankness and cordiality are happily united with a high literary, artistic and intellectual culture. The American visitor who might be a little astonished to find that the apartment of M. and Mme. Herriot at Lyons was situated over a cafe would perhaps be scarcely less surprised, on entering the apartment, by the rich collections of old books and of tastefully chosen paintings which ornament it.

Not the Least False Modesty

Edouard Herriot's father was a Major in the French Army, but the family is by no means aristocratic. Some one in the Chamber one day reproached Herriot, the leader of the Left, with having once accepted favors from Maurice Barres, a famous leader of the Nationals. Without the slightest false modesty, Herriot at once explained:

"My aunt was cook in Barres' house. I was then studying on a scholarship in the Louis-le-Grand High School. I used to go to see my aunt on Sundays, and when she had finished serving, we would eat together in the kitchen. I think it was Maurice Barres who gave me my first overcoat."

Herriot was born in Troyes in 1872, his father being in garrison there. After going to school in various garrison towns and finishing high school in Paris, he entered the higher normal school of the University of Paris at the age of 19 and was graduated at the head of his class three years later. While doing his military service he read the Greek and Latin classics and wrote a book called "Philo and the Jew," which was crowned by the French Academy.

From Teaching to Politics.

Herriot began his teaching career as professor of rhetoric at Nantes High School, but was soon promoted to Lyons, where he has lived ever since. From 1896 to 1905 he taught young Frenchmen how to think and speak and write. He wrote a manual of French literature in which he endeavored to base literary criticism scientifically on the analysis of texts, and he took his doctor's degree in 1904 with a book on "Madame de Recamier and Her Friends."

Herriot's political career began in this same year with his election as Alderman. He was at once appointed assistant to the Mayor and in 1905 was elected Mayor of Lyons, a position he has filled continuously to this day. For this great manufacturing city on the Rhone, this "French Manchester," as he calls it, "this free-trade metropolis," he has developed by long years of residence and service, a sincere affection and in this generation it will never be possible entirely to separate the name of Edouard Herriot from that of Lyons. Under his administration there have been built 16 new schools, four new bridges, a new city hall, a $5,000,000 hospital, a model slaughter-house and a stadium for sports, while numerous improvements of the street and water and drainage systems have been carried out and municipal encouragement has been given to science and art.

Why Herriot Loves Lyon

During the war Herriot organized soup kitchens, restaurants for nursing "mothers homes," and schools for the re-education of mutilated soldiers. He has founded an agricultural college and a municipal "mothers' home," which strictly keeps its professional secrets and in due time finds a place for the mother and a home for the baby.

One of the creations of which Herriot is most proud, however, is the now famous Lyons Sample Fair, organized during the war and continued very successfully from year to year for the purpose of developing French trade, especially in foreign markets. In the light of these achievements, it is easy to understand why he should write such lines as these:

"There are courtesan cities which offer themselves to all who pass; they have a facile and seductive charm. Lyons is more austere. You have to know it to love it. As for me, seeing its daily life, conscious of every movement of its heart and participating in all its acts, I have a profound tenderness for it which I shall never lose."

Herriot's public career, while always based firmly on his work in Lyons, soon spread into wider fields. In 1910 he was elected general counselor and in 1912 senator of the Rhone, a position which obliged him to pass much of his time in Paris. Since 1912 he has divided his days between the two cities, but his home has remained in Lyons. While in Paris he has been content to lodge in a modest hotel which bears the name of his city.

In 1916 Herriot was named minister of transportation and of civilian revictualment in the Briand Government. In 1919, finding the Senate too dull, perhaps, for his active temperament, he ran for deputy and was elected by his district. He has served in the Chamber on the Finance Committee and was the author of the budget for public education. As president of the Executive Committee of the Radical-Socialist party, which is neither radical nor socialist in the American sense, but merely liberal, he led the cartel des gauches to victory in the recent election, and because of this was in direct line for the premiership.

Views on Present Issues

Some men, whether in France or the United States, would have found subtle means to profit materially by so long a career of local and national politics, but Herriot does not seem to have done so. He lives on a modest scale and seems to have only a very modest income, which he has always eked out by incessant journalistic activity, writing articles for newspapers and magazines, and not infrequently giving lectures, for he is a good orator and a charming and even brilliant speaker. In 1917 he collected some articles into a book called "Agir"—action—the theme of which was that France was too powerful both in mind and in will ever to be overwhelmed by barbarism. In 1919 another set of articles was collected under the title "Creer"—creation—an appeal to peace patriotism, to the patriotism of production and invention and creative economic energy. The fruits of his trip into soviet Russia a couple of years ago were collected into a book of travel, as were also his "Impressions of America," following his trip to the United States last year.

There is no mystery about Herriot's political ideas. He has explained them often enough. His aims for France are peace, prosperity and commercial expansion. He believes it will not be difficult, on a basis of the experts' report, to settle the reparations question without sacrificing any of France's vital interests, which, of course, he is no more dis-

Trend in U. S. to Multi-Party System of Europe Brought Out at Republican Convention

By CLARK McADAMS.

ONE could not sit in the Republican national convention last week and escape the conviction that among other things we brought home from the World War is the multi-party system of Europe.

Unlike our own two-party system, the noneconomic nature of which is illustrated by Mr. Doheny's admission that in 1920 he gave to both sides, the multi-party system is economic. Nobody gives to all the parties in England or any continental country of Europe, any more than Mr. Doheny or anyone else will give to all the parties in our own presidential contest next fall.

The Republican party went to Cleveland faced by the grave problem of where it is to stand in a multi-party political system, and it was the disagreement in the party upon this score that at last brought the convention to the unprecedented pass of having nominated a man who could not be persuaded to accept.

The ground work for this interesting political development was laid by the present session of Congress. At that session, for the first time in our history, there appeared what is unknown to us but quite common in Europe—government by coalition. Neither the Republican nor Democratic parties any longer controlled Congress. A third party controlled it. A third party with 24 votes in the House and seven in the Senate was able to wreck and revise very largely to suit its own fancy the Mellon tax plan, which had come to be the major enterprise of the Republican administration in Congress.

A Solemn Party Conclave

It was this upset that was laid before the Cleveland convention. A national convention of one of the big parties is something more than a picture. It is a solemn conclave of the party for the consideration of its well-being and interest. Thus at the Cleveland convention the party was to consider what could be done about the development of legislative control in a third quarter and how, if at all, the party could adjust itself to the new condition.

Had the Republicans gone to Cleveland entirely free to meet the new situation in Congress they could have played much better politics than they did. They were not free. They had Mr. Coolidge upon their hands. Mr. Coolidge may be an asset to the party in some respects, but he was a strategic obstacle to the convention. Had the convention been able to offer the presidential nomination to some Western liberal it would have neither suffered the rebuffs which followed offering some of these men the second place on the ticket nor have at last abandoned the Northwest, as it was compelled by circumstances against its will to do, to the forces of La Follette.

No greater mistake could be made than to suppose that the Republican party wanted to take the stand it now occupies on the right. It struggled valiantly to avoid this, and its position was only taken at last because every effort made to prevent it failed. Mr. Coolidge was opposed to it. He had himself offered the Secretaryship of the Navy to Judge Kenyon of Iowa, a leader among the insurgents. Every move made at the convention by Butler, who was acting for the administration, aimed at placating the Northwest. It was the administration's intense desire to do this that led the managers of the convention into the error of believing the party could draft Borah. The refusal of Lowden to take a place on the ticket after the convention had nominated him was humiliating enough, but the experience with Borah was worse. Borah denied the party's right to command him. He displayed heat. He laughed at the party's need of him, who had never been able to make it feel through almost 20 years of service that it needed even his advice.

Practical Politics

Upon the floor of a Republican convention political strategy usually is most subtle and deepest in the New York and Pennsylvania delegations. When either of these States is called there is a quick hush in the hall. This is not merely because New York has 91 votes and Pennsylvania 76, but because in those States the politicians are the hardest boiled and the most certain to have a practical reason for action. Both the big parties have long ago learned that emotion and sentiment waste their time on the New York and Pennsylvania delegations. These delegations have the patience and immovableness of science. They can wait until the convention is in its right mind, and they always do so. Neither of them wanted the Cleveland convention to cut off the West. Neither voted for Dawes until Lowden had been given up and the choice lay between Dawes and Hoover.

It was against the judgment of the New Yorkers and Pennsylvanians for the party to shift its position so far to the right as it finally did. On the first ballot New York cast most of her votes for Burton, whom she had no notion of nominating, and Pennsylvania cast her entire vote for a member of her own delegation who was not a candidate at all. On the second ballot New York was still voting for Burton and Pennsylvania went to Lowden. This was the ballot on which Lowden was nominated. The confession of Pennsylvania that nothing better could be made of the situation than to try the strong arm of the party on Lowden reveals the view in darkness what was to happen.

Spanning the Mississippi

The administration could not find anybody with whom to bridge the Mississippi. After Borah it had tried Kenyon, but the strong tory sentiment in the convention rejected Kenyon. There was probably not a student of American politics in the hall who did not feel that Kenyon had become, after Borah's refusal, the hope of spanning the Mississippi. That was good politics upon the part of the administration, but Kenyon was further than the convention would go. As a mass it did not realize the grave plight of the party or the fine points of the game being played on the floor to fix its status. The East, which chiefly finds itself in custody of the party now, was able to see this where the Middle West was not. Thus, on the first and second ballots Illinois, which lost 100,000 votes to the Farmer-Labor candidate in the recent Republican primary, cast no votes for Kenyon on either the first or second ballots, whereas New York, entirely unthreatened by any farm revolt, cast 23 votes for him on the first ballot and 18 on the second.

The struggle at this point was one of political vision. The mass would have taken Kenyon before it would have joined the party in a move to the right, but when the Lowden movement got out of hand on the second ballot that hope of political shrewdness perished.

By the time the convention adjourned until its officers could get into communication with Lowden the struggle which had raged in Cleveland all week to keep the party from turning its back upon

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Bishop Brown's Influence.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

EVERY Christian in our land should raise their voices in protest against the publishing of the trial of Bishop Brown, and particularly the questions asked by him. What is his opinion against this belief of the great army of those who have laid down their lives for those Bible truths, and the ever increasing army of those, the noble men and women of the ages whose faith could not and cannot be shaken—and whose lives have blessed the world because of their unshaken trust in God Almighty? Why place these doubts before the young? We do not put stumbling blocks before our little ones when they are trying to learn to walk.

Does Bishop Brown give us anything better to lean upon when hours of sorrow, trials and temptations come to us, as they do to all?

Is it not the duty of every minister of the Gospel to answer these questions from their pulpits? The Sunday school teachers in their classes? The leaders of our church societies? All giving the reasons for our faith and belief?

I saw some of the ruin wrought by Bob Ingersoll, especially among young men, and dread to have it repeated. How the life and faith of our dear Bishop Tuttle speaks to us at these times!

Rouse then, Christian men and women—fight and pray against the wave of doubt which will be sure to follow the publication of this trial.

A BIBLE CLASS TEACHER.

If La Follette Runs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE recently washed his hands of the St. Paul convention, issuing the statement that that convention is being roped in by radicals. Apparently, the Senator dislikes the prospect of having the down-and-out bolshevik, William Z. Foster, for running mate for the White House. Notwithstanding, the delegates insist on nominating the Senator, probably because his political program fits nicely into their schemes. Thus, while La Follette condemns verbally the red, they, by their approval of him, verify his political leanings. Is not, then, La Follette reddish, since his most stanch followers are such?

The country does not get alarmed over a tsain of red in its political makeup, for even the bad has its good value in the scheme of all things; and it put the radicals into Congress for the same purpose whereby we impanel a few pike fishes in a pond to keep the goody, lazy carps on the move; but it is at least doubtful whether we would want to elect into the White House Senator La Follette and with him have a batch of eminent vacuums to clean the country of its prestige and wealth.

If, however, Mr. La Follette must run, let him select and appropriate symbol for his party. Democrats have the mule, Farm-Labor has a wild ass, I think, and I would suggest that the symbol for Mr. La Follette's party be prickly porky the porcupine. Or, perhaps, the chameleon would be more appropriate? R. L. S.

Farmers Want Fair Play.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

FOR some time I have been unable to understand the attitude and motive of the press.

Farmers and farm organizations asked of the recent Congress laws which they thought would aid them in their distress. Almost without exception the great newspapers attacked all their proposed measures and those who sought to aid them were charged with playing politics, termed demagogues looking for votes and seeking to array class against class. So much space was devoted by them to the fight against these proposed measures that it would seem that the newspapers almost convinced themselves that the farmers were the first ones in this country who had ever had even the temerity to ask for legislation to aid them in their business.

It is strange that the press never discovered the danger of the passing of laws asked by those who engaged in a particular line of business until the farmers asked for it.

We have tariff laws asked by and and passed for the benefit of those engaged in manufacturing; an Interstate Commerce Commission directed by statute as to how it shall take care of the man who has his money in railroads; a Public Service Commission whose duty it is under the law to see that the man who has his money invested in street railways, telephone, gas and light companies gets a fair return on his money.

In view of our record in passing laws for the benefit of those who have invested money in other lines, why get excited when the man with his money in farm lands asks for laws that will help him?

THE STRENGTH OF PLUTOCRACY.

We suspect that before the campaign is over the Republican ticket in the popular estimation will be Dawes and Coolidge. There is a glamor around Dawes, his achievements, his methods, his characteristics, and his riproaring language, which attracts the limelight. He will supply the warmth and color and Coolidge the framework of the Republican campaign.

The fighting strength of the ticket may easily be underestimated. The Republican convention has done the wisest thing it could do under the circumstances. To what element could it appeal except business? Coolidge would have been mismated with a liberal or a radical, and under the glare of the campaign searchlights, the camouflage would have been as plain as day. There is a genuine partnership between the Republican party and big business—all the plutocratic interests that are united in the effort to make government the instrument of privilege and profits and keep the big machine of finance and industrial combinations going at any cost to others.

What better combination could have been found to appeal to plutocracy? Already we hear enthusiastic encomiums of the blend of the cool, cautious, judicious Coolidge with the energetic, resourceful, explosive finance and efficiency expert who jammed through the budget and formulated the scheme for the business rehabilitation of Europe. Mr. Dawes is as conservative as Mr. Coolidge, even more so. But his conservatism is more attractive. It is as colorful in its way as the radicalism of La Follette. He has a volcanic way of doing things that gives an appearance of economic and political dynamics, but which disturbs only the surface of things as they are.

The day after the convention adjourned there were signs of the solidarity of big business with the Republican ticket. The captains of industry, the financiers, the bankers, the trust magnates, and the representatives of all the vast interests that cluster around the centers of finance and trust promotion shouted with joy. They assured the country that with the combination of the cool Coolidge and the hot Dawes, everything would be well. The wheels of industry would hum, the chariot of commerce would roll on, and the sun of prosperity would shine upon happy America.

The day after the convention the stock market perked up, money rates went down, funds could be obtained with ease for investment or speculation. Campaign funds for the ticket will be limited only by the exigencies of law or concealment until after the election. Just as the renewed note of confidence sung through the air with the nomination of these twin exponents of cautious calculation and business efficiency, despite the fact that business was slack, the farmers were still wallowing in the slough of bankruptcy and industry lagged, so we will be assured that, regardless of what has happened so far under the administration of the all-wise Mr. Coolidge, everything will be right when his new term begins under the advice and counsel of the inimitable Mr. Dawes.

The Republican-big business combine to control the Government has many resources besides mere money to boost its campaign. When the skies look bright for the combination, there will be ample signs of reviving prosperity. When the skies look dark, signs of depression will be hung at all the financial centers. Employes will be told that under Coolidge and Dawes, wages will be high and jobs plentiful; but without Coolidge and Dawes, hard times are inevitable. The factories will have to be shut down and business cease.

If the Democrats happen to nominate a ticket that is not fairly conservative, or at least "safe and sane" liberal, all the opposition will be branded with Bolshevism, menacing the very foundations of Government and orderly society.

The campaign will not be an easy fight for any of the parties or groups in the field. We predict a redhot campaign, with all the guns and munitions of political warfare going at full blast.

THE SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL BUILDING.

Disgruntled advocates of the downtown site for the courthouse are claiming that the location of the courthouse on Memorial Plaza, or immediately east of actual boundaries of the plaza, might jeopardize the Soldiers' Memorial Building.

The Memorial Plaza vote was for $6,000,000, to cover the cost of creating the Memorial Plaza, $1,000,000 of which was for the memorial building itself. Whether the new courthouse is located downtown or at the plaza will make no difference to the Soldiers' Memorial Building, either as to cost or location. There will be no breaking faith with the soldiers. But it would be a breach of faith to the voters to put the new courthouse anywhere but on or adjacent to the Memorial Plaza, of which it was to be a principal feature.

Such sentiment as has been invoked in the discussion had to do with esthetic and architectural planning of this new group of buildings. But the main argument for the plaza site of the courthouse is one of use. The Soldiers' Memorial Building has nothing to do with it.

WHERE PREVENTION IS NEEDED.

Nothing less than appalling is the record of bank failures in Missouri for the five months just past, during which 24 State banks have closed, only four less than the total in 12 months last year.

The immediate cause, in nearly every case, has been unsanctioned practices by the bankers, but the real cause is the laxity of law which makes possible and encourages unsanctioned practices.

There are too many banks, to start with, because the law permits no discretion to the State Finance Commissioner to refuse charters. And after the charters have been granted the law does not provide for adequate examination. Under the pressure of undue competition bank officials take too great chances and under the inadequate inspection the taking of such chances is not discovered and checked in time to prevent disaster.

The State Finance Department, as administered under defective conditions, performs for the most part a merely liquidative function instead of a preventive one. Inadequate inspection does not disclose dangerous practices until a failing condition has been brought about. Banks found in that condition are closed and it is the rarest thing for one of them to be reopened. Depositors and stockholders are direct losers and business communities served by the banks that fail are indirect sufferers.

The only kind of bank inspection that amounts to anything is that which discovers and corrects imprudent or dishonest practices in time to avert failure and save individuals and communities from loss. That kind of inspection cannot be supplied by an insufficient and poorly paid force of inspectors. The Missouri banking law should be changed, as quickly as possible, so as to provide real protection instead of doubtful salvage.

MAGNA CHARTA SUNDAY.

Today is Magna Charta Sunday, the anniversary of a great historic occasion which is properly accounted among the pinnacles of human history. Seven centuries have come and gone—to be exact, 709 years—since that fifteenth day of June, 1215, when the English barons, in a bristling conference at Runnymede, protesting the tyrannies and exactions of an intolerable Government, submitted their ultimatum to King John. As is well known, the barons did not rely upon the justice of their petition to persuade a reluctant ruler. They were prepared to fight. In the language of a later, finer, broader memorial, which found its inspiration in their resolve, they were ready to "pledge their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor" to this cause. They won, and their victory laid the foundation upon which the genius of the American fathers reared the structure of modern liberty.

The English barons builded a whole lot better than they knew. The charter which they compelled King John to sign was what we would today call class legislation. The barons were concerned with their own properties, privileges and rights. There was no altruism in their project. The very word democracy, in its present implications, was yet to be born. Still, those feudal proprietors did have the vision, however tainted by selfish interest, to insist that even the villein shall not be arbitrarily deprived of his chattels.

Their inestimable service to humanity was the principle unconsciously enunciated, of defining and limiting the powers of the crown, not by the might of arms, but by the majesty of law. In short, constitutional government.

The Philadelphia convention perfected the work done at the Runnymede conference. It not only buried the divine right of Kings, but along with it the kindred doctrine of class priority, or caste. It established universal equality before the law. It proclaimed the rights of man in the postulate that government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed.

The blessings of chartered freedom have become traditional in the United States. Any other order of things is not conceivable. Yet those blessings, accepted as commonplace, are the heritage of infinite tragedy and martyrdom. That is a truth which few of us appreciate. And this attitude doubtless explains the popular apathy towards the present swing in the opposite direction—the swing back to governmental absolutism, to the erosion of the rights of the individual and the depositing of powers in that impersonal creature, Government.

There are organizations interested in an adequate observance of Magna Charta Sunday. The endeavor is worthy. It can be made a valuable educational movement if it drives home to the public mind the fact that the people should scrutinize every proposal to vest additional powers in the Government. The more powerful the Government the less free the people. That is an axiom we are in the way of forgetting.

A KICK ON KICK.

Another thing that might well command the serious attention of the American people in these salubrious June days is the remark that Wayne Wheeler made on the law-observance plank of the Republican platform. "Ninety per cent kick" was his alcoholic figure of speech. There may have been facetious intent in the metaphor, but that is a wretched and altogether odious excuse.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the American language will some day be purged of bibulous rhetoric. The word kick, with its sinful connotations, has no proper place in our speech. Certainly it should not defile the tongue of professionally good men like Brother Wheeler, to whom we all are supposed to look as mentor, guide and perfect exemplar.

Just how the kickless vocabulary is to be achieved is a problem, perhaps, for the best minds; but, in any event, it soothes our importunate conscience to register this kick against kick.

JEFFERSON DAVIS' MEMORIAL.

Jefferson Davis has his monument at last. The tallest shaft of concrete in the world, dedicated at his village birthplace in the neutral State of Kentucky, testifies to the fact that the first and last President of the Confederate States of America is remembered with honor by his own people. The towering obelisk promises to stand for centuries as a material reminder of "the Lost Cause." As such, it will have its value for posterity.

Perhaps the most pathetic figure in all the world was Jefferson Davis for a decade or more following the collapse of the Confederacy. The cause for which he had stood as official executive head for four years had failed. It became his fate to bear, along with some of the honors, the unjust burden of most of the sins of the great rebellion. From the North he was denounced, without valid reason, as being chiefly if not wholly responsible for the terrible sufferings of Federal soldiers confined in the stockade at Andersonville, to mention but one item. At the South he was held by many people, likewise without valid reason, to have been a failure in the Confederate presidency; and thousands of thoughtless Southerners insisted upon blaming Davis for the misfortunes of war which were due to circumstances quite beyond control of any man or group of men.

Before he died, nearly 35 years ago, Jefferson Davis had the joy of knowing that time had softened these asperities, that both North and South had come to look upon him with more kindliness, that the onus of defeat—failure, if you will—had been divided between many shoulders.

Jefferson Davis was a scholar rather than a statesman. To him Greek and Latin were almost as easy reading as English. During 10 years of life as a virtual recluse on his Mississippi plantation, following the death of his young bride, he delved deeply into the literature and the lore of the ages. The clash and crash of war and politics probably called for an executive of a temperament less ascetic than was his.

Yet, on the whole, Jefferson Davis, as the South dedicates his monument, emerges as a statesman of ability, as an executive who weathered frightful storms until overwhelmed at last by the inevitable victory of the forces of human progress, and as a man who did the very best he could in furtherance of a cause which, in the abstract nature of things human and divine, was lost before the first gun at Sumter was fired.

THE OZARK FARMER.

He was a product of the Ozark hills
A country bumpkin if you will, a clod.
You wondered if he ever felt the thrills
Of close communion with the soil and God.
You watched him as he plodded with his team
And turned the furrow, clean and strait and true
With face impassive as a mask, no gleam
Of what he thought or did or really knew.

He must have loved the place or he'd have gone
And left the rocks which promised naught but toil.
You would have thought some richer lure had drawn
Him far away from his ancestral soil.
Unless you knew the breed and knew the hills
In Spring with peach and apple trees in bloom,
Unless you knew the narrow valleys and the rills,
Had breathed the air when laden with perfume.
Then you would know what bound him to the sod
And feel ashamed you'd called the man a clod.

IL MUOVE!

You have, O Plato, doubtless read the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. Dr. Bitting to the seniors of Washington University. Wasn't it a true and noble utterance? If I had the power I would broadcast it to every student in all the colleges and universities of the land.

"We cannot accept a theology built upon the idea of a flat earth. The spirit of free inquiry is our life breath. We resent as intolerable the ecclesiastical tyranny, conceived in ignorance, that tries to secure legislation as to what schools shall teach regarding the physical universe and God's processes in creating and sustaining it. If God be the great Reality, He can build no kingdom, least of all the kingdom of morals, upon the three false foundations of error, ignorance and superstition. Neither ignorance nor formal religion drained of ethics can save either the individual or society."

There you have it—free inquiry and ethics. Be good! That fits everybody and is everywhere necessary.

Sir: One's thoughts often turn to Oscar Wilde these days. Bad as Reading Jail was, we have his word for it that he turned what was good in his life before his imprisonment into evil—but the evil of those hideous days in jail he turned to good.

Yet everywhere we hear the bloodthirsty cry of "Revenge." Even under the sheep's clothing of "Justice" we hear it. It is the dominant note in human gatherings everywhere. We find people decrying intelligence. Colleges, we are told, are hotbeds of evil. Ignorance and Revenge! That's what we stand most in need of!

One wishes these human gatherings could fall under the spell of Wilde's "Ballad of Reading Gaol." Perhaps they, then, might prefer the rhythm of prison feet for murderers to the swing of nimble feet that "dance upon the air."

Take down your volume of the greatest ballad in the English language. Read it aloud in your own club or home circle and then forget if you can "that little tent of blue which prisoners call the sky.

Sir: Science is poetry, romance, magic and art all woven into the whole cloth of life. The conventional representation of science is that of austere medical men, white-robed and unimpassioned, unceasingly searching in life itself for the secrets of nature; of engineers poring endlessly over great masses of technicalities to the end that the destructive forces of nature may be thwarted or controlled; of chemists turning every tangible thing into the intrinsic mill of money. Almost invariably when the colorful side of science is pictured the production of great wealth is considered the most glamorous feature to be stressed; but in itself that is not poetic or romantic—it is sordid.

From the toil of scientists beauty is born. To catalogue all the things of beauty for which science alone is responsible would be a great task and beyond me, but I will tell of the incident which forcibly brought home to me this most glorious function of science. Last Friday night the writer sat alone, ill and disconsolate, while outside a terrific storm was raging; radio was his opium to a distasteful world, and his melancholy grew as the headphones became more uncomfortable and the program being broadcasted more marred by static. The concert of school children that he listened to was tedious, but it was the fairy hand of science that guided beauty through the driving rain, the rolling clouds and crashing thunders to gladden the heart of the listener. After one of the slight pauses had come a chorus of girl voices singing a sweet song of spring, and the lutes which Eve heard in the first garden were not more melodiously thrilling. Then followed a joyous canoe song by the same voices and the senses surrendered to joy and the night with filled with music. It was such a thing as one prizes in his memory forever, and I hope that those wonderful voices surging along on the waves of eternity will always sing their message of hope to the farthest spheres. So, I say, whether a by-product or not, beauty is born of science.

"THE RISING SUN."

WM. HOWARD GARDNER in Harper's for June.

JAPANESE potency and European impotence are vividly suggested by the following words from the latest history of the Japanese Empire that has been written in England: "Great Britain may contemplate Japan as a commercial rival (in all quarters of the globe) • • • who, in a future that is not very remote, may be found a competitor that will test her industry, ingenuity, and enterprise to the utmost. Japan must still take a backward place in the commercial arena of the world, she can already claim one in the very first rank of the great military Powers. Indeed she is perhaps already the greatest, when judged not only by the size and quality of the forces that are at her immediate disposal, but by the completeness of her organization in every possible detail, and by the provision she makes to meet all contingencies long before they can arise. As a nation, she is saturated with the spirit of militarism."

After describing the high spirit and outlook of the Japanese, the historian continues: "Great Britain now holds her Far Eastern colonies, the great commercial depots of Hongkong and Singapore, entirely on the sufferance of Japan. From which she could be ousted as speedily as were the Germans from Kiaochow, and it is quite possible that Japan might not be altogether indifferent, in view of her new (pan-Asiatic) doctrine, to events in Great Britain's Indian Empire. The pact of the Pacific binds her as it does ourselves, but the history of the most Christian nations shows how illusory are international covenants as instruments for the limitation of national covetousness or ambition • • • can anyone dare to cast a stone at her if, in the future, she finds it imperative in her own interests to strengthen herself at the expense of other Powers in the Far East? It behooves Great Britain, therefore, to retain her good will."

Thus an Englishman, in England's latest history of the nations, when recognizing Japanese power and British impotence in the Far East, bows to the Rising Sun.

SEARCH FOR PRIMITIVE MAN.

From the New York Evening World.

FOR the third time an expedition goes forth for the Gobi desert of Asia in search of the relics of primitive man. It goes at the behest of the American Museum of Natural History, and is happily financed entirely with American money donated from every state in the Union. Scientists have not been able to rid themselves of the notion that the Central Asian plateau was the first home of the human race. Just what it is hoped to find the members of the expedition cannot definitely say. They admit that they are engaged in "something of a gamble," but they are convinced that they are seeking in the right place. It was on a previous expedition that Roy Chapman Andrews, who also heads the third, discovered the dinosaur eggs estimated to be ten million years old. The primary purpose is to find the bones of original man buried in the strata of a primitive period. It is well worth the effort. But in the event of success we tremble at the inevitable results of the battle with the Fundamentalists. If science persists we shall be forced to abandon the theory that the world is not more than 6000 years old.

Of the United States, Herriot's latest judgment is as follows:

Strong Advocate of League.

"The United States wants peace. The unjustified suspicions which are felt there regarding us can be overcome only by frank discussion. The Americans abandoned us too soon; many of them know it and say it. They went away at the hour of settlement—which was an error from the business point of view, and also, especially from the moral point of view. But the experts' report gives us a chance to renew the broken bonds. Let us seize it. Let us count rather on the advice of our cause than on the talent of our spokesmen. Let us draw nearer, heart to heart. And I am firmly convinced, for my part, that once more the community of ideals is going to prevail."

Herriot, speaking recently at a luncheon before the Anglo-American Press Association, made a plea for British and American collaboration and sympathy to aid him in the task of directing the new Government. He asked the press of both countries to assure their readers that he was "not exactly an anarchistic or even a communist—Radical-Socialist does not mean what you think, but merely is the equivalent of Democrat."

"I know," Herriot declared, "that there are many Democrats in your two countries who think as I do that the one thing we want to work for is peace. We want to develop all peacemaking activities for peace and for preserving the League of Nations, the International Labor Bureau, the World Court and The Hague tribunal. I want your active support and that of the Democrats in the Anglo-Saxon countries to help the French Democrats move for Europewide peace.

"I know that peace can not be made by resolutions of congresses and conventions but the principal thing is to want peace and to wish for it ardently and continuously. Whatever may happen I want to be direct and open—to work on Anglo-Saxon lines—to conduct public affairs with the same regard for honesty and morality as I would my private affairs."

Herriot, stressing the fact that he was devoted to the principle of balancing the budget, said his first great task would be to stabilize the finances of France.

The candidacy of Coolidge pleases the West. It believes in him. It knows he will not surrender to the forces that overwhelmed Harding. The West, being Yankee by inheritance, likes Coolidge's Yankee ways of thrift and upstanding honesty and cautious but unyielding courage. So it will vote for him, and send him the same lot of insurgent Congressmen which will make his congressional leadership as futile as it has been.

The West is perfectly willing to leave the executive branch of the Government in Coolidge's safe hands. But the West is not going to surrender for one moment its hold upon the Congress. The election of Coolidge and Dawes may insure an honest administration of public affairs. But all the futile plug-hat platforms in the world will not change the character of the Western Republicans, nor affect their belief in what they feel is their best interests in legislation.

They may care to elect a congressional delegation of Republicans just as free as the West and as radical as the West may care to be at the moment. As a matter of fact, the West is not particularly radical just now, but it cherishes its right to be radical and still be Republican. And that is why it can easily accept Coolidge and Dawes and return Brookhart, Borah, Capper, La Follette and the members of the farm bloc, no matter how the national platform rails at these things.

Trend to Multi-Party Brought Out at Cleveland

the Northwest was hopelessly lost. Whether this was due to mismanagement or the absence of anyone but Lowden who could as a rich man and a gentleman appeal to the tories and with fine blooded bulls still enjoy a more or less common footing with the farmers beyond the Mississippi was difficult to make out. Likely both were factors when the swing came. At any rate, when the final refusal from Lowden arrived and the convention resumed, the administration crowd had despaired of solving the problem and resigned itself to the inevitable.

The Rejection of Hoover.

Butler gave the word for Hoover. Alabama, which is first on the roll and having a delegation wholly made up of postmasters and soda-pop gaugers, may be looked to for the sign from the administration quarter, voted for Hoover. It was plain enough that the convention had no intention of nominating him. Delegations like that from Missouri, hearing that it was to be Hoover, cried out in protest that in the wheat states not a single farmer would vote for him.

That did for Hoover, and had the convention turned to New Jersey and said: "You were right all the time." We are the tory party, and we take your candidate!" it could not have made plainer what it had in mind. When the turn of New Jersey came again—New Jersey, the mother of trusts and the sumbols of big business—the chairman of the delegation stood up and shouted:

"For the third time New Jersey casts her 31 votes for Gen. Dawes!"

Thus it was against the will of the convention leaders and the judgment of its best minds that the party took the stand it did. It struggled hard against it, as a swimmer struggles upstream. Its breathing was at last labored and its watch-me-die-game look was terrible in that magnificent moment when Hoover was thrust forward as an almost whimsical chance, meaning what perhaps the administration leaders themselves did not know, but there was at length only the swirl where the swimmer sank.

Both the Democrats and the Republican insurgents, the latter truly frightened when Kenyon was thrust forward, were delighted Only those were sorrowful who had sought all week to keep the party from doing this very thing. Probably there has never been another national convention of the Republican party when so many men walked out with the sinking feeling of futility as walked out of the Cleveland convention on last Thursday night.

Nor was the joy of those who had believed all the time that this was what the party should do as unrestrained as it might have been had they not been fearful of a victory which chance had aided to place in their hands. Politicians do not like chance.

Many men looking on at the Cleveland convention and quite aware of what was going on every inch of the way, rose at adjournment on the last night in the feeling that they could see quite clearly what the future holds for us politically. The Democrats, availing themselves of the opportunity given them by the combination of circumstances which threw the Republicans to the right even further than they cared to go, will seek to go to the center, leaving to La Follette the left. Whether the Democrats can do this or conservatism is so much stronger than they think and will at last land them beside the Republicans as unexpectedly as the latter have landed where they are, is a question probably best answered by the record of the present Congress. It was sometimes harder to tell whether the Democrats or the Republican insurgents were inspiring the acts of their coalition.

The Democratic party is liberal by comparison with the Republican party. How liberal we shall know after the New York convention. It will not be liberal enough for La Follette. No party could be and hope for success, since no time votes ahead of itself but only timorously follows; but it can be liberal enough, conjoined with the Republican insurgents in a congressional coalition, to give color to a tory Republicanism's charge that the other parties are bolshevik.

Perhaps this is the most interesting significance of the Cleveland convention. There is no virtue in politics like claiming that the enemy has none.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED IN LAND FRAUD CASE

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Sets Aside Conviction of W. E. Stewart.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this district, in an opinion filed here yesterday, set aside the conviction and sentence to five years in the penitentiary of W. E. Stewart of Kansas City, imposed a year ago when he was found guilty of using the mails to defraud in the sale of arid lands in Hidalgo County, Tex., for several times their actual value.

Judge Walter H. Sanborn, presiding, wrote the opinion of the court and in a review of the entire case found there was no error on which the case might be reversed except a supplementary instruction given by Judge Van Valkenburgh after the jury had been out several hours and had failed to reach a verdict.

Basis of Order for New Trial.

Judge Sanborn said he found from an examination of the record that the trial judge had asked the jury if there was a majority of their number on one side or another on the question of guilt of the defendant and was told by the former there was a majority. Judge Van Valkenburgh then read to the jury an expression of the United States Supreme Court on a similar situation, in which that court said jurors should not go into the jury room for deliberation with their minds made up that their opinion at that time must be the verdict of the jury, that their minds should be open to argument and that a majority sentiment should be considered.

Judge Van Valkenburgh then told the jury to take what he had read into their "judgments and consciences and return to their deliberations and make an earnest effort to reach a verdict."

Because of this instruction, Judge Sanborn said, "Justice would best be served by setting aside the judgment and sentence and ordering a new trial." This the court did. District Judge Reeves, sitting with the court, dissented, and District Judge Booth concurred in the opinion.

Bought at $90, Sold at $300.

Stewart, through the W. E. Stewart Land Co., promoted the sale of 100,000 acres of Texas land which he bought for $90 an acre and sold at from $300 to $450 an acre.

At the trial of the case in Kansas City evidence was introduced to show that fraudulent misrepresentations were made orally by Stewart's agents to prospective purchasers concerning plans for irrigation of the lands, and in literature circulated by his company.

Special trains were used to take prospective buyers to Texas and they were entertained on their arrival in a commodious country club Stewart had built.

Testimony was introduced that Stewart hired guards to keep away from prospective buyers all persons except his own agents because, the witnesses said, the promoter feared the "prospects" might learn of the agricultural defects of the land if they came in contact with natives of the section.

Prior to the trial Stewart had entered a plea of nolo contendere (no contest) to the charges in the indictment, but this, after having been accepted by the court, was set aside and he was ordered to trial. There were 23 specific counts in the indictment on which he was tried.

DUCK HUNTER PAYS BIG FINE

Woman Prosecutor Makes Official Debut at Joplin.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 14.—Miss Rosemary Crafton, Assistant United States District Attorney, made her official debut as a prosecutor in the local Federal Court here recently with the result that Clarence L. Hyder of Nevada was fined $100 and costs for violation of the migratory bird treaty act. Hyder pleaded guilty. He had killed four ducks, three pintails and a mallard last March in Vernon County. The fine and costs totaled $110.35.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to cardholders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

WOODCARVING—Written for the student who wishes to combine art with constructional work.

W. H. HUDSON, by Morley Roberts —A word picture written to express the elusive personality, the many-sided genius of W. H. Hudson by his friend of 50 years. Not a great biography but a sincere and understanding one.

ROSES AND HOW TO GROW THEM, by J. H. McFarland.—The editor of the American Rose Society's Annual has thoroughly revised the volume of this same name published in 1905. Rose culture has made decided progress in the past 20 years so that this is practically a new book. This volume is primarily for the individual who grows roses out of doors. Partial contents: When, where and how to plant; routine of work; pruning; combatting rose insects and diseases; rose calendar; types.

NATURE IN DOWNLAND, by W. H. Hudson.—Mr. Hudson describes the simple wild beauty, the old world atmosphere of the chalk hills which traverse the south of England from Hampshire to the Straits of Dover.

INVESTMENTS, by H. S. Sturgis. —The author outlines some plans for cutting down materially losses in securities. His idea is to save wasted millions and apply them to economic progress.

FLOWER GROWING, by Leonard Barron.—This new and revised edition is for the amateur who wishes the best results from a garden of easily grown flowers. The author discusses soils, fertilizers, starting seeds, the hotbed, transplanting and repotting, bulbs and the raising of many hardy flowers.

ENCHANTED AISLES, by Alexander Woollcott.—Gossip of the stage and its famous players. The book is divided into two parts, enthusiasms and resentments. Under the former heading are grouped such figures as Bernhardt, Duse and Mrs. Fiske, and under the latter: The essence of acting, a few annoying dramas, the speaker of the evening.

AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND LETTERS OF ARCHBISHOP ULLATHORNE.—Two volumes. This contemporary and friend of Newman rose from cabin boy to the Episcopal See of Birmingham. When he was Vicar General in Australia, he was known as the "Agitator" General. Thus he began a publicity campaign which resulted in the abolition of the convict system in that country.

Something New!

Hard-to-fit and the unusual type of foot now skillfully fitted. No more shoe "pinches." No more "slipping at the heel." No more foot pains—foot aches—foot burns. The new-day system of adjusting the shoe to the individual foot ends these troubles. Think of it—footwear fitted to your feet so skillfully that your footwear will look and feel as though tailored to your feet.

First in This City

It is with satisfaction that we announce that this shop is the first in this city to offer you the benefits of this new-day shoe fitting service through the establishment of a special

CORRECTIVE FITTING DEPARTMENT

This fitting service is under the direction of our highly competent foot fitter, who knows feet and knows shoes. Under skillful supervision, your feet will be fitted as though the shoe were built to your foot. The shoes will be your shoes for your feet..

End Your Foot Troubles

We cordially invite you to visit this new department. There is no obligation. We merely want you to know that there is now in this city a service that enables you to end your foot and shoe troubles. The next time you want shoes fitted expertly, skillfully and intelligently to your feet and be free of any foot worry or foot discomfort visit this new distinctive Corrective Fitting Department. BERRIES CITY'S RIGHT TO TAX CARS FROM OUTSIDE LIMITS

President of Automobile Club of Missouri Questions Judge's Stand.

Following the announcement of Police Judge Matthews that persons living outside the city limits, but driving in the city every day, would be compelled to purchase a local license or a license of the municipality in which they reside, President Britton of the Automobile Club of Missouri has written a letter advising him that the city of St. Louis has no right to impose any license tax on the owner of a motor vehicle who does not reside within the city limits.

Several companies located outside of the city have recently complained to the Automobile Club that their chauffeurs were arrested and fined for not having St. Louis licenses displayed on their trucks.

St. Louisans also have protested that they were arrested and fined for not having city license plates displayed, when they had lost the plates, but could produce a receipts to show they had paid the license tax. Referring to this, Britton states the statutes do not require plates in cities having a population of more than 75,000.

Here Monday—First St. Louis Showing of the

Nemolastic Self-Reducing Health-Way Rubber Girdle

—a scientifically, hygienically constructed garment that provides the healthful way to reduce.

So wonderfully have Nemo Models accomplished their purpose that this new self-reducing girdle will interest thousands of women who wish to reduce their weight. For the reduction of waist, hips and thighs the "Nemolastic" provides the "health way."

1. It is guaranteed not to rip or tear.
2. It makes the figure permanently smaller and lighter in weight.
3. No rubber comes in contact with the body or undergarments.
4. It moulds the figure into graceful lines.
5. It is adjustable to the decreasing size of the figure.
6. It gives comfortable and gratifying support.
7. It can be washed with pure soap and water.
8. It doesn't bulge over the abdomen.

"Nemolastic" is a specially designed and manufactured fabric produced by Nemo, the House of Complete Corsetry. It is made of pure gum rubber covered with Italian silk and is used exclusively in the Nemolastic Self-Reducing Girdle—an exquisite garment developed in a beautiful shade of peach. Sizes for all figures.

Priced $10.75

You will also appreciate our skillful fitting service—a most important factor in the satisfactory corseting of the many women we serve.

ST. LOUISAN TRIES "COLONIZATION" WORK IN POLITICS

But Charles K. Cohn Fails to Send Money for Ads Soliciting Funds to Aid La Follette.

"Charles K. Cohn, Colonizer," reads the sign on the door of the little office adjoining the basement sleeping room occupied by Cohn at 2931 Franklin avenue. It was there a Post-Dispatch reporter found Cohn yesterday and made inquiry as to the source and purposes of an advertisement submitted to an Akron, O., newspaper, in the name of the National Progressive League, and soliciting contributions of $1 for "the presidential campaign fund of Senator La Follette."

Editors of the newspaper forwarded the copy for the ad to members of the Wisconsin delegation to the Republican National Convention at Cleveland, Cohn's name being appended, and the La Follette Wisconsinites, in turn, referred the query to Post-Dispatch correspondents for investigation. The La Follette followers recognize the potential financial possibilities of an appeal of this kind, considering La Follette's admitted large personal following, and were fearful his supporters might be imposed upon.

Admits Authorship of Ad.

To the investigator, Cohn admitted the authorship of the ad, which he said had been submitted to 280 newspapers, under the authority of the executive committee of the National Progressive League of Missouri. The list of newspapers was made up from a manual, to which reference was made at the Public Library, and no money accompanied the ads. They were to be charged to the league.

Cohn, who is about 60 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and of slight build, explained that a "colonizer" was one who arranges to purchase real estate for persons wishing to settle in distant communities, but that the "colonizing business" is in a slump just now. Another sign bearing the word "coal" was leaning against the wall near the door, and he explained that he was a coal commission merchant in winter.

Would he explain the advertisement offered to the Akron newspaper? He would. "The man whom I fear does not live," he declared, commenting that he was once in the service of the Prussian Hussars. "I will freely tell everything about it."

He then, as related, told of sending the copy for the ad. to the selected list of newspapers on the authority of the National Progressive League.

The Question of Credit.

"The editors seem to question the credit of our organization," he explained. "But that doesn't bother us. We don't want to patronize any editor who will not recognize the cause we represent." Of course, no dollar contributions have been received, the ads not yet having appeared. "But we wouldn't have got much anyway, he continued, "because the people are waiting until after the nomination conventions are over before they start giving financial support."

Moreover, the Executive Committee of the National Progressive League in Missouri had approved his every move. The League is headed by Sheridan Carlisle, an attorney. Carlisle and his associates formed the organization as a "Ford for President" club last December, but changed its name when Ford announced he was out of the race and for Coolidge. Carlisle, who was head of the Missouri branch of the Non-partisan movement four years ago could not be reached yesterday for a statement.

Had Cohn communicated with the LaFollette managers? Most assuredly, and he proudly displayed a personal letter from La Follette's son, acknowledging his request for a picture of the Wisconsin Senator.

I First Compounded This Newer Form of Iron for My Own Neighbors

Their Praise of This Remarkable Remedy Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over 4,000,000 People Use It Annually

Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron. For sale by all druggists.

Editorial

Pests as Teachers

'Tis said "nothing was created in vain," but has anyone, as yet, discovered what good flies and mosquitoes are?

Oft on a Summer night while courting the God Somnus, have you been harassed by the music (?) of one lonesome mosquito seeking company?

Equally as oft, while courting the same god on a cool Summer morn, after a hot night, has a mischievous fly, with tantalising crawl, insisted on exploring the contour of your face.

In each instance you resolve on revenge—do you get it? They resolve on pestering—do they do it?

Right there is an illustration of persistency on the part of the fly and mosquito and determination on your part. Both praiseworthy characteristics.

Combine and practice them and you will win!

(Signed)

Harry Prufrock.

DAISY ASHBY'S FATHER RELEASED FROM CUSTODY

Washington Had Been Held in Jail Two Weeks on Suspicion in Connection With Her Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GLASGOW, Mo., June 14.—George Washington Ashby, father of Daisy Ashby, 14 years and 4 months old, whose nude body was found May 8 buried in a brush pile between this town and the Ashby farm, is once again a free man and the officials and volunteers who have been investigating the girl's kidnaping Feb. 2 and subsequent murder are still without evidence. Ashby, held two weeks in jail at Keytesville on suspicion, was released Thursday when nothing to substantiate the suspicions was found. Previously two white youths and a negro had been held for investigation and then freed.

Deputy Sheriff Trent is still on the case at the direction of the Chariton County Court. His efforts have been both helped and hindered by several volunteer sleuths who have made the mystery more mysterious in these parts. A reward fund has been raised by Glasgow citizens.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM

Mrs. Nellie Baroni, 35 years old, of 1008 North Eighth street, was found dead in bed Friday morning of heart failure, two days after her husband, Sam Baroni, 60, was found dead in a similar manner.

Neighbors said she had refused to eat since her husband's death. She is survived by one daughter.

INCOME TAX PAYMENT DUE

Tomorrow Is Final Day to Meet Second Installment.

Final day for payment of the second installment of Federal income tax will be tomorrow because the final day fixed by law is today—Sunday.

The Internal Revenue office in the Federal Building will be kept open as late as necessary up to midnight tomorrow, Collector Hellmich announced, to receive tardy payments. Payments made by check and deposited in the mails before midnight will be accepted without penalty.

Power Off for 15 Minutes.

Trouble on the "high line" between St. Louis and Keokuk at 11:19 a. m. yesterday caused electric power in St. Louis to fail for 15 minutes, during which lights were out and elevators and other electrically equipped devices were stopped. Street cars were not interrupted.

First Hot Rays of Sun Start Exodus to Summer Colonies Of the Lakes and West Coast

Michigan and California, the Favorite Objectives of St. Louisans, as in Previous Years — Many Are Planning European Tours.

THE unusual coolness of the late Spring season delayed society's plans for the regular summer exodus but the first hot rays of the sun have sent many scurrying for time tables, and trunks and tickets are of primary importance now. St. Louisans for the most part have favorite resorts where for years they have entered into the gaieties of cottage colonies, and, in spite of the great numbers sailing for Europe, there are many who remain loyal to the less strenuous life of the summer resort.

Michigan and California have for years been favorite objectives for local society. The fame of the Western sea coast and the Great Lakes seem to take precedence over the beaches along the Atlantic.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel and Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott have summer homes on the San Ysidro ranch near Santa Barbara, and Mrs. Scott, her daughter, Miss Alice, and Miss Marceline Reyburn, who will be their guest, will depart June 24. The Nagels and their daughter, Miss Dorothea, will leave June 27. Mr. and Mrs. August A. Busch Jr., their baby daughter, Mrs. Busch's mother, Mrs. Rolla Wells, and Mr. Wells, and Miss Louise Church, plan to spend the summer in a cottage at Miramar. They will depart June 25. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bascom of Portland place and their family will depart the preceding day, the William Bagnells the following day, and Mr. and Mrs. Webster Tilton and Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Gatch within a day or two of each other. Santa Barbara, Cal., will have a St. Louis representation in Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scruggs Kennard and their two children, who departed last week. Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Stanard will go to California in July, as will Mrs. Lawrence B. Pierce and her daughter, Miss Katherine. Mrs. Pierce's son, Richard Pierce, and his wife live in Los Angeles, and they will visit there and in San Francisco, returning by way of the Northern route. The Rev. and Mrs. George R. Dodson will depart tomorrow night for Berkeley, Cal., to remain until fall.

Of the Michigan resorts, Wequetonsing perhaps draws the largest number of St. Louisans. Mrs. Theodore F. Prewitt, Mrs. Robert A. Holland, the Frank Overton Watts family, with their children and the latter's families, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Scudder, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Whitelaw, and numerous other persons of prominence will spend the warm season there. Mrs. Edith Saxton Clifford has taken the cottage of her mother, Mrs. Alfred Clifford of Westmoreland place, and the latter's other daughters, Mrs. Wilbur B. Jones and Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom, will occupy the Jones' summer home at the same place.

Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Smith and their daughters, and the Albert T. Mid-June Weddings Of Interest on Social Calendar

Miss Marguerite York Becomes Bride of Ralph B. Coale in Pretty Home Ceremony—St. Louis Girl Sails for Virgin Islands to Wed.

MIDJUNE weddings crowd the social calendar. Several, to be sure, are out-of-town events, but of hardly less interest here because of their St. Louis connection.

The marriage of Miss Marguerite York, daughter of Mrs. Frances B. York of 5214 Washington boulevard, and Ralph B. Coale yesterday was a high spot in the day's events. Yellow and white flowers with a profusion of Easter lilies embellished the York home where the ceremony took place, and Monsignor Tannrath officiated before a candle-lighted altar with a floral background. Misses Anne Russell and Florence Allen, nieces of the bride, were the only attendants. They wore white lingerie frocks with touches of pink and carried baskets of roses.

The bride's gown was of white satin appliqued with velvet flowers and embroidered in seed pearls. It was made on straight lines, with clusters of orange blossoms at the hip and shoulder on one side. She wore a wide white lace hat trimmed with tiny orange blossoms and lined with flesh colored chiffon, and carried a spray of orchids and lilies of the valley. About 100 guests attended the ceremony and bridal supper following. Mr. and Mrs. Coale will sail June 18 on the Aquitania for a three months' tour of Europe. They will make their home in St. Louis. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute.

Miss Frances Fuqua, daughter of Mrs. Benton H. Pollock of 5861 Enright avenue, sailed with her mother June 6 for the Virgin Islands in the West Indies, for her marriage to Dr. Joseph M. Malcolmson of the United States Navy, stationed there. The boat was due there Wednesday, and the marriage was to have taken place quietly soon after its arrival. The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and is a musician and linguist. She is a sister of Mrs. Cary D. Terrell of Chicago and a niece of Gov. Henry Fuqua of Louisiana.

Dr. Malcolmson is formerly of Detroit and his father is an architect of that city.

Mrs. Pollock will remain for a lengthy visit with her daughter. They will make their

Jeweled Requisites of the Mode

One of the newest of jewel vogues, is the Triad Pearl Necklace featured by Jaccard's. Well-nigh indescribably lovely are these, agleam upon the filmy fabrics of Summer. In combination with the pearl choker, these are conceded additionally smart.

Sports Cuff Links, for the tailored blouse and shirtwaist frock, are entirely new. These come in new shapes and enamel colors to match Summer costumes. On 14-karat white, green and yellow gold. Priced $14.00 to $25.00.

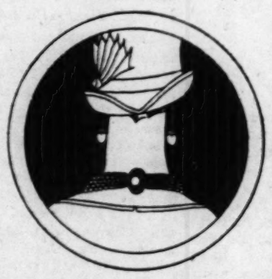
The three-strand Necklace herewith illustrated, is priced only, $9.00. Composed of unusually well matched pearls of irreproachable luster with a clasp of solid silver. The choker is very striking, of largest indestructible pearls as shown, $9.00.

Bracelets of Jet and Cut Steel are new and smart Parisian imports. The jet is mounted with a scintillating double row of cut steel. An exclusive importation, $10.00.

Since the mandate of the mode is "Pearls," Jaccard's features other selections in triad, two and five strand Indestructible Pearls. The Necklace illustrated is perfectly exquisite, not the least of its attractiveness being the clasp ornate with onyx, rhinestones and pearl, $25.00.

Other double and triple Pearl Necklaces, priced $14.00 to $48.00.

A piquant dash is added by the Pearl Earrings now in favor with smart women everywhere. Those illustrated are suspended on a delicate rhinestone chain that contrasts effectively with the large drops. Priced only $12.50.



The lady to the left is of the type semi-choker beads are most becoming to. The Necklace clasps with a heavy sterling plaque, richly ornamented with pearls and rhinestones. An attractive five-strand necklace, priced $26.00.

The Protzmann country home on Riverview Drive will be the scene of the ceremony, to be performed by the Rev. John D. Tussey of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Miss Dorothea and Irma Protzmann will attend their sister as bridesmaids. They will wear quaint bouffant frocks of tiny rows of lace over slips of peach and orchid silk, respectively. The skirts will be full, with extended hip lines, and large leghorn hats with clusters of flowers at the brim completing the costumes. Ruth Peters, in a flesh-colored frock, will be flower girl.

The bride will be gowned in white crepe georgette made on straight lines and ornamented with rhinestones and seed pearls, with clusters of orange blossoms made of the material. The bodice is sleeveless, and draped to one shoulder with pearl embroidery. Her veil, to be worn with a coronet of orange blossoms, has been in the Protzmann family for over 50 years. The reception will be held at the Riverview Club. Mr. Heltage will take his bride through Yellowstone and Estes Park on a wedding trip, and they will make their home at 4965 Northland place.

The wedding of Miss Gertrude Kehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Kehl, and Roy W. Redin of Chicago, will take place in the garden adjoining the home of the bride's parents, in old Country Club place, Friday evening, June 20. The occasion is also the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Kehl. About 200 guests have been invited. The bridal party comprises the following: Miss Carolyn Nathan, maid of honor, and Misses Mildred Johnson and Esther Kelly, bridesmaids. Dudley Mills of Chicago, best man, and Arthur Kehl, brother of the bride, and Lynn Meyer, groomsmen.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Alice Baird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Baird of 6955 Waterman avenue, and Joseph H. Albrecht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Albrecht of Lafayette avenue, which took place Thursday morning at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, the Rev. Francis J. O'Connor officiating. A breakfast for the near relatives was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Albrecht have gone to California on their honeymoon and will reside in St. Louis.

The marriage of Miss Ermeda Heidemann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Heidemann of 5168 Kensington avenue, and Elmer Schewe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schewe of North St. Louis, will be solemnized June 17 at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Lewis M. Hale of the Delmar Baptist Church will perform the ceremony before members of the immediate families and a few close friends.

Mrs. Walter Pitthan of Alton, Ill., will serve the bride as matron of honor, and Miss Barbara Uhrig as maid of honor, Walter Pitthan will be best man and Ira Berry, groomsman.

How American Women May Keep Faces Young

"The American smart woman ages early, far earlier than the English woman," says Christian Miller, F. C. I., famous English health expert. She adds that our climate "so exhilarates that you over-exert yourselves and grow old before you know it. That same exhilarating air dries the skin. The skin that lacks moisture grows pale and withered looking and soon forms wrinkles.

"The American complexion" is best treated by applying pure mercolized wax, which causes the faded, lifeless cuticle to flake off in minute particles, a little each day, until the fresh, young skin beneath is wholly in evidence. Every druggist has mercolized wax; one ounce is sufficient. Spread on at night like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

LEMON JUICE BEST TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juice of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It cannot irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also as a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It cannot be bought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

Betrayed by a Hinge

A certain very unusual hinge on a pair of eyeglasses found near the body of the Franks boy in the Chicago swamp, first pointed the finger of suspicion at Leopold and Loeb.

Squinting and peering at objects as well as frequent nervous headaches, almost invariably betray a defective condition of your vision.

For 20 years I have specialized exclusively in the correction of visual defects by means of properly prescribed glasses.

Have me test your eyes tomorrow. I employ no drops or drugs of any kind. My one single charge for Testing, Frames, and Fitting is extremely moderate.

MANY CLUBS HOLD LAST MEETING OF SUMMER

Theta Delphian Chapter met at Cabanne Branch Library Wednesday morning, June 4, Mrs. Flint Garrison presiding. Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel was leader for the day, the subject being Hebrew literature and the general theme: "The most marvelous books from the world's greatest authors." Text reports were given by Mmes. S. T. Bassett, O. T. Kruse, J. F. Nelson, C. W. Tooker, George B. Logan and Edward Bretch.

The following were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Flint Garrison; vice president, Mrs. Hudson Talbott; secretary, Mrs. J. T. Clabaugh; treasurer, Mrs. Lawrence McDaniel; advisory board, Mrs. Frank L. Davis, Mrs. D. A. Ruebel, Mrs. H. B. Marshall; delegate-at-large to Delphian Council is Mrs. George B. Logan. The next meeting will be held the first Wednesday in October.

A board meeting of the St. Louis Chapter, D. A. R., was held at the home of Mrs. William D. Simmons, 5085 Raymond avenue, on Thursday, June 5. Flag day was celebrated in the west wing of the Jefferson Memorial yesterday.

Phi Delphian Chapter met at the Cabanne Branch Library Wednesday, Mrs. H. W. Dawson, president, presiding. Mrs. Ella E. Stickney led a discussion of "Social Life in Greece." Mrs. H. W. Dawson was re-elected president; Mrs. James L. Stuart, re-elected vice president; Mrs. O. W. Polster, re-elected treasurer; Mrs. S. C. Osborne, elected secretary, and Mmes. Ella E. Stickney, James Boyd and George H. Wessler, advisory board. Mrs. H. W. Dawson will entertain the chapter at her home Wednesday, June 18, the last meeting of the summer.

The executive board of the Iota Delphian Chapter has announced September 18 for its first fall meeting. This chapter hopes to have a membership of 60 by fall. A tea was given Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. C. Varns of 6432 San Bonita avenue in honor of Mrs. John Gemmel, president of the Iota Delphian, who will depart shortly for a summer vacation.

The regular meeting of the Athena Delphian Chapter was held Monday evening, June 9, at the Cabanne Branch Library. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Ione T. Gilmore; vice president, Miss Lulu Bridges; secretary, Miss Wilma M. Nutt; treasurer, Mrs. G. W. Sneed; advisory board chairman, Miss Lida Collins, Mrs. W. C. McNutt and Mrs. L. K. Nahm; parliamentarian and critic, Mrs. R. B. Helser. The chapter adjourned until the fourth Monday evening in September.

The Literary Alumnae met Saturday, June 7, at the home of Mrs. Otto Leffler, 4827 Milentz avenue. There will be no further meeting until September. Programs will be arranged and the year book will be issued during the summer, including meetings from September, 1924, to June, 1925.

The Webster Groves Chapter D. A. R. will hold its annual Flag day exercises Tuesday, June 17, at the home of Mrs. F. C. Thompson, 522 Big Bend road. Each member may bring one guest.

The Phoenix Organization of Jennings met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. W. B. Kinealy of 8557 Goodfellow avenue. "Club Affiliation for Women" was discussed. The officers are Mmes. W. B. Kinealy, E. J. Miller, J. B. Broemmelsiech, Charles Niekamp, Frank Wheeler, Perry Ballman, W. H. Haas and Herman Misselhorn.

Chapter C. K. of P. E. O. met Wednesday at the country home of Mrs. E. P. Randall. After the luncheon and business meeting, Mrs. Erwin, president, gave a report of the Missouri State Convention, wich she attended. Meetings will be discontinued until Oct. 8.

The monthly meeting of the Lafayette, W. C. T. U. was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Martha Pasch, 4238 Grace avenue, with Mrs. Mary Harrington presiding. The next meeting will be a picnic lunch at 11 a. m., July 9, at the home of Mrs. W. R. Irwin, 6215 Clifton street.

The Cheer Club will give the patients at Koch Hospital a picnic on the hospital grounds, Saturday afternoon, June 21. A special program has been arranged, after which refreshments will be served.

The St. Louis Gold Star Mothers, Staff No. 1, will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2 p. m. at the Disabled Veterans' clubhouse.

The St. Louis Lonely Club will give a moonlight excursion on the St. Paul Tuesday evening. The club will meet Friday evening at the Westminster Hall.

The first formal meeting of the St. Louis Story Tellers' League was held June 6, 1924, at the Cabanne Branch Library. The objects of the league were set forth by Dr. Arthur Armstrong, secretary of the Church Federation; Mr. L. W. Rader, Superintendent of Extension Work in the Board of Education; Miss Margaret McLaughlin of Harris Teachers' College, and Mrs. F. A. Clifford. Sponsors of the league are Dr. Arthur Armstrong, Mr. L. W. Rader, Miss Margaret McLaughlin, Dr. John J. Maddox, Miss Tillie Gecks, Dr. J. Leslie Purdom, Lansing F. Smith.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. F. A. Clifford, president; Miss Margaret McLaughlin, first vice president; Miss Flora Doran, second vice president; Mrs. R. H. McGrew, third vice president; Mrs. G. H. Ten Broek, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. H. F. Hoch, corresponding secretary.

promptu program of stories was given by Mrs. B. M. Fay, Miss Matilde Schuhr, Mrs. F. A. Clifford, Mrs. Florence W. Evans and Mrs. H. F. Hoch. The league will hold no more meetings this summer, but many interesting things are booked for the fall.

The University Thimble Club held its annual luncheon at Glen Echo Country Club on Thursday, June 12. Mrs. J. E. Stoker sang a number of songs which added greatly to the pleasure of the afternoon.

The 1915 graduation class of St. Leo's School held a reunion at the residence of Eugene Wilhelm, 4231 Holly avenue, last Thursday evening. Those present were: Misses Veronica Kennedy, Priscilla Messing, Bertha Smith, Mary Sullivan, Marie Conroy, Helen Plucinski, and Helen Porges; Messrs. Thomas Coughlin, Frank Quinn, Thomas Sullivan and Frank O'Toole. Mrs. C. Wilhelm, as hostess, was assisted by her daughters, Misses Florence, Anna and Marion Wilhelm.

Mr. and Mrs. Christ Wilhelm were given a surprise party on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, at their residence, 4231 Holly avenue, June 7. Those present were: Mrs. E. Hennefeld and daughter, Miss Margaret Hennefeld; Mr. and Mrs. F. Hennefeld and daughters, Misses Dorothy and Agnes Hennefeld; Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoffman; Mr. and Mrs. W. Specht and children, Roy Specht and Norton Specht; Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilhelm and daughter, Miss Lillian Wilhelm; William Larkin; Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilhelm Jr. and daughter, Miss Alice Wilhelm; John Wilhelm; Mr. and Mrs. E. Stafford and daughter, Miss Ann Stafford; Mr. and Mrs. A. Gernhardt; Mr. and Mrs. J. Knecht and son, Edward Knecht; Mr. and Mrs. H. Fugner; Mr. and Mrs. G. Goode and sons, Richard and Peter Goode; Mr. and Mrs. L. Dodge and daughters, Misses Anita and Doris Dodge; Mr. and Mrs. F. Brandenburg and son, Fred Brandenburg Jr.; Miss Barbara Hackenhaus; Mr. and Mrs. C. Leich and daughter, Miss Florence Leich; Mr. and Mrs. W. Bischoff; Mrs. J. Donovan and son Joseph Donovan Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Cole and children, Miss Jessie Cole and Howard Cole; Miss Josephine Lange and the children of the celebrants, Eugene Wilhelm and Misses Florence, Anna and Marion Wilhelm.

The Girls' Friendly Society will open Holiday House, the summer camp of the organization at Monarch, Mo., next Saturday. The house is on a bluff overlooking the Missouri River. Details may be obtained from Mrs. W. H. Ivers, 4140 Castleman avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosenkranz of 4551 Chouteau avenue entertained relatives and friends Thursday in honor of the graduation of their son, Samuel, from Washington University.

The women of Major William McKinley Circle No. 13 of the Grand Army of the Republic will give a benefit concert Tuesday evening at the Wednesday Club. Those on the program include: Mr. Jones, Mr. Enlinger, Miss Knobeloch, and Miss Hilb.

The twentieth annual commencement exercises of the Kroeger School of Music will be held Wednesday evening at Delmar Baptist Church, Skinker road and Washington avenue. Seventeen graduates will receive diplomas. The tenth annual banquet of the Kroeger Alumni Association will be given at Forest Park Hotel Thursday night.

Golden Days of sunlight for babies who have Lloyds

Wholesome, happy outdoor hours—how much health they mean to your baby! And how you yourself will look forward to them if you have a handsome Lloyd Loom Carriage in which to exhibit the baby to an admiring world! The beauty of line, flawless weaving, rich finish and harmonizing upholstery of this carriage are a fitting setting for the precious bit of humanity who rides in it.

Spiral weaving, on the patented Lloyd Loom, gives this carriage its distinctive appearance, which no other carriage can have. By a remarkable weaving method, a single, continuous strand of finest wicker is fashioned into a graceful bowl shape, without seams, corners or pieced short ends of wicker. This exclusive weaving method, thirty times as fast as hand weaving, also cuts costs amazingly—permits every refinement of finish without adding to the price. Ask your dealer to show you Lloyd Loom Carriages. Look for the Lloyd name plate on the seat. Lloyd Loom Furniture and Doll Carriages are also made by the same spiral weaving process.

THERE are eight distinct styles, well made of ginghams and chambray in excellent qualities. There are checks, plaids and solid colors, that will not fade. The collars are in attractive new styles; crochet buttons, lace edging, striped organdie and gabardine are very effective as trimming.

Altogether one of the most attractive groups we have presented in a long time.

SMALL POTATO CROP BRINGS MONEY CRISIS

Esthonia's Spirits Industry Affected by That and Several Other Causes.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.

REVAL, Esthonia, May 25.—Esthonia has been experiencing a serious financial and economic crisis, the principal reason for which was the failure of her potato crop last year.

In 1922 Esthonia produced 707,000 tons of potatoes, of which 46,000 were exported and 76,500 were used in the manufacture of spirits. The spirits industry is a very important source of revenue for the Goevrnment and is one of the most profitable industries in the country. In 1922, 2,000,000 gallons of raw alcohol were produced by 176 Esthonian distilleries. Last year, on account of the poor potato crop the output of spirits amounted to only 1,200,000 gallons, although the number of distilleries had increased to 198.

Russian Prohibition Cuts Trade.

These figures are small compared with those of the pre-war period, when Esthonia was part of the Russian empire and supplied the Russian hinterland with potatoes to spirits. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, there were 277 distilleries in Esthonia which produced 9,500,000 gallons of spirits. This was made into the Russian national drink, vodka, consumed in large quantities by prince and peasant alike. Since the revolution in 1917, Russia has prohibited the importation and sale of spirits and Esthonia's spirit industry has lost its most important market.

While prohibition has dealt the Esthonian alcohol producers a severe blow, it has compensated them to a certain extent. Esthonia, since becoming independent, has been almost completely surrounded by "dry" countries, with Finland only a few hours' boat ride away and Sweden, which is "near dry" very handy. It required no great imagination on the part of the spirits producers to see that those countries offered a market that would prove even more lucrative than either the home or the Russian market. So Esthonia, in 1920, became the West Indies of the Baltic.

Smuggling Trade to Germans.

The many islands along the coast of Finland, some of which also are only one day's journey away from Sweden, offered ideal landing and hiding places for the smugglers of contraband liquor, and a rum fleet, such as the one lying outside New York harbor, was not slow in organizing. High prices were paid for Esthonian spirits and the bootlegging industry flourished until last summer, when, in addition to the short potato crop, a disturbing element upset all the optimistic plans.

One by one, mysterious sailing vessels anchored alongside the Esthonia and Finnish smuggling craft, and large signs were displayed announcing that 100 proof spirits could be had at prices far below those charged by the Esthonian smugglers. For a while the Esthonians put up a fight. They cut prices under those of the strangers, who turned out to be Germans and who in turn undersold them, until finally all but a few Esthonians withdrew. Now Finland is being swamped with inferior German spirits, even wood alcohol, according to the Esthonians, but they still get the blame for it.

Prohibition Not Success.

"Thank heaven! Germany has taken away most of the illicit liquor traffic from our smugglers," said Dr. Friedrich Akel, Esthonian Foreign Minister, in explaining the refusal of the Esthonian Government to accept Finland's proposal to make a treaty giving her the same rights to search suspicious vessels outside the three-mile limit as the United States has under the new agreement with Great Britain. "A treaty between Esthonia and Finland alone would be useless. If all countries with coasts on the Baltic, including Germany, agreed to such a treaty the plan would be practical. Once bootlegging becomes a penal offense in all Baltic countries, it can be curbed, although in my opinion it cannot ever be stopped altogether."

86 PUBLIC SCHOOL RECREATION CENTERS

Yards to Open Tomorrow, With Instructors at Most of Them.

No boy or girl in St. Louis this summer will have cause to utter that time-honored excuse for attending movie matinees—"there ain't no place to play." Nor must anyone who wishes to emulate Babe Ruth or Pavlowa remain idle for lack of a baseball or a dancing instructor.

Beginning tomorrow, 86 public school yards in all parts of the city will be opened as community recreation centers with men and women instructors in charge. An appropriation of approximately $30,000 will see to it that there are enough supervisors, baseballs and bats, reed and raffia, etc. Another $30,000 will pay for permanent playground apparatus, such as swings, slides, merry-go-rounds and combination devices, which is to be installed following opening of bids next Friday.

Instructors for Most Yards.

The yards will be open for play from 1 to 5 p. m. on summer school days and from 9 a. m. to 12 on Saturdays, continuing until Aug. 30. Most yards will have two instructors, man and woman, but one will have three and four one only. Rodowe Abeken will be supervisor over all, with Fred C. Voss Jr. and Aurelia J. Sullivan as assistant supervisors. Most of the instructors are graduates or students of Harris Teachers' College and Washington and St. Louis Universities.

The idea behind the conversion of the school yards into recreation centers is to keep the children in safe and healthy surroundings, particulary away from automobiles and rivers. All but 14 public school yards will be open, and these are in districts already served by municipal playgrounds. The mechanical playground apparatus to be installed will remain in the yards. This is the first year in which the summer playground idea has been tried out on a large scope, previous years having seen only a few, or none, equipped and supervised.

School Yards to Be Opened.

The school yards which are to be opened tomorrow follow:

White—Adams, Ames, Arlington, Ashland, Baden, Batsa, Benton, Blair, Bryan Hill, Buder, Carondelet, Carr Lane, Charless, Clark, Clay, Clinton, Columbia, Cote Brilliante, Crow, Cupples, Des Peres, Dewey, Dozier, Elliot, Emerson, Fanning, Farragut, Field, Franklin, Fremont, Froebel, Gardenville, Garfield, Glasgow, Grant, Gratiot, Hamilton, Harrison, Hempstead, Hodgen, Howard, Humboldt, Irving, Kennard, Long, Lowell, Lyon, Madison, Mann, Marquette, Mark Twain, Mason, Meramec, Monroe, Mount Pleasant, Mullanphy, Oak Hill, Peabody, Pestalozzi, Rock Spring, Roe, Scruggs, Shaw, Shenandoah, Shepard, Sherman, Sigel, Stix, Walbridge, Walnut Park, Washington, Webster, Woodward, Wyman.

Negro—Banneker, Delany, Dessalines, Dumas, Garnett, Lincoln, L'Ouverture, Marshall, Montgomery, Waring, West Belle, Wheatley.

PRINCE OF WALES SAYS HE GETS COMMONER EVERY DAY

Heir to British Throne Is Said to Be Developing Philosophic Turn of Mind.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 14.—The Prince of Wales is developing the philosophic mind. Everybody is always talking or writing about what a fine young man the Prince is, but his ideas of other folks seldom get printed. They would be more interesting than some of the well-worn tributes to the Prince's good looks and manners if his recent comment about somebody he knows has been correctly reported.

"Every day that blessed so-and-so gets royaller and royaller, and every day I get commoner and commoner," Wales is said to have remarked about this person.

Crossing Arapahoe Glacier - July 7, 1923

Perpetual Ice and Snow Only 33 Hours from St. Louis

Just a few hours' ride by rail---or in your automobile---to Boulder and the very heart of Colorado's Glacier Region. Think of it!

When the sweltering heat drives you to cooler haunts, remember Boulder holds out a welcoming hand to come and share with her Nature's incomparable gifts of climate and scenery.

Get away from the worrisome heat and humidity this summer. Come to the Rocky Mountains, where you can really enjoy yourself. A visit here will cost only a small amount. You can stay in mile-high Boulder, at the threshold of the Glaciers—or live in hotel or cabin—$000, 10000 or 12000 feet above the sea. Plan now to come.

Summer railroad rates are low---ask your ticket agent. Or you can motor all the way to Boulder over National Highways.

Quicken Your Pulse With the Thrill of the Rapids

For more than three hundred years the River St. Lawrence, between Lake Ontario and the Island of Montreal, has been the highway of adventure. The stolid and unemotional redskin, bound for the annual fur-market at Montreal, shouted with exultation as his birch canoe leaped to the thunderous surges of Lachine. The Jesuits of the Huron Missions, returning from some lonely outpost of God in the wilderness, sang Te Deum to the sonorous accompaniment of its tempestuous waters. Lord Amherst's British battalions advancing to the contest of Quebec, all contended with the stupendous might of the rapids, and felt the thrill of triumph in their swift, tumultuous descent.

You too may feel it—in perfect comfort and safety, from the deck of a modern steamship of the Canada Steamship Lines. Through the enchanted playground of the Thousand Islands, descending the mighty rapids, and onward to Montreal and Quebec, is indeed a voyage of adventure into the land of a romantic yesterday. Begin your journey at Niagara Falls, Toronto, Rochester, Alexandria Bay, Clayton, Montreal or Quebec, and return the same way; arranging your trip so as to stop off a day at the important points without having to worry about hotel accommodations.

THE BELMONT IN SUMMER

The countless diversions that Chicago offers to the summer guest are particularly accessible from The Belmont. This location could scarcely be improved.

The Belmont overlooks Lake Michigan, a stone's throw away, with an uninterrupted view; it fronts the Lincoln Park Yacht Harbor, Golf Links and Bridle Paths. It is convenient to the North Shore and it is twelve minutes to the loop by motor bus.

The Belmont is cool and quiet, spacious, luxuriously comfortable. It is notable for the elegance and taste of its appointments and for the character of its service. These are fully at the disposal of the out of town guest, for a day or a month.

Special rates for the summer, surprisingly low for what they cover.

"CHICAGO'S GREATEST HOTEL"

A Sixteen Acre Private Estate
For your Summer Vacation at the Chicago Beach Hotel

Our beautiful sixteen acre estate is maintained for the exclusive enjoyment of our guests. A privately owned bathing beach, golf putting course, tennis courts, open air dance pavilion, play grounds for the kiddies and beautiful terraced lawns—all on the spacious grounds of the Hotel, right on the shore of Lake Michigan.

The hotel is surrounded by sweeping verandas. There are sun parlors, writing rooms, lounging rooms, reading rooms, billiard room, beauty parlors, barber shops, private library—all located along the famous quarter mile lobby.

Our guests find throughout the week, a round of recreation and enjoyment in the card parties, motion pictures, afternoon teas, dinner dances and Sunday evening concerts arranged for their amusement by the Management.

Here you may select from 1,000 bright, cheerful rooms—and every one an outside room. Plans and rates will be furnished on request.

WHAT MISSOURIANS AT CAPITAL ARE DOING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 14.

WASHINGTON society took its way to Cleveland during the past week. The Missouri congressional delegation almost to a man, Republicans and Democrats alike, were there. Among the Missouri women who attended were Mrs. Philip Moore, Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, chairman of the Women's Democratic Committee, who was the guest of Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, head of Republican women, at the convention; Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, Mrs. Dwight Davis, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War, and Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Long.

Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer, accompanied her husband to the convention.

President and Mrs. Coolidge got the convention by radio. John C. Coolidge and Calvin Coolidge Jr., sons of the President and Mrs. Coolidge, are at the White House for two weeks before going to spend July with their grandfather at Plymouth, Vt., after which they will attend the citizens' military training camp at Camp Deven, Mass.

Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz of Missouri, who is in town for a few days, Monday was made a member of the National Sojourners' Club, which has many notable officials as members.

Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the Republican vice presidential nominee, is well known in Washington. She is small of stature, with an intelligent, kindly face. She dresses in simple, good taste and is interested in literature and in her beautiful home on the shore of Lake Michigan in Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Dawes will come to Washington versed in the ways of officialdom, for she presided over the household of her husband when he was Comptroller in the McKinley administration and Director of the Budget in the Harding term.

The fact that General Dawes is a musical composer perhaps accounts for the fact that his wife is active in behalf of the Chicago Orchestra, the Chicago Grand Opera and musicians in general. Mrs. Dawes is also a member of many charitable and philanthropic organizations.

The home at Evanston is surrounded by lovely grounds and gardens. The house is full of curios and art treasures.

The Daweses' only daughter, Carolyn, is now Mrs. Melvin Erickson and also lives in Evanston. Their son, Rufus Dawes, was drowned accidentally about 10 years ago. Two adopted children, Dana Dawes, 14, and Virginia, 12, make their home with their foster-parents.

Mrs. Dawes, before her marriage, was Miss Caro D. Blymyer of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The annual picnic of the Missouri Society was held Thursday on the grounds back of the Sixteenth Street Reservoir, given to the Government by Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the former Senator from Missouri. There were ball games, races and other sports. The officers of the Missouri Society conducted the event. They include Representative Cleveland A. Newton, president; Joe J. Manlove, James L. Balty and Mrs. Bessie Parker Brueggeman, vice presidents; Horace J. Phelps, treasurer, and Stanley H. Ridings, secretary.

Gen. Pershing departed Tuesday for West Point, where he will attend the graduating exercises, later sailing for Europe for the summer. On Monday the General entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham in compliment to Col. and Mrs. George C. Marshall, who will leave here on July 21 for Tien Tsin, China. The other guests included Major-General and Mrs. Robert C. Davis, Col. and Mrs. Bryan Wells, Brigadier-General and Mrs. Dennis E. Nolan, Brigadier-General and Mrs. Hugh A. Drum, Maj. and Mrs. Harold Raynor, Capt. and Mrs. George Adamson, Col. and Mrs. Frank Burnett and Miss Ramona Lefevre.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. E. Hutchinson entertained at dinner last week. Among the guests were a number of Missourians.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgins was one of the guests of honor at a luncheon given for the wives of members of the faculty of George Washington University by the Columbian Women, on Saturday after return from Cleveland.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair went from Cleveland to New York, where preliminary meetings are being held in preparation for the Democratic national convention. Mrs. Blair will be the guest of honor at several social affairs given by Democratic women of New York.

Col. and Mrs. James Carson Breckenridge entertained at luncheon at the Marine Barracks last week. Mrs. Breckenridge also received a few friends for tea.

Mrs. Leigh C. Palmer, wife of the chairman of the United States Shipping Board, and her daughter, Miss Bessie McKeldin, will sail for Europe on July 4. Miss McKeldin is one of the most popular debutantes of the season.

Miss Rose Lazarus of 6412 Enright avenue entertained a number of friends in honor of her guest, Miss Adeline Linsky of Venice, Cal., last evening.

Mrs. Alby Donaldson McCarthy has given up her home at 378 North Taylor avenue, and has gone to Crescent, Mo., to live.

At Last! Something That Does More Than Pro

PYORRHEA

COMPLETELY BANISHED IN 20 DAYS

NO longer is it necessary to suffer with loose teeth, ulcerated bleeding gums, polluted breath and the hundreds of ailments caused by pyorrhea poisoning. For Science has at last succeeded in producing an amazing preparation which absolutely accomplishes what up to the present has been thought impossible—it completely BANISHES PYORRHEA—the worst case as easily as the mildest.

Due to its remarkable penetrating properties, BESLIN reaches into the diseased gums and root sockets which hold the teeth. It destroys all forms of bacteria that cause pyorrhea, clears up pus, stops bleeding, heals gums and makes them firm and healthy, and through its tissue-building power actually tightens loose teeth!

Severe clinical tests fail to show a single case of pyorrhea that has not been eliminated by this remarkable preparation.

But we don't ask you to take our word for anything. You can easily prove every claim made for BESLIN by testing it for yourself. A 30-day treatment will absolutely banish your case of pyorrhea, no matter how serious or your money will be refunded, so you assume no risk in making the trial.

ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPH showing terrible ravages of pyorrhea—set of second perfect teeth. Leading dentists and doctors recommend the use of BESLIN to prevent and clear up all pyorrhea conditions.

DOUBLE GUARANTEE

Every package of BESLIN contains a written guarantee to refund your money if, after using a 30-day treatment, you are not completely satisfied. You get double protection—your money back if you know and who has given it, and you will sign this guarantee. Don't delay, unless it's your intention to continue to suffer from loose teeth, diseased gums and pyorrhea when you can have the wonderful results promised by this remarkable preparation.

PLAY FOR BENEFIT OF FREE ICE FUND

Ticket Sale Begins Tomorrow for "Three Live Ghosts" at Empress Friday Night.

Tickets will be on sale tomorrow at the Aeolian Co., 1004 Olive street, for the play "Three Live Ghosts" which is to be given for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies Milk Fund at the Empress Theater, Friday evening, June 20, by the 138th Infantry Dramatic Club. The regular theater prices of 50c and $1.00 will be charge and the entire proceeds of the show will accrue to the fund for the babies, as the use the theater has been given without charge and theater attaches are donating their services for the evening. Miss Elizabeth Cueny and the Aeolian company are donating the use of the ticket office for the advance ticket sale.

Harry J. Scott is directing the cast of "Three Live Ghosts," which is a 3-act comedy by Frederick Isham and Max Marcin. Through special arrangement with Samuel French, publisher of the play, the royalty on Friday evening's performance has been waived. Since the production is entirely for charity, no war tax will be charged.

W. S. Colvin, secretary of the Executive Committee of the American Legion in St. Louis, is sending a letter to each legion post urging that members attend Friday's performance, not only to aid the Ice Fund but to assure an evening of real pleasure for themselves.

"Three Live Ghosts" was first produced at the Greenwich Village Theater, New York, Sept. 29, 1920, and was one of the outstanding hits of the year. Later it toured the principal cities. It was given May 16 and 17 at Moolah Temple for the benefit of the regimental fund by the twelve players who will present it Friday, and proved a huge success, financially as well as artistically. It is a charming comedy, constructed with skill and abounding in clever lines and funny situations.

BOY COMPLETES MINIATURE REPRODUCTION OF STAGE

High School Youth Also Has Lighting Effects After Three Years of Work.

George Gage Grob, 15 years old, of 4246 Grace avenue, a student at Cleveland High School, has completed, after three years' work, a miniature reproduction of the entire stage of the Missouri Theater.

The reproduction is about three feet square, and is built of wood and paper-mache, colored like the original. A complete lighting system is installed with footlights and colored effects, which can be operated with a small switchboard to attain an instantaneous or a gradual change in any shade desired. Grob says this effect was difficult to get, and was finally accomplished through the use of certain attachments from a radio set, which, in like manner, regulate he volume of sound.

Along with numerous drops, side screens and other ornamental stage fittings, there is a moving picture screen on which the pictures are focused down to an appropriate size. Among other miniature reproductions, most of the scenes from "Il Trovatore" have been successfully duplicated. Nearly all shifting is operated mechanically from the back of the stage.

Jewish Fund Flower Day.

Toda yis the Jewish National Fund "flower day" in St. Louis. Teams of young men and women are canvassing the Jewish sections urging co-religionists to contribute toward the Jewish National Fund, the agency responsible for the redemption of the soil of Palestine. More than 15 organizations and 100 workers are participating in the campaign and it is expected the local quota of $1000 will be oversubscribed.

CONTROLLERS' CONGRESS TO CONVENE HERE TOMORROW

300 Persons to Discuss Practical Methods of Reducing Cost of Retail Distribution.

"Practical Methods for the Reduction in Cost of Retail Distribution" will be the theme of a four-day gathering, opening at Hotel Statler tomorrow, which will be attended by about 300 persons qualified to contribute to the discussions. They are the members of the Controllers' Congress, a branch of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. In business life they are the men who supervise the vast financial detail of modern store merchandising, including the large department and chain stores.

The convention will open at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow, with a welcome by Mayor Kiel and reports by the chairman, David E. Moeser of Boston and the secretary-treasurer, Peter F. Jenss of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Thereafter the sessions will be devoted to a discussion of merchandising problems. The keynote address, as quoted above, will be delivered Tuesday morning by Lew Hahn, managing director of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Included in the program are discussions on "Mechanical Posting;" "Saving Possible by the Use of the Unit Instead of the Dual plan;" "How the Use of a Fixed Per Cent of Stock Shrinkage Will Help Profits;" "Savings in Advertising;" "The Economies of Using the Telephone O. K. System of Credit Authorization;" "The Economies of the Tube System of Credit Authorization;" "Savings in insurance, in receiving, checking and marking of merchandise and in delivery and warehouse; and standardization of store methods.

Tuesday evening the visitors will be guests at the Municipal Opera, and Wednesday evening The Associated Retailers will be hosts at a banquet at the Statler.

DELEGATION AT STATION TO HONOR MRS. BURLINGHAM

Home Coming of Republican National Committeewoman Occasion for aGy Meeting.

Mrs. Grace Semple Burlingham, who was elected Republican national committeewoman from Missouri at a meeting of the Missouri delegation to the Republican National Convention in Cleveland Tuesday, was met at Union Station on her return to St. Louis yesterday by a delegation, including many members of the Republican Women's City Committee and other friends.

They presented flowers to her and informed her that within a few days they would arrange a dinner in her honor. The testimonial will be in denial of a report that Mrs. Burlingham would not have the co-operation of the Republican organization in St. Louis, which gave its support to her opponent, Mrs. Lon O. Hocker, for committeewoman.

ST. LOUIS U. 'PREP' GRADUATION

127 Boys Will Get Diplomas at Exercises Tomorrow Night.

A class of 127 boys will be graduated at the joint commencement exercises of St. Louis Academy and Loyola Hall, St. Louis University preparatory schools, at the university auditorium, Lindell near Grand boulevard, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. The occasion will mark the 105th commencement of St. Louis Academy, founded at Second and Walnut streets in 1818.

Of the group to be graduated 58 have finished the classical course, 43 the scientific and eight the commercial course. Eighteen young men will be given certificates of credit. The address of the evening will be delivered by James W. Byrnes, honor graduate of both the high school and the university. John D. Finney will speak on "The Power and Duty of the American Voter," and Edward Jordan on "The Impregnability of Catholic Allegiance." The diplomas will be presented by President William F. Robison of St. Louis University.

The estate of Charles W. Mansur, implement manufacturer, who died Feb. 20, has been assessed $6040.92 under the State inheritance tax. In addition Federal taxes to be levied are estimated at $4671.60. The State assessment was made yesterday by an appraiser, who found the gross market value of the estate to be $312,159. Mansur was president of the Board of Police Commissioners of St. Louis during the administration of Gov. Gardner.

A FLY'S LAST BREATH

Flies breathe through a score of tiny pores. And when they get a breath of El Vampiro, they die. There's no need to ask the insects to find and eat a poison powder or liquid. That's messy and dangerous. But though El Vampiro puffs speedy death at all insects, it is harmless to man and animal. A few puffings will rid your home of every fly and bug. It will free chickens of lice and dogs of fleas. You'll find El Vampiro at the nearest store, in the YELLOW bellows box, for 10c and 30c. Also a sifter-top can for $1.25. Her Cooking Made Him Sick

Stomach Trouble (Gas) Made Man Hard to Get Along With

"I could not say too much about Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic). Since taking it I can eat almost anything. Before I took it I could eat hardly anything, and everything I did eat made me sick." (Signed) H. C. Hummel.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour gas on the stomach and the like, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS gives relief. A longer treatment, however, necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of a physician.

Reports from Physicians.

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all of my cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing to equal it in my practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver, Ind.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't words to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES Adlerika has removed from my system." (Signed) Mrs. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary liver and stomach medicines, as it acts with such rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE relief. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wm. Schlemer Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Enderle Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

I LOST 50 POUNDS in 2 Months This Easy Way!
In Paris I Learned a Secret for Which Millionaires Paid Thousands. Let Me Tell It to You Free of Charge

If you are one of many who tried everything to reduce, without success—if you are suffering from a weak heart, high blood pressure, tired feeling, shortness of breath due to obesity—at last you can be relieved. If your figure is such that you are embarrassed to appear in public with your husband or your friends looking slender friends, you can now entertain new hopes. Whether it is your bust, your thighs or your arms that you want to reduce; or maybe only one or two rolls of fat have lately appeared in certain parts of your body, or if you are 10 pounds too fat or 100 pounds, you owe it to yourself to investigate this method, WHICH DOES AWAY WITH WEAKENING DIETS, ABSURD CREAMS, TIRESOME EXERCISES, REDUCING CREAMS, ETC.
From my experience, I know how many worthless things you have tried in the past, and in the effort to help you regain slenderness without being again disappointed, I have decided to give you the secret which relieved me of 50 pounds of ugly surplus fat, and made me feel like a new woman. Simply go to any good druggist, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA tablets (be sure the name and do not accept any substitute). SAN-GRI-NA is the preparation of a French physician, and the most wonderful thing I ever found to reduce my weight—my case was an obstinate one, and I had tried everything known to reduce, without success. It is the first time SAN-GRI-NA is offered to the American public, as up to now it has been used in private practice where enormous prices have been paid for it. UNTIL YOU TRY IT YOU CANNOT SAY THAT YOUR FAT CANNOT BE REMOVED. Take two small tablets before meals and watch your fat disappear. Remember, that SAN-GRI-NA IS GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, AND IS SOLD WITH A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE. It will not harm you in any way; on the contrary, the moment you start taking it you will feel yourself filled with pep and energy. SAN-GRI-NA is now sold at any of Speckart Bros. Stores, Schnuck Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Stores, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, or Otto's Drug Stores.

Piles Can Be Cured Without Surgery
An instructive book has been published by Dr. A. R. McCleary, the noted rectal specialist of Kansas City. This book tells how sufferers from Piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity or other cutting or burning method, without confinement to bed and no hospital bills to pay. The method has been a success for 25 years and in more than 9000 cases. The book is sent postpaid free to any afflicted with piles or other rectal trouble who clip this item and mail it with name and address to Dr. McCleary, 916 McGee Sanitarium, Kansas City, Mo.

WIDE SUPPORT IS FOUND FOR EXPANSION PLAN

Initiative Petitions Paving Way for Extending City Limits Have 23,670 Names in Three Weeks.

With only three weeks having passed since the Metropolitan Committee of St. Louis and St. Louis County opened its initiative petition campaign to provide ways and means for extension of the city limits, enough signatures already have been obtained to indicate that the movement will be a success. At the closing hour yesterday at headquarters on the sixth floor of the Chamber of Commerce Building, it was announced that 23,670 names already have been received, and the plans now working will provide an equal number that are still needed.

Of the names received 18,650 are from out-of-town sections, and every congressional district of the State is liberally represented. The Fifteenth District, which includes Joplin and other important cities of the southwest portion of the State, already is "over the top," while the Fourth and Fifth Districts, representing Kansas City and St. Joseph, respectively, as well as three St. Louis districts, are expected to have their full quotas in early in the week.

One of the districts to respond heartily to the plea of the Metropolitan Committee is the Ninth, which is just adjacent, and where the St. Louis newspapers, carrying description of the proposed plan, have wide circulation. The Ninth already has sent in 2150 signatures and is expected to pass its quota when the Monday morning mail is in. The Southeast Missouri section already has rallied to the movement, and the Fourtenth District, at the present rate of delivery, will come to the aid of the proposition with at least 4500 signatures.

Sixty-one counties have sent in 200 or more names, and the expectation is that every county will have representation in excess of this number when the final count is made.

GIRL, 11, IS YOUNGEST SHAW SCHOOL GRADUATE

Pupil Finishes Regular Course and Also Typewriting Despite Long Illness.

Henrietta Elizabeth Felix, 11 years old, who was graduated from the Shaw School this week, as the youngest in her class, although she had lost nearly a school year in her six years there through illness, last fall studied typewriting on Saturdays and later taught it to other pupils at the school.

Henrietta was the only girl from the graduating class to take advantage of a business school's offer of nine free typewriting lessos. While she attended the business school she kept up her regular work at the Shaw School, and when some of the other girls there wanted to learn typewriting she taught them, using the typewriter in the school office.

She will enter Cleveland High School in the fall and plans to complete the four-year course in less than that time, continuing business studies and also specializing in French or Spanish. She speaks German now. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Felix of 5346 Odell street.

FLYING CLUB WILL GIVE FOURTH OF JULY "CIRCUS"

Aerial Acrobatics and Other Stunts Will Be Performed by Airmen.

A Fourth of July aerial show will be given by the Flying Club of St. Louis at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Interest in aeronautics brought out by the national air meet at this field last October is expected to be reawakened by this show, plans for which are comprehensive. Traffic and transportation arrangemetns are being made to handle crowds approaching in size those which attended the national air meet.

A novelty promised is an aerial fireworks exhibition. Scott Field airships are expected to take part and one of them will drop real bombs on a dummy "ship" on the flying field, to demonstrate war tactics. A squadron of army airplanes may be sent to the show, also.

There will be "stunt" flying of various sorts, among the flyers being a woman who will do acrobatics on the upper wing of a looping plane. The program has not been completed.

OBJECTS TO STREET WIDENING FUND PLAN

Lawyer Says It Will Throw Bond Money Into General City Revenues.

Charging that use of a revolving fund of $2,500,000 bond issue money to hasten street opening and widening projects under the bond issue will enable diversion of money collected from benefited property to general city funds, where its use cannot be governed by the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, W. B. Thompson, a lawyer, yesterday filed exceptions to the commissioners' report on the Olive street widening project.

William Senn, chief condemnation attorney for the city, declared that Thompson's contention was wrong, because property benefit collections, where the revolving fund will be used, must be devoted to reimbursement of bond issue items affected, to keep the proper balance on bond issue accounts. There is no doubt of the city's right to use such a revolving fund, Senn said.

Arguments as to Fund.

Revolving fund money will be used to pay the whole amount of damages in the Olive street and other projects, in anticipation of collection of benefits, Thompson contends and he argues that if the city does this it should pay for the improvements entirely out of the bond issue instead of creating benefit districts to pay for a large part of the work.

If this change in plan were adopted it would have the effect, probably, of reducing the number of projects that could be paid for under the bond issue.

The exceptions were filed with Circuit Judge Pearcy, with whom the Olive street commissioners' report had been filed, by the law firm of Thompson and his son, Ford W. Thompson. The latter declared that the action was not a scheme to save money, although W. B. Thompson is assessed about $1400 for two pieces of property in the benefit district, but was taken from a sense of civic duty, "to prevent the city hall from collecting a large sum of money without supervision of its use."

The Olive Street Report.

The commissioners fixed total benefits to property in a large area, extending from Third street to Kingshighway, at $2,349,507, of which the city's share will be $492,884, leaving $1,856,623 for property owners to pay. In addition, the city must agree with owners of the 40-foot strip to be taken from the south side of Olive street, between Twelfth boulevard and Lindell cut-off, on damages to be paid them and must pave the widened street. The revolving fund will be used for deposits in court as guarantees of payment by the city when disputes arise over damages.

FRENCH RACEHORSES ARE TO COMPETE AT ASCOT

Most Brilliant Society Function of Season Begins Tuesday, Many Americans on Hand.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—Royal Ascot Week, commencing next Tuesday, June 17, will be probably the most brilliant race week and society function this season, with a record attendance, in view of the American and colonial visitors here for the British Empire exhibition.

The King and Queen will entertain a select circle of guests at Windsor Castle, from which they will drive daily through the Great Park in their motors to Ascot where they will change to landaus proceeding in semi-state behind four horses and with gentlemen outriders through the race track and right up to the royal box.

As the Epsom races on the open downs are principally for "the people," Ascot is reserved for the society folk, who have to pay for the privilege of getting into the race course and also big prices for seats in the stand. There is such a rush for these reservations, at from 15 to 30 guineas, that all were sold a week ago, while the tickets to the royal enclosure have long been allotted.

After the daily races, at which the women vie with each other in the matter of dress, there is a continuous round of entertainments and house parties in the big establishments nearby.

As far as the racing is concerned there is a strong international flavor to the entries this year, French sportsmen having sent over 30 horses to compete for the several valuable prizes offered, including the Royal Hunt cup, the gold cup and the gold vase.

It is hoped by sporting men that the French cracks, Epinard and Sir Gallahad, will be sent to the post, despite the big handicaps in the matter of weights imposed on them.

LABOR GOVERNMENT MAY STOP SWEEPSTAKE BETTING

Home Minister Henderson Tells House of Commons Law Will Be Impartially Enforced.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—Having kept the British empire running fairly well for the last six months, the Labor Government is going to turn its hand to a really difficult job, and try to suppress sweepstake betting on the horse races.

Home Minister Henderson the other night told the House of Commons that the law against sweepstakes would be enforced impartially. He was immediately reminded that 37 Labor party organizations should then be first to be punished, for all had sweeps on the Derby.

It was also suggested that Mr. Henderson might find means of prosecuting the whole country at once and be done with it, for nearly everybody buys a sweepstake ticket or two at Derby time.

The sweeps are organized for sorts of charitable and benevolent purposes.

AUTO PRODUCTION INCREASE IS DUE, SAY FINANCIERS

Expect It Soon — Opinion Is Factories Will Not Jam So Hard Next Winter as in 1923-24.

By a Special Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—The automobile manufacturers, who began this year leaning forward in their anxiety to have enough cars, probably will begin 1925 leaning well back in an effort to avoid having surplus machines on their hands. It is generally agreed that the automobile companies are not likely to enter another winter manufacturing campaign similar to that of the period just passed.

The theory that sales were lost in large numbers in past years owing to inability to deliver cars in April, May and June, was pretty thoroughly punctured this spring. Sales analysists now admit that the public is likely to rush in and demand cars when they are not plentiful, but will hold back orders when it knows every maker has ample stock on hand.

Financiers Optimistic.

Next spring there is going to be careful guard against over production, and, as a result, there may be another so-called shortage.

While the production end of the automobile business in May and thus far this month fell to what probably will prove to be the low level of the year, sales of cars at retail in many sections in the last six weeks have shown a decided increase over April. The discrepancy between production and sales represents the reduction in stocks of cars manufactured earlier in the year and means a gradual return to normal.

Had retail sales declined with production, there might have been something for the automobile men to worry about. But as matters stand, nearly all the more promi-

AUTO PRODUCTION INCREASE IS DUE, SAY FINANCIERS

Expect It Soon — Opinion Is Factories Will Not Jam So Hard Next Winter as in 1923-24.

By a Special Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, June 14.—The automobile manufacturers, who began this year leaning forward in their anxiety to have enough cars, probably will begin 1925 leaning well back in an effort to avoid having surplus machines on their hands. It is generally agreed that the automobile companies are not likely to enter another winter manufacturing campaign similar to that of the period just passed.

The theory that sales were lost in large numbers in past years owing to inability to deliver cars in April, May and June, was pretty thoroughly punctured this spring. Sales analysists now admit that the public is likely to rush in and demand cars when they are not plentiful, but will hold back orders when it knows every maker has ample stock on hand.

Financiers Optimistic.

Next spring there is going to be careful guard against over production, and, as a result, there may be another so-called shortage.

While the production end of the automobile business in May and thus far this month fell to what probably will prove to be the low level of the year, sales of cars at retail in many sections in the last six weeks have shown a decided increase over April. The discrepancy between production and sales represents the reduction in stocks of cars manufactured earlier in the year and means a gradual return to normal.

Had retail sales declined with production, there might have been something for the automobile men to worry about. But as matters stand, nearly all the more prominent companies are now near normal as between the number of cars on hand and in possession of dealers. Financiers closely allied with the industry feel this indicates production soon will increase to care for late summer and fall demand and for the making of new models.

Retail Sales Gaining.

Retail sales in Wayne County, Mich., of which Detroit is the center, amounted to 8607 in May. This compares with sales of 7757 in May, 1923, which was the previous high record month in that locality. In the five months up to June 1, deliveries in Wayne County were 34,822 as against 27,242 in the corresponding period of 1923. This county is mentioned because practically every prospective car buyer in it is in thorough touch with the trend of automobile output and prices.

Dodge Brothers retail deliveries in May totaled 23,297, as compared with 20,570 a year ago. This was the largest May business in the history of the company and stocks are lower than at any time since volume production was started.

May retail deliveries of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. amounted to 5294 Paige and Jewett cars, as compared with 4800 in May, 1923. Sales of the company for five months amounted to 18,850, as against 17,806 in the same period last year.

The Ford company has let the contract for a new assembling unit at Dallas, which will bring the plant capacity there to 105,000 cars and trucks a year.

An automobile that requires a gallon of gas to go 20 miles will consume a gallon of gas in approximately 50 startings.

CHAINS BAR JAY-WALKING ON BUFFALO STREETS DURING TRAFFIC RUSHES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 14.—This city is trying the chain method of shifting pedestrians to street corners by blocking them from crossing wherever they please. Barriers of chains are strung down the middle of the principal streets during the rush traffic hours.

A speed of 20 miles an hour is permitted across street intersections when signals are set against cross traffic.

USED CARS REMADE INTO NEW ONES IN UNIQUE FACTORY

Mass Tear Down and Assembly Lines Features in Remanufacturing Process at Indianapolis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 14.—An idea whose working out easily may become of vital interest to every automobile owner and dealer has been made effective in an elaborately equipped factory here for the remanufacture of used cars. The factory is in full operation, and is turning used cars of two well-known medium-priced makes into brand-new automobiles that carry its name plate and a standard new car guarantee.

Cars three years old or older are said to be best fitted for such remanufacture, because an owner can get more value out of an automobile up to such age than a dealer can profitably offer him for remanufacturing. Automobile factories and many of the larger distributors are watching the outcome of the scheme, and if it works out successfully, similar remanufactories are likely to be established.

The factory is built around the idea of complete mass tear down and rebuilding. It has an assembly line as modern as that in the newest auto plant. Every possible device has been installed to make for speed and accuracy. Nothing like this factory and its equipment is known of anywhere else in the world.

Complete Tear Down.

When an automobile enters the plant, the body is first removed, torn down, the upholstery removed and all paint taken off in cleaning fluid baths. Then the chassis starts on the tear-down line on which every unit is removed in orderly sequence. Bolts and nuts are cut off, and the frame reaches the end of the line clear of all parts and

ROAD AND BRIDGE CONTRACTS WORTH $1,000,000 LET BY STATE BOARD

Awards of 29 Projects in 19 Missouri Counties Made and 7 Others Held Up — Total of Lettings Since April 22 at Jefferson City Is More Than $4,000,000.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 14.—The State Highway Commission on Wednesday awarded contracts for approximately $1,000,000 in road construction work, involving 29 separate projects, on which bids were received June 10. The letting included 36 projects, estimated to cost $1,400,000, but awards on seven projects were held up by the commission.

The contracts awarded cover construction of roads and bridges in 19 counties.

This was the fourth large contract letting by the commission since April 22. On that date the commission received bids on $1,500,000 in work; on May 6, on $900,000 in road work, and on May 20, on an additional $750,000 of State road construction.

Contracts approved by the commission Wednesday, the route, county, contracts and approved bid, were as follows:

Route 40, Christian County, J. T. Cox, Branson, Mo., $11,344.

Route 59, Clay, Mike Haase, Trenton, Mo., $37,944.

Route 5, Douglas, Summerfield Jones, Billings, Mo., $8023.

Route 13, Henry, Mike Haase, Trenton, Mo., $35,003.

Owner Satisfaction is The Best Test of a Car

Jewett Sixes Please Jewett Owners

Their Letters are Proof

Shoe Manufacturer Likes Jewett

"THIS car has given excellent service, and am very much pleased with it. It is an exceedingly easy car to operate and in my opinion will get away faster than any automobile which I have ever driven. The motor in this car has never failed, and I consider the power and performance of this motor to be superior to many other cars that are very much higher in price. The Jewett is a most exceptional car and satisfactory in every way." From letter of Howard V. Stephens, President Johnson, Stephens and Shinkle Shoe Co.

From an Illinois Railroad Man

"JULY 8th I purchased a Jewett Touring car through . . . . . Soon after this I toured Southeastern Illinois and Green County; both Saline and Green Counties have some very long and steep hills. I never had to shift for any of them, but could gain speed on any of them. "The Most Dependable Car"

"THE Jewett is the most dependable car I have ever owned. It is not the most expensive, but the most satisfactory. The Jewett is as obedient as a child and responds to the will of the driver as readily in cold weather as it does in summer heat." Earl Hewson of the Hewson Realty Co.

"I Express My Deep Satisfaction"

"THIS 'Special Blue Devil Sport Model' I have found to suit every detail; first, in style—that is, creative originality which distinguishes its lines; second, in furnishings—that is the interior roominess which offers comfort and adds to improved riding qualities; third, in finish—that is, the beauty and quality of substantial materials and expert workmanship; and fourth, in the splendid motor performance which road irregularities do not affect. I express my deep satisfaction in the remarkable ability and behavior of the ever responsive motor which makes Jewett owners herald its unarguable superiority." Clifford A. Kafka, 3425 Henrietta St.

Musical Instrument Manager Says

"Have four or five cars, best results from Jewett.

"Best car on market at anywhere near the price.

"You may refer any buyer to me that you wish."

These are just a few of the thousands of letters Jewett have received from satisfied owners. You, too, would be pleased with a Jewett. A ride, a long one preferably, will convince you that satisfaction is built into every Jewett car. A phone call will arrange it.

CLEVELAND PRODUCES NEW TYPE OF AUTO

Chassis Lubrication by One Operation and Powerful New Engine Are Features.

With a "one shot" lubricating system that oils the entire chassis by one operation, a new "L-head" engine, balloon tires standard and four-wheel brakes optional at extra cost, the new Cleveland automobile has just been launched. It is declared by the factory to be an entirely new type of car.

Pressing a plunger that projects through the floor board forces oil under heavy pressure to every working chassis part, the amount for each part being automatically measured. No more crawling around and under the car to oil it when you have a Cleveland," says the Cleveland organization. "An owner can forget about lubrication, and know his car will last and have resale value. The Cleveland is now the easiest car in the world to take care of."

A rigid crankcase, extra large bearings, light reciprocating parts, heavy compensated crankshaft and gear-driven oil pump in the crankcase that insures proper engine lubrication on steep grades, are some of the engine features. With a bore of 3½ and stroke of 4½ inches, the engine is said to develop 60 horsepower, giving sustained speed of better than 60 miles an hour and acceleration from five to 25 miles on hour in less than seven seconds. Unusually small gasoline consumption and hill climbing performance equal to any car are claimed for this new Cleveland.

The chassis carries Fisher built bodies in six models—touring car, touring de luxe, coupe, special coupe, four-door sedan and five-passenger sedan. Longer wheelbase, vibrationless motor, an indestructible rear axle and transmission and scientific spring suspension, are said to insure jarless riding comfort as well as long life for the car.

The new Cleveland is distributed in the St. Louis district by the Cleveland Motor Sales Co., Locust street.

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED AT AUTOMOTIVE MASS MEETING

Service Film and Program of Practical Addresses Will Be the Features.

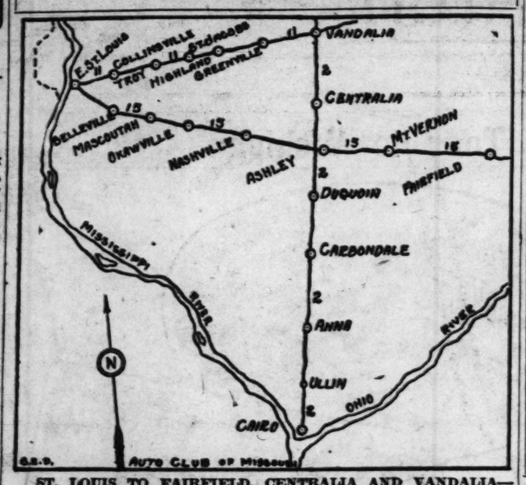
It is expected that not less than 1000 automobile dealers, garage men, repair men, service men and salesmen will attend the automotive mass meeting at Westminster Hall, 3806 Olive street, at 8 p. m. next Wednesday, June 18. The meeting is being arranged by the Automotive Accessory Association of St. Louis, of which Dan F. Hyland is president. Capt. Robert E. Lee, secretary of that association and manager of the St. Louis Automotive Dealers' Association, will preside.

The big feature will be the showing of the new cartoon film of the National Automotive Equipment Association, which has been loaned for the occasion. This film portrays in humorous fashion the trials of an automobile owner seeking competent service and not getting it.

Arthur E. Mogge, merchandising manager of the Automotive Equipment Association, will deliver the principal address with the picture. Other speakers will be Dan F. Hyland, president Automotive Accessory Association, "What You Are Missing"; F. C. McDonald, president St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, "Accessories and Parts as Rent Payers;" Joseph A. Schlecht, president Mound City Automobile Co., "Selling and Displaying Accessories by Automobile Dealers;" Walter F. Weisenburger, assistant to the president of the National Bank of Commerce, "The Bankers' Revised Attitude Toward Motor Cars," and Joseph Kellerman, sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., "What it Means to Have Salesmen Sell Accessories."

Tickets for the meeting are being distributed by the salesmen for St. Louis automotive accessory jobbing houses.

Two Good Trips in Illinois, One To Fairfield, Other to Cairo



ST. LOUIS TO FAIRFIELD, CENTRALIA AND VANDALIA—Cross the Free Bridge into Tenth street, to State street, right two blocks, left on Park Drive to Edgemont, right on West Main street to Belleville and through the public square, following Route No. 15 through Mascoutah, Okawville, Ashley and Mt. Vernon to Fairfield and end of the concrete. (100 miles.)

Back 49 miles to Ashley, then north on right on Route No. 2, through Centralia to Vandalia, left on Route No. 11 through Highland, Collinsville and back to St. Louis. (Total mileage 277.) To Centralia and Vandalia direct through Ashley and back to St. Louis is 179 miles.)

ST. LOUIS TO CAIRO—Free Bridge to Tenth street in East St. Louis, to State street, right two blocks, left on Park Drive to Edgemont, right on West Main street to Belleville and through public square, following Route No. 15 to Mascoutah, Okawville and to Ashley, where swing south on No. 2 through Duquoin, Carbondale and Anna to Cairo (distance, 157 miles).

This route furnishes concrete, except for two miles of cinders around Okawville, some cinders at Duquoin, three-quarters of a mile of dirt at Ullin and three and one-half miles gravel north of Cario.

A variation of this route would be to return via Ste. Genevieve and up the Missouri side of the river. Leaving Cairo, go back north on Route No. 2 to Anna, and there swing west and south through Vineland to East Cape Girardeau, taking the ferry to Cape Girardeau and thence running north over Missouri Route No. 25 through Jackson and Perryville to Ste. Genevive, thence to Farmington and then back to St. Louis over the Lemay Ferry road. This variation is not a wet weather route.

BALLOON TIRES WILL STAND NO MORE ABUSE THAN OTHER VARIETIES

A RECKLESS automobile driver can do a lot of damage to balloon tires on his car by speeding over curbings, railroad ties and similar objects in the road which he would shrink from if his car were equipped with high air-pressure tires.

Balloon tires absorb ordinary projections and depressions in the road, but it was not the intention of tire manufacturers to encourage "trick" driving. Balloons are no better equipped to withstand abuse than are the high-pressure tires which they replace, according to Miller experts.

The two chief things sought with balloons were greater riding comfort under identical conditions and less shaking up of the chassis. It is significant to note that the greater riding comfort was sought "under identical driving conditions," which means it was not expected motorists would go out of their way to determine that they are actually riding on balloons.

More Truth Than Gas.

Many a car is most useful in helping a man hustle to get it paid for.

Jamming the gears on a lemon seems to be apple sauce for a lot of nuts.

A road is as rough as the springs of your car.

BUS DEPARTMENT IS CREATED IN KENTUCKY

Tax of $2.50 to $15 Per Seat Provided—Rates to Be Regulated.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., June 14.—State Senator Griffin Kelly of Owensboro, and Mrs. Bowen Henry, of Frankfort, have just been appointed by the State Highway Commission as executive agent and assistant of a newly created bus department.

The department has supervision, under the commission, of the transportation "of persons for compensation, over public highways by motor propelled vehicles, and for assessments and collection of fees and taxes thereon."

The commission is granted authority to issue certificates for motor bus operation, to regulate the service and safety of operation, to fix, alter and regulate rates of tariff charged, to prescribe rules, and to suspend, revoke, alter or amend any certificate, at any time, after a hearing upon 10 days notice to the certificate holder.

The act further gives the commission authority to hear applications and complaints, issue subpenas and compel attendance of witnesses and require persons to testify under oath, administer oaths, orders, opinions and decisions. From decisions of the commission an appeal may be taken to the Circuit Court of Franklin County and on to the Court of Appeals.

Regulation of route to be traveled, except emergencies due to unavoidable accidents or impassable route, making necessary detours, is provided for.

No operator is to carry under any circumstances a greater number of passengers than 10 per cent above seating capacity or the number specified in the permit.

No one is allowed to ride on steps or running board or upon the auto top.

In cases of interruption of regular service continuing more than 24 hours, notice is to be given the commission.

Owners are required to display at all times on each side and on the auto rear the name of owner, vehicle number, the home address and name of driver.

The following fees were authorized: $2.50 for each seat or passenger seat in a motor bus carrying five passengers or less; $5 for each passenger seat or space in a vehicle of six or more passenger capacity up to and including eight passengers; $10 a seat or space in each car capable of carrying eight or more passengers up to 20; $15 a seat or space for each vehicle carrying more than 20 persons.

A fine of $10 to $1000 for violation of the act is provided.

CHARCOAL GAS FOR BUS POWER

Berlin automotive experts have successfully experimented with gas produced by charcoal as the automotive power for busses.

A brazier composed of two steel cylinders about two feet in diameter and four feet high is placed near the driving seat and the gas is produced by combustion and led directly through a large bore feed pipe into the cylinders. No carburetor or other mixing valve is required.

Besides being far more economical than gasoline, charcoal throws off no smoke or poisonous fumes, it is said.

A Message from
Walter P. Chrysler—

When I say the good Maxwell is the best four-cylinder car at anything like its price in America today, I am thinking of specific accomplishments of the last year.

For instance, vibration subdued to the vanishing point; revolutionary riding and driving results; main bearings rarely if ever replaced; 18,000 miles from a set of tires, and so on.

Maxwell of today is more than the good Maxwell—it has been developed to a plane of superiority far above and beyond the dead level of previous four-cylinder possibilities.

CHARCOAL GAS FOR BUS POWER

Berlin automotive experts have successfully experimented with gas produced by charcoal as the automotive power for busses.

A brazier composed of two steel cylinders about two feet in diameter and four feet high is placed near the driving seat and the gas is produced by combustion and led directly through a large bore feed pipe into the cylinders. No carbureter or other mixing valve is required.

Besides being far more economical than gasoline, charcoal throws off no smoke or poisonous fumes, it is said.

Announcing

The Easiest Car in the World to Take Care of Preliminary notice of this announcement was given last week by the advertisement reproduced at the right.

1925 CLEVELAND SIX

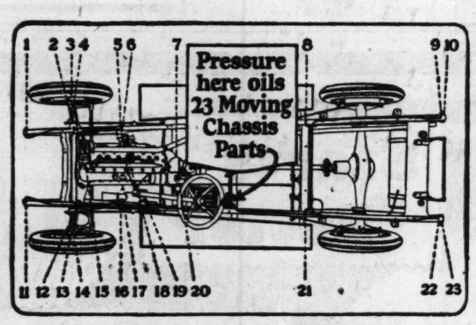
One-Shot Lubricating System

HERE is a car that is entirely new! A larger, more powerful Cleveland Six with so many marvelous features that it is destined to sweep the nation.

Because it is the only car in the world containing the One-Shot Lubrication System, it ranks as the easiest car in the world to take care of.

By stepping on a plunger near his heel, the driver lubricates in two seconds all those parts which in other cars require an hour's grimy work with grease gun and oil can.

No greater convenience feature was ever offered to the motorist.



Step On the Plunger

GOODBYE grease gun! Goodbye oil can! No more greasy, grimy hands! No more squeaks and rattles!

Step on the plunger near your heel and all parts of the car except the crank case are supplied with the proper amount of lubricant. Two seconds is all it takes!

This exclusive, patented Cleveland Six feature makes neglected lubrication almost humanly impossible.

It eliminates worn parts, prevents costly repairs, increases the life of the car and enhances its resale value.

See it! See how it works!

Mileage Motor

PERFORMANCE to be proud of—that's what the owner of a 1925 Cleveland Six has in store. Under the hood of his car is one of the truly great power plants—the new Mileage Motor.

He can pace any stock car in the world on hills—exceed 60 miles an hour when the road is clear—leap from 5 to 25 miles an hour in less than seven seconds!

Yet he revels in flawlessly smooth and silent operation at all speeds—gets well over 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—and carbon troubles are unknown

Balloon Tires

All models come equipped with genuine supersize balloon tires at no extra cost.

With the longer wheel base, the scientific spring suspension, and the accurate distribution of weight, the last word in even, jarless riding comfort is achieved.

The closed bodies are by Fisher—with all the beauty, refinement, and lasting qualities that Fisher construction guarantees.

The chassis is longer and stronger—the transmission is new—the rear axle indestructible.

4-Wheel Brakes

Four wheel brakes of proven design and construction are offered as optional equipment.

Due to their extreme simplicity, their operation is sure—their maintenance easy—and the charge for them is unusually low.

See this truly marvelous new car! Test it for power, for speed, for smoothness, for flashing get-away.

We guarantee you an experience the like of which you have never had before in any car!

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

John Smith is a character every motorist should welcome. He is not selfish, rather he is a motoring martyr, a chap willing and glad to have exploited, in an interesting way, his experiences for the benefit of the other 10,000,000 or more members of the motor clan.

No. 1.—Looking 'Em Over.

SINCE some 10,000,000 American families have made a similar discovery, it was not surprising to learn that Smith felt he could not get along without a car. He had held to the idea that the average man could not afford to own one, but the sum total of doctor's bills, railroad and street car fares, taxis and one thing or another rather proved that he expense is involved in not owning a car. So when Smith resolved to make a tour of the motor-car salesrooms he at least had a clear-cut conception of why he wanted a machine. This was an encouraging start. The next thing was to see that he got the right car for his particular purpose, and that he got started on the right track to be an allround model motorist.

I gladly agreed to go car shopping with him, and asked only that he exercise a little judgment in "looking 'em over," and not grow enthusiastic over a car just because it offered a clever cigar lighter or a sporty-looking trunk rack. "These things I told him, "are desirable, but not essential. If you are limited in price, then see you get the best engine and units for your money before considering the trimmings."

Frankly Puzzled.

Smith informed me $2000 was his positive limit, though he would like to get out at $1500 if possible. But the matter of selecting a good proposition puzzled him.

"If it's an assembled job like this one," I suggested, "you should not reason that since the same makes of engine, rear axle and transmission are found in higher-priced cars you have struck a wonderful bargain. As in buying anything else, you get just about what you pay for. Various grades of units are made for various assembled cars, according to list prices. In this case, however, the units happen to be the same size and quality as those found in a car selling for several hundred dollars more. The money in the more expensive car is in its body and chassis refinement, but perhaps you don't need these."

But we could not consider this car under any condition, because Smith was not at all comfortable in the driver's seat.

"Now this," I said, pointing to the seat in the next car we viewed, "is just about right for you. Its controls are within easy reach and the instrument board is well arranged. You will have comfort driving this car, but there is an important objection. It's too heavy for the engine. The power-weight relation may be all right while the engine is in good condition, but when there isn't any surplus of power a little something wrong with the engine will give you a lot of trouble."

"But I don't want a lot of power," Smith argued. "A powerful motor eats up too much gas."

Not Sole Economy Measures.

I warned him right there and then to discard the idea that gas mileage was the sole measure of economy. I explained that gas mileage was always secondary to the life of the car and the satisfaction one got out of it. I also called his attention to the fact that the "power" of the engine depended a good deal upon the relation of actual horsepower to weight of the machine, and that it was also possible to fake power by gearing very low at the rear axle.

Because it did not meet Smith's requirements we found it necessary to pass up another make of car. The car had a good reputation, but as I told Smith you can't always depend upon that. Models are frequently changed and experiments made. And just because one motorist has had luck with a car is no reasen why another should.

As I fully expected, the next thing to take Smith's eye was an excessively sporty model. Unquestionably it was a good looking job, and when we lounged in its low seats we experienced all the comforts of sitting in a porch rocker with one's feet on the railing. We could just picture ourselves rolling about town of a Spring day viewing Nature's moving pictures with all the comforts of a feather bed.

It was rather difficult to induce Smith to climb out of that car, but when I managed to have a moment with him alone I cast emotions aside and asked:

"Don't you want a car that you can use for traveling?"

"What's w ong with this?" he retorted.

"Riding 50 miles in a reclining position like that would just about break your back," I said. "A racing car is for sport. You want a regular model where your legs will be in a natural position."

Smith admitted that shopping for a car was not as simple as it looked, but we were getting the market narrowed down by eliminating the impossibilities. It is the only sane way of selecting the right car if you have never owned one and must depend on common sense for a guide.

Next Week—The Car is Ordered.

ST. LOUISAN HOME AFTER 10,000-MILE PLANE TRIP

Leon A. Klink has returned from a 10,000-mile airplane trip that toop him over 19 states, into Mexico and to the islands off the California coast. Leaving St. Louis in January with Charles Lindbergh, he flew to Forida, where they spent a month, then along the gulf coast to Houston and San Antonio, where Lindberg entered the United States Aviation Corps.

Kline continued alone to the Pacific Coast, flew to most parts of California and to the near-by islands, soared over the Sierra Nevada and Rocky Mountains, visited the Grand Canyon and took a short trip to Central Mexico.

He said he encountered numerous storms and many delays because of bad weather, but had no serious mishaps. He used a 90 horse-power plane bought from the Robertson Aircraft Corporation during the international air races here last year.

TAKES 13,500-MILE CAMPING TRIP WITH TRAILER OUTFIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., June 14.—A 13,500-mile tour under unusual conditions has been made by Ward B. Mattice of this city to the Pacific coast and back. Mattice bought a Dort six and had a trailer built according to his own ideas at a cost of $465. Trailer and load weighed 1200 pounds, so the trip was a thorough test of this kind of motor camping outfit.

Despite 1000 miles traveled in low and second gear and thousands of miles of bad roads, sand and desert, the trailer gave no trouble and the car came through without the motor missing a stroke. Once the outfit plowed through 29 miles of hub-deep mud, and it traveled as much as 341 miles in a day.

GOOD ROADS FOUND ON THIS TOUR OVER WEST MICHIGAN PIKE

ern Michigan. The roads are good the entire distance, and there are stopping places to suit every pocketbook. There are many high-grade hotels and plenty of good free camping sites, while the public parks of Michigan, some of which have hundreds of acres covered with virgin timber, are justly famous. There are also camps where a small fee is charged. There is about anything one can wish in fishing, swimming, boating, while steamship lines run from almost every lake port.

Leaving St. Louis, the motorist can go direct to Michigan via Chicago over any of three routes—Collinsville, Effingham, Marshall, Danville, Watseka and Steger; or via Springfield and Bloomington, or via Springfield, Peoria and La Salle. Arriving at Chicago via Bloomington or Peoria, follow Garfield avenue into Hyde Park boulevard and the Dunes highway to Gary and Michigan City and then take Route 11, the West Michigan pike. Arriving at Chicago via Marshall and Danville, go east at Steger to Valparaiso on the Lincoln highway, then north and into West Michigan pike.

Good Going all the Way.

The pike is a boulevard from the Indiana-Michigan line to Hart, Mich., beyond which several construction projects are under way. Detours as good as the main highway have been provided, the State Highway Commission announces. There is good gravel road from Traverse City to the end of Torch Lake, and thence completed gravel and boulevard road to Petoskey and Harbor Springs, except for a short detour in Charlevoix County.

From Michigan City, the West Michigan pike leads along miles of beaches on which the rollers of Lake Michigan beat, and behind the beaches are the picturesque sand dunes. Back from the lake is a pretty farming country, with orchards, berry plantations and vineyards, and there are beach resorts at frequent intervals. The region is dotted with lakes and lined with pretty streams. Then comes the section of which South Haven (435 miles from St. Louis) is the chief lake port and resort. Then comes the Macatawa, Ottawa Beach region, with its lake bluffs and dunes, its beautiful Macatawa Bay and the Kalamazoo River winding among the dunes. Grand Haven and Muskegon (504 miles from St. Louis) are centers of another delightful region, with lakes and fishing stream, among which is Muskegon River, long famous among fishermen and canoeists. Farther along the pike are the shore resorts at Ludington (574 miles from St. Louis), Pentwater and Oceana Beach, with many small lakes near Lake Michigan and more fine fishing streams.

In the region from Manistee to Frankfort are five harbors and several unusually attractive lakes in the back country. Then comes Traverse City (668 miles from St. Louis) and the Grand Traverse region with its broad bays, its silvery lakes and sparkling trout streams. Possibly no other resort in the world has so many miles of shore line within a given area. East of Grand Traverse Bay is a series of lakes, all connected by navigable channels. An increasing army of Missourians goes each year to Charlevoix (722 miles from St. Louis), Pestoskey (742 miles distant), and the Harbor Springs region. In this part of Michigan is everything one can wish for a summer vacation. Forty-three miles beyond Petoskey, the pike ends at Mackinaw City, whence one man can ferry to the Upper Michigan country.

Returning, one has a delightful option in scenic Route No. 22, which, beginning at Traverse City, follows close along the shore to Manistee, where Route No. 11 can be picked up again.

Another great trunk line in Michigan is Route No. 13, the Mackinaw Trail, which is reported to be hard surface and good gravel north to Grand Rapids, where there is a well cared-for detour, and then, except for some country road near Boyne, good gravel to Petoskey. Route No. 54, leading north from Grand Rapids through the fishing country, is reported in good condition.

It is probable that most motorists will find the most satisfactory trip is to go north on the West Michigan pike and return the same way, possibly turning off at Traverse City and following No. 22 along the shore to Manistee.

USED CARS REMADE INTO NEW ONES IN UNIQUE NEW FACTORY

units. It then is carried by an air lift and dropped into a tank in which grease, paint and rust are removed. All units are similarly handled by air lifts and cleansing tanks.

Next the engine is torn down as thoroughly. Cylinders are rebored, new oversize pistons, rings and bearings installed, crankshaft and camshaft rebalanced and refinished or replaced, timing gears and other engine units gone over and reprocessed or replaced with new ones. Axles, gears, bearings, battery, generator, starter, ignition system are gone over as completely. Then the engine is giving the same rest that it underwent in the original factory.

In the upholstery and body departments is the same economy of time and effort. Painting and varnishing are done with a minimum of wasted time.

Where necessary, windshields are made over and new cowls put on old bodies to give them the lines of current models. New wheels and tires also are provided. Springs from the used cars coming to the factory are sold to spring makers, and thus the cost of new springs is made less than would be the expense of reprocessing the old ones. Completely new bodies often are installed. Sometimes closed bodies are put on chassis that originally carried touring or roadster bodies.

The frame, cleansed and put in perfect shape, is started down a regular assembly line in which chassis units are attached, as in the standard auto factory, and the chassis is sprayed and comes from a line drying tunnel to meet the finished body and roll off the line to the testers, who give it a thorough road tryout.

It now is a new automobile, which the dealer can sell at a considerable reduction from the new-car price.

When the starter says "We're going", the Lubrite Gasoline in the carburetor replies "All right. Let's go!"

That's how Lubrite starts any time and in any weather.

Freedom from faulty carburetion which so often kills an engine in the waits of heavy traffic... Less gear shifting... Prompt, unhesitating acceleration.

That's how Lubrite runs all the time and everywhere.

A high-test motor fuel, free from traces of the heavier hydrocarbons which create carbon, make a motor sluggish, and impair lubrication by dangerous crankcase dilution. A straight-run motor fuel with combustion range free from marked irregularities.

That's what Lubrite is.---Why it IS better.

Willys-Overland Branch Change.

The Willys-Overland factory branch in St. Louis has a new retail sales manager. L. G. Nachtrab, who has held the position, has gone to the factory at Toledo to do special work with L. G. Peed, the general sales manager, and John Nolan has been appointed to succeed him. Nolan, who came here Monday, entered the automobile business in 1913 as booster salesman for the Maxwell factory, devoting his time to aiding dealers in retail selling. A year later he was made Maxwell district manager at Syracuse. He enlisted in the aviation service the day after the World War broke out. After the war he was associated in Philadelphia in selling the Fiat and Reamer cars. Finally deciding to join a factory selling organization, he inspected nine factories before going with Willys-Overland.

First Pike's Peak Climb Entry.

The Lexington is the first car entered for the sixth annual Pike's Peak climb on Labor day. Lexington has 62 points toward permanent possession of the climb trophy. Otto Loesche, who won his first victory in this contest with a Lexington special in 1920, again will be the pilot.

Making Sure New Car Is Right.

Test cars are still being driven over the roads of New York 24 hours a day while Pierce-Arrow prepares to introduce its new moderately priced six-cylinder car this summer.

Step-Climbing Made Easy.

A Reo brougham with balloon tires, has just been driven up and down a steep flight of steps in Milwaukee, the Kardell Motor Car Co. is informed. Passengers said there were no perceptible shocks as the car was driven from one step to another. The driver had complete control at all times.

Connecting Rod Service.

The Buick Motor Co. has arranged with the Watkins Rebabbitting Service at Wichita, Kan., to rebabbitt Buick connecting rods for Buick branches and dealers all over the country.

American Car Wins in India.

The Lewis Automobile Co. has just learned that the Bombay Motor Club officially reports a Chandler was winner in the first class of cars in its recent reliability run. The cars were scored for acceleration, performance in a four-mile hill climb, average speed on a four-mile test and reliability on a 120-mile course crossing the Western Ghats and traversing steep mountain roads. The Chandler was the only machine finishing with a perfect score in the class for large cars.

Sets New Sales Record.

With retail sales throughout the United States aggregating 7365 cars for the week ending May 31, the Willys-Overland Co., has set a new mark in the retail field, exceeding by 1641 cars its best previous week. Officials of the company believe this unprecedented demand has been caused principally by general approval of the new Blue Bird model, although some credit is given to improved weather conditions. Original production plans for this model have been increased 25 per cent.

In the first 10 days of May the Chicago organization delivered 175 Overlands and 118 Willys-Knight cars and had filled orders for 163 Overlands and 100 Willys-Knights.

Tire Dealers to Meet.

The Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis will meet at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow at Hotel Claridge. Col. Philip H. Brockman will speak.

Actresses to Tour Home.

Miss Alice Bayer and Miss Helen Gilmore, of the Woodward Players, leave today in a new Buick touring car just delivered to Miss Baker by the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., for Chicago, where they will visit friends and relatives, then drive to Cleveland for a short stay before continuing eastward to Miss Gilmore's home in New York City. Miss Baker will continue to her home in Gloucester, Mass., where she will rest until Aug. 1. Miss Baker's interest in the Buick was aroused last winter when the Woodward Players used a 1924 Buick on a steep incline in the play, "Johnnie, Get Your Gun."

Sales Continue Good.

Sales of Moon automobiles are being maintained at a normal rate. Business in the first five months of this year is on a par with sales the same period of 1923 which set a record for Moon, reports F. H. Rengers, general sales manager of the Moon Motor Car Co. He also reports that there has been a marked resumption of automobile buying in the past few weeks.

Rejoins His Brother.

Emil Rottersmann has joined the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. this week as sales manager. Rottersmann, who has qualified himself as an expert on motor car construction, has just returned from the factory at Cleveland where he saw the making of the New Cleveland six. He says he decided to sell Clevelands as a result of stopping Cleveland owners on the street and asking them about their experiences with the car, especially J. M. Moffett of Toronto, Canada, who has driven his Cleveland 65,000 miles in five years and declares he intended to buy another. Rottersmann, who has been assistant sales manager of the Southwest Nash Co., is back again with his brother, Henry Rottersmann, vice president of the Cleveland Motor Sales Co.

Growing Sales Organization.

Addition of seven more dealers within the last two weeks has brought up to 93 the number of associate dealers of the De Luxe Automobile Co., Olds six distributer in the Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois district.

Landau Model Added.

A fourteenth model—five-passenger landau—has just been added to the Cadillac line. It is finished in "magic green."

Factory Representative Here.

L. J. Riehl, factory representative of the Russell Manufacturing Co., has established Rusco brake-lining headquarters at 1901 Pine street.

82 Per Cent Sales Increase.

An 82 per cent increase of Oakland car sales throughout the country, as compared with 1923, is reported to the local distributer, the Mississippi Valley Motor Co.

$4,000,000 Profit in Half Year.

Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. profits for the first half of the fiscal year ending April 1, are reported as about $4,000,000. The company's balloon-tire output has risen to 7500 a day.

Record New York-Washington Run

Word from New York is that a stock Dort touring car has just been driven through heavy rain to a new record of seven hours and 11 minutes on the 240-mile run from that city to Washington.

Showing the Lead Belt.

J. C. Laird of Elvins and C. Edwards of Desloge, authorized Willys-Overland dealers, and J. H. Cole, Overland factory representative, showed those attending the automobile show at Flat River, June 6-8, and the people of the lead belt, something. Hitching an Overland 91 touring car to a wagon loaded with railroad ties and carrying 10 men in addition, the Overland dragged the heavy load back and forth through Flat River, around curves and up hills that few cars make on high.

Butler Lake Fishing Good.

Fishing is good in Butler Lake, says George T. Willett, wholesale manager of the De Luxe Automobile Co., who was out there the other day with Robert Roth. Willard says the Meramec has overflowed into the lake for the first time in some years, and that the water is muddy, but will clear soon. The lake is on Butler road, off Lemay Ferry road.

Half Loaf Better Than None.

"It is not necessary to buy five new tires to get the benefit of balloons," says J. F. Schaefer, vice president of the Cooper Corporation. "It is practicable to buy two at a time. Use these on the rear wheels and regular tires on the front. Then when the regular tires are worn out, more balloon tires can be bought and the front wheels fitted. While two balloons do not give maximum cushioning, their effect is immediately noticeable."

Used Car Show for Three Months.

About 100 automobiles are on exhibition from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily in a used-car show being held in the Coliseum by the De Luxe Automobile Co. and the Kuhs-Buick Co. There is no admission charge. The show will continue until Aug. 31. W. P. Murphy and Daniel Regan, managers of the used-car department of the De Luxe and Kuhs-Buick companies, respectively, are in charge of the show.

Foresees Business in Europe.

A lot of business in Europe for American auto makers is foreseen by R. E. Olds, chairman of the board of the Reo Motor Car Co., who has just returned to Lansing, Mich., from a 34,000-mile trip around the world.

Marmon Speeding Up.

Material schedules for fall and rearrangement of the factory under the new president, G. M. Williams, indicate that production of the Marmon car is to be speeded up. It is understood the plan is to make fuller use of the large productive capacity built up when strong financial interests entered the Nordyke-Marmon Co. during the war when its Indianapolis plant was enlarged for building Liberty motors.

Chrysler Going Stronger.

Detroit reports that Chrysler production has been stepped up to 150 cars a day, but that the demand cannot be met.

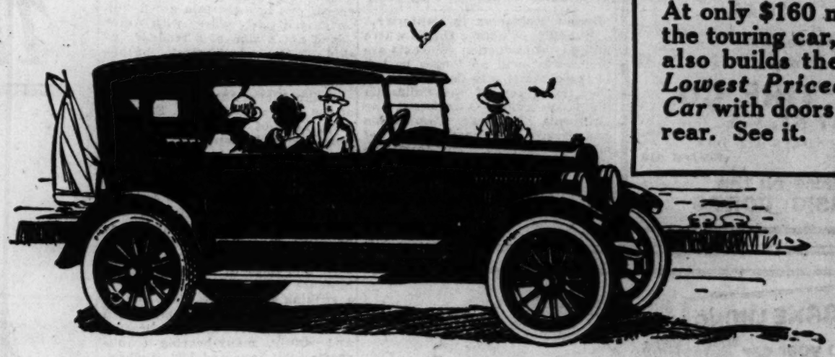
Which is YOUR Choice?

Only Two Touring Cars Now Priced Under $500



At only $160 more than the touring car, Overland also builds the World's Lowest Priced Closed Car with doors front and rear. See it.

23 Big-Car Quality Advantages!

Overland sales increased 177% last year—the largest increase of any maker building over 100,000 cars.

Not long ago there were five cars priced under $500—but three have raised prices.

Overland has not raised prices.

For only $115 more than the cheapest car built with starter and demountable rims you now can buy the big, powerful Overland.

The world's lowest priced touring car with modern sliding gear transmission!

Its body is entirely of steel—the only touring car under $800 with an all-steel body!

With a permanent finish of hard, lustrous oven-baked enamel.

With patented springs that gently pull instead of push the wheels over bumps—a total springbase 30 inches longer than any car of equal length.

With speedometer as standard equipment.

With rear axle shaft of Mo-lyb-den-um steel 1½ inches in diameter—nearly 50% heavier than that of any touring car under $700.

With Timken and New Departure bearings used exclusively in front and rear axles.

With reliable brakes that give 25% more braking surface, in proportion to car weight, than any car under $700.

With four doors and tight curtains that open with the doors.

With fully adjustable windshield, foot accelerator, disc clutch—complete equipment.

Overland has proved on America's hills to be the leader in power—and owners everywhere have proved it to be the lowest cost car to run and keep in condition.

Built by one of the three largest automobile manufacturers in the world, Overland's tremendous volume of production and sales alone make possible the maintenance of its amazing low price.

In the opinion of owners, Overland is easily the most automobile in the world for the money.

This you can prove entirely to your own satisfaction in a demonstration. Come in. Bring in your present car and we will explain how you can buy an Overland the easiest way.

BUICK MAKES PERFECT ENDURANCE RUN SCORE

Pathfinder, Also a Buick, Does as Well—Both Cars in Shape to Repeat at Once.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., June 14.—The Buick was the only car of its class to get a perfect score in the El Paso Herald 10-day endurance and economy run which was finished last week. This run, which attracted national attention, was open to all owners of automobiles, dealers, and manufacturers, and 15 contesting cars made the start.

The run was conducted under the auspices and rules of the American Automobile Association, and the itinerary included points in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Besides the 24-45 Buick entered in the run, the pathfinding car, which also was a Buick, acted as pilot. This pathfinding car, as well as the Buick entry, would have made a flawless record but for the fact that the driver carelessly killed his motor which would have penalized him two points had his car been subject to the rules of the contest.

It is stated by the Buick representatives in El Paso that both the Buick entry and the pathfinding car returned in condition that would fully warrant their doing the trip over again without adjustment or repairs.

Do You Know—

That one type of road will wear out your car quicker than another? When there is a choice of roads and you travel over the given territory constantly, endeavor to find out which road is better for your car. If there is no choice, the car can usually be spared somewhat by carrying less air in the tires. May injure the rubber, but the car is paramount when it comes to saving.

That an easier start can be had by allowing the machine to roll back a little before letting in the clutch? With the car going back slowly the engine has to overcome momentum in addition to inertia when delivering its power. This acts like an especially gentle clutch, giving an easy start.

Ward Takes Unusual Demonstrating Trip With Chrysler Brougham.

An unusual trip was taken last week in a Chrysler six brougham by S. B. Ward, president of the Ward Motor Co., which distributes Chryslers and Maxwells in this district. Leaving the Ward Co. showrooms at 3016 Locust street, he drove to Trunk's garage in De Soto, Mo., over the Lemay Ferry road, in an hour and 30 minutes.

He put the Chrysler through its paces for a number of De Soto residents, and in the afternoon drove to Bonne Terre, Desloge, Flat River and Bismarck.

"At Bismarck," said Ward, describing the trip, "I gave eight different demonstrations with the Chrysler, showing a speed of 72 to 75 miles an hour every trip. We also ran it in high down to nothing an hour, showed how it would start in high gear without jerking by turning the clutch loose very fast, and that the car also would start in high by turning on the switch and stepping on the starter. I also turned on the switch, leaving the gears in high, got out and pulled on one fender, whereupon the car would start. Then, as it came past, I would jump in, step on the gas and be gone."

From Bismark, Ward drove to Farmington, spending the night there. The next day he spent demonstrating at Fredericktown. Wednesday he spent at Poplar Bluff demonstrating. Leaving Poplar Bluff Thursday morning, he was in St. Louis within six hours, making the stretch from De Soto to St. Louis in an hour and 26 minutes without shifting gears.

Detour Engineers in California.

Handling of detour traffic where highway construction contracts are under way, will no longer be left to the contractor in California. At the instigation of the California State Automobile Association, the California Highway Commission has created the new position of "detour engineer." His duties are to keep track of travel, to co-operate with the contractor and the traveling public and to see that travel is kept moving harmoniously where road construction is under way.

ROLLIN PROVES ITSELF DURING POURING RAIN

Performs as if on Dry Paving —Shows What Balloons and 4-Wheel Brakes Can Do.

In the pouring rain of last week Wednesday a Rollin touring car was put through an interesting test that demonstrated not only the possibilities of the machine's European type motor, but also showed what four-wheel brakes and balloon tires mean in driving over the slipperiest of pavements.

The distinctive appearance of the Rollin has been marked from the first. There has been much curiosity as to the performance of its small bore, high compression motor. The writer's curiosity was thoroughly satisfied in that downpour. Crawling at a snail's pace, going over the top of O'Fallon Park's steepest hill at 35 to 40 miles an hour, walking up stiff grades in high, accelerating smoothly under stress, and picking up from nothing to 40 miles an hour in a block—the car did it all in effortless style. Did it, too, without noise or vibration; showed the "stuff" for 50 and 60 miles an hour running, when one must get there.

It was easy to understand why scores of costly European cars are powered with four-cylinder motors—the Crossley, Austin, Vauxhall and Sunbeam in England; the Renault, Peugeot and other famous makes in France; the Metallurgique in Belgium, the most popular of the Fiats in Italy, and dozens of others in all those countries.

The trip was absolutely skidless. The car whirled around corners, zig-zagged, took sharp curves at speed, was brought to a quick stop on paving fairly glassy with water—and not a sign of a tendency to skid. The four-wheel brakes worked veritable miracles of stopping.

Rollin White, the noted designer of the Rollin car, tells A. E. Spielberg, head of the Franklin Motor Car Co. which distributes the Rollin in this district that the car grew out of the stress of the big Indianapolis and French Grand Prix races. In those contests the strain on cars is so terrific that any construction principle that stands up must be basically right.

"A glance over Rollin specifications and those of the cars entered in those races," said White, shows a striking similarity. Most motors were high speed, high compression types, with force-feed lubricating and sturdy, many-bearing crankshafts. All have and had mechanically operated four-wheel brakes and oversized tires. Most of them were driven through a torque tube which is a feature of the Rollin and other fine cars. This year, more than ever, motors entered were of very small displacement. In this respect the Rollin is somewhat ahead of the times."

HOW WATER IS PRODUCED IN ENGINE OF AUTOMOBILE

Gallon Generated From Air Taken in for Each Gallon of Gasoline Consumed.

"We have been flooded with inquiries, as a result of a statement in our recent announcement of the fuel and oil rectifier," says Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president of the Rickenbacker Motor Car Co.

"One statement was a poser, especially to laymen. We said the water which is condensed from the fuel in an automobile engine serves to dissolve the carbon in the combustion chamber,' because we now distill the water, together with surplus gasoline and oil, and return it to the combustion chamber in the form of steam, whereas previously it worked down past pistons into the crankcase and there diluted the lubricating oil.

"For every gallon of gasoline consumed in an automobile engine more than a gallon of water is produced. With each gallon of gasoline that goes into the cylinders 17,400 'gallons' of air are mixed. So it is easy to see how the compression and heat can precipitate more than a gallon of water from that amount of air.

"Of course, most of that water previously went away with the exhaust, but sufficient remained to cause a lot of injury in the crankcase.

"That used to be a poser for the average owner. When he drained his crankcase, he found water mixed with the oil, but could not figure how it got there. He knew how gasoline entered, of course—he knew the surplus taken into the cylinders worked its way down past the pistons, cutting the oil away as it went and diluting the oil. But the water was a mystery.

"Aviation engineers are now experimenting with this principle. One of the most serious problems with airships, especially dirigibles, has been the reduction in load as gasoline is consumed.

"A rigid dirigible now being made carries as much as 5000 gallons of gasoline, or about 40,000 pounds. Nearing the end of the journey, it is that much lighter to bring it to the grounds it is sometimes necessary to let out large quantities of expensive hydrogen or helium, generally at a place where it cannot be replaced.

"Experiments are being made to offset this variation of load by utilizing the water condensed in the motor to compensate for gasoline consumed."

May Motor Car Sales.

More than 45,000 cars were sold in May by the General Motors as compared with 58,600 sold in April and 75,393 in May, 1923, and 46,736 in May, 1922.

RAILROADS BEGINNING TO PROSECUTE MOTORISTS WHO CRASH SAFETY GATES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—There is evident a concerted determination of certain Eastern railroads to prosecute motorists who smash safety gates, cause train accidents or otherwise damage railroad property.

Several motorists have been prosecuted by one railroad. Other lines are filing formal complaints with the prosecutors.

$10,000,000 TO BE SPENT ON OKLAHOMA ROADS THIS YEAR

The State Hopes to Have Expended Total of $60,000,000 in the Next Six Years.

Oklahoma is preparing to spend $10,000,000 on its roads this year. The largest amount appropriated for any former Oklahoma highway administration was one million dollars. This year the State gives $3,000,000 and expects $2,000,000 in Federal aid.

The commissioners intend to "trade" with counties and have the $5,000,000 matched dollar for dollar. Thus in six years Oklahoma will have spent $60,000,000 on roads.

Hitherto the highways department has turned the Federal aid roads over to the counties for maintenance. In future, Oklahoma will maintain its recognized highways. Eventually all important roads are to be maintained by the State.

PRINCIPLES INVOLVED IN BALLOON TIRE EXPLAINED

"As Firestone pioneered, developed, tested and placed on the market the first genuine, full-sized balloon tire, we often are asked about the principles involved in its construction, says W. G. Sabine, manager of the St. Louis branch Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. Motorists generally are interested in lower air pressure, but few know why gum-dipping is essential or how widely the full size balloon varies from the half-balloon.

"The full-size balloon, which fits smaller rims, reduces air pressure by half, and increases air capacity in practically the same ratio. Insisting on full-size balloon tires means that you will get full advantages of balloon betterments in comfort, safety, car-conservation, mileage and fuel economy.

"Gum-dipping means that every cord is insulated and impregnated with rubber. It first made the large-size ballon practical for any type of service.

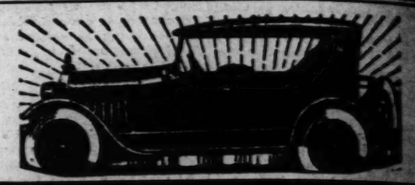
"While volumes have been published about the balloon tire, we find the fundamental principles remain as outlined in the first article published on balloon tires by J. E. Hale, engineer of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

"Mr. Hale pointed out that to have greater cushioning for comfort and protection against vibration for the car, a combination of low air pressure and large area of contact must be provided by changing tire construction to provide necessary flexibility without impairing wear and service of the tire.

"The large cross-section tire called the balloon, when run at low air pressure, must withstand a much greater vertical deflection than the old high-pressure tire. It was found that tires built according to old methods generally failed in service prematurely from two causes. First, separation of tread and carcass or between plies. Second, localization of stresses about half way up the side wall would generally cause fabric failure on inside plies.

"It was necessary to use a thinner side wall to lessen the effect of this flexing when tires were run at low pressure, and that this could be done and still have the tires sufficiently strong to stand up in service because the lower stresses on the carcass would be much lower.

"These principles set forth in the first article written by Firestone last June have been further proved by thousands of owners who have equipped their cars with Firestone genuine balloon tires and have had them in service many months. Twenty-one well-known automobile manufacturers have also placed their stamp of approval on genuine balloons by and are furnishing them as original equipment."



No Paint Job Compares With It!

Our Baked Enamel Process

Is the best finish any car can have. We make the whole body shine like the hood and fenders of a new car. And the finish LASTS—the enamel is BAKED on—it will not crack or check like paint—and is easier to clean or polish. Jobs delivered in from two to ten days. We enamel all kinds of cars, including trucks, any color. All old paint removed. Thoroughly sanded. Our process is the only one in the United States for baking the entire car. Why paint when you can get a BAKED job from us?

YOUR brakes are all right, say Police Department tests, if your car stops in 148 feet going 40 miles an hour. Rusco out-tests all the standards set by Automotive Engineers and Police Experts. You can stop a two-brake car, with brakes lined with Rusco and properly adjusted, in 82 feet. A great difference!

Here's the reason

THE stopping efficiency of the brake is in the lining. The braking surface of the lining rests on the kind of Asbestos it is made of. Shoddy Asbestos will not do. Canadian Crysotile Asbestos only goes into Rusco. And only the giant looms, patented, built and used exclusively by the Russell Co., can weave this mineral-metal fabric. Rusco's "packed-in" solid weave makes long wear doubly sure.

NOTWITHSTANDING its proved superiority in tests and in day-in-and-day-out service, Rusco costs no more than the shoddy kind. Careful buying will certainly help to make sure your safety. Insist that the repair man or dealer give you Rusco.

Your repair man pays more for RUSCO than any other brake lining —but he doesn't charge you more!

IN GIVING you Rusco—the finest quality brake lining it is possible for the repair man to obtain—he accepts a less profit than if he sold you any other brand.

If he recommended and sold you a cheaper grade it would cost you the same, but he would make three times as much profit.

You can depend upon such a man. It takes time and money to reline your brakes. It isn't a job you want done every day. When your brakes do need relining, be sure to get the benefit of Rusco superiority and the conscientious service of a repair man who is willing to take less profit in order to give you a better job.

MOTOR CAMPING

By JIM LANCE.

In early motoring days it was the exceptional farmer who objected to motor campers. In his idyllic times the average farmer was inclined to cordial hospitality toward visitors from the outside world, who came bringing something of the romance of the open road. The writer found himself welcome at hundreds of attractive places all over the country.

Then, little by little, he began to notice that the pretty brookside, the charming woods nook were dirty, littered with papers, tin cans and garbage. He saw more and more fires left burning. More than once he stopped to commiserate with a farmer furious because such a campfire had set his wood lot ablaze. Frequently he noticed wire fences cut because some camper was too lazy to go around or climb over. Here and there fence posts had been hacked down for firewood and good-sized trees cut down and partially burned in fires ten times larger than necessary.

Alongside one Montana trail was a delightful campsite beside a brawling brook. Above it towered two seven-foot pine trees, both over 200 feet high. Some time in 1916, campers, too lazy to seek kindling wood, chopped into both trees, girdling them. Today the trees are dead. The campsite is a sordid dump heap of camp litter. The owners of land for several miles around, having seen, forbid camping.

A party of six motorists stopped beside the Antire road one Sunday last summer. They chopped down several six-inch trees, built a fire large enough for a community blaze for a hundred persons, tossed their papers and cans all around, finally went away leaving the fire blazing and the picnic site an unsightly mess. The writer put out the fire just as it was spreading to the timber. If he had come along half an hour later, the whole hillside would have been ablaze. The trees they chopped and burned were valuable property of which they robbed the owner. Wherever these motorists go they spread dislike and distruct of the motor camper.

Today "no trespass" signs hang in thousands of places where once the motorist was welcome. Time and again the owner of some especially attractive site says: "No, I'm sorry, but we don't let anybody camp on our place. Yes, I know you look all right. But if I let you, I can't very well keep the others off. And they've caused me so much damage I just can't have them. Guess you'll have to go to the public camp in town."

All because 10 per cent of motorists aren't fit to be out of doors without guardians and another 10 per cent mean to do right and do it willingly if the right thing is suggested. The 40 per cent of naturally considerate motorists suffer therefor.

HOW TO HELP MAKE MOTOR CAMPERS POPULAR

DON'T cut down growing trees or hack off live branches. If you can't find dead branches, use your gasoline or oil stove.

Put out your fire when breaking camp. Pour water on it or cover it with earth.

Bury all cans and rubbish deep. Burn all papers into ashes.

Shut all gates. Do not tamper with fences.

Leave your camp site the way you'd like to find one on your own land after a camping party has departed.

GLACIER TRAIL REPORTED TO BE IN GOOD CONDITION

It Will Be Extended West from Glacier Park and South from St. Louis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 14.—The Glacier Trail is now thoroughly and distinctively marked from St. Louis through the Twin Cities and Fargo to Glacier National Park, Mont. It is to be extended from Glacier Park west through Seattle to Vancouver, B. C., and southeast from St. Louis through the Muscle Shoals and Stone Mountain territory to Miami, Fla. When completely developed, it will be the longest highway in the world, giving full significance to its slogan "Everglades to Glaciers."

It offers free rescue service and assurance of prompt repairs at standard prices from official garages all along the route. All 1924 membership cards insure the holders this service. In all principal garages and hotels and at tourist camps along the route map bulletins are posted.

The trail's 1923 miles are composed of 282 miles of paving, 997 miles of graded gravel and 644 miles of graded dirt highway, most of the latter under contract for surfacing.

Carrying out its intention to standardize completely Columbia service, the Columbia Motor Co. of Detroit has appointed Sam V. Harding as service manager. He has served as service engineer for another large automobile factory and has spent much time traveling and educating dealers in service work.

Same Tires on First Ten Cars.

All 10 of the money-winning autos in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis were shod with Firestone tires, according to the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. The gum-dipped cords stood up under speeds never before attained on the track, the five first cars averaging from 96.46 to 98.24 miles an hour.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

GOVERNMENT BUREAU DOES RESEARCH WORK

Staff of Engineers at Bureau of Standards Delve Into Radio Problems.

Just outside of Washington is located the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce which handles, among many other subjects, the standardizing and scientific development of radio, both for the Government and the people. The radio laboratory of this bureau, headed by Dr. J. H. Dellinger, undertakes research on radio principles, standards and standardization projects and special radio engineering problems for the Government, other than in military and naval development. Its work deals more with fundamentals and with scientific phrases of radio than with specific applications embodied in apparatus on the common market. It keeps in touch with advances made elsewhere in radio and electrical communication generally, but does not attempt to police the air, that being done by the Radio Division of the Bureau of Navigation, another branch of the Department of Commerce under Secretary Hoover.

The extremely practical importance of scientific work on standards is illustrated by radio interference. Dr. Dellinger said, adding that much had been done to solve this great problem. Instead of the common attitude of complaint whenever a code message or other noise disturbs reception, an attitude of wonder and praise over the relative absence of interference would be more appropriate, he feels. They are, each night, several hundred radio messages simultaneously, going through the ether from as many stations. Yet each reaches its hearers. There would be much conflict if each of these stations was not kept on, or very near, the assigned wave length. This close adjustment of the transmitting frequencies requires very accurate standards of frequency and constant vigilance to keep the stations and the measuring instruments in harmony with established standards.

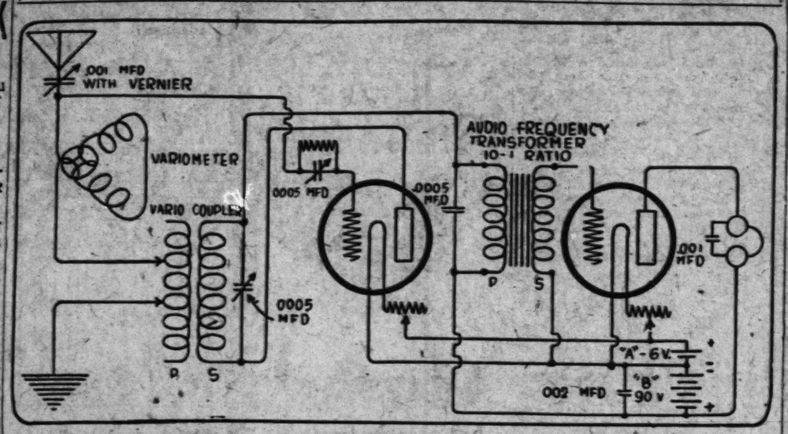
The bureau's scientific work has been of direct value and service to the general public in the radio beacon system. Certain of the bureau's researches on antennae led to the development of a very simple and efficient radio direction finder. By rotating the direction finder while listening to a radio message, the direction of the transmitting station is indicated. Thus a ship equipped with a direction finder can steer to a ship which is sending out a distress call, or it can locate its own position by means of radio signals from shore stations. The bureau developed automatic radio transmitting apparatus to send out such signals from lighthouses, and the U. S. Lighthouse Service has installed a number of these "radio beacons," which serve the same purpose as the lighthouse lights, except that they reach over greater distances and penetrate fog. The direction finder and beacon have been found of service also in aerial navigation. Special types of radio beacons have been developed to keep an aircraft on its course. Incidentally, this work is leading toward the solution of the problem of projecting radio waves in a desired direction. When aircraft are developed commercially, they will depend greatly on radio as a means of navigation. Another radio development for aircraft by the bureau is a distant control device. This device gives a means of control for a pilotless airplane by radio. The same device has been found useful in operating a radio transmitting station from a distance and in other instances of remote control machinery.

Some of the bureau's research work is directed toward the large problem of wave transmission variations, fading, and atmospheric disturbances. These are seen as large problems, the ultimate solution of which requires much more extended knowledge of the actual behavior of the waves than now exists. The bureau is engaged in studying methods and apparatus for such observations, working in co-operation with other laboratories. The results of the Bureau of Standards' radio work are embodied in publications, many of which are available to the public.

The Bureau of Standards is not, and could not possibly be, a radio question-and-answer bureau, it was explained. Many people have the impression that the bureau can supply the answer to every conceivable question about electrical or mechanical apparatus. It is estimated that there are at least 5,000,000 people in the United States using radio, and radio is so interesting that the average user has in his mind so many questions that it would take a whole course of special training to answer them, the Radio Laboratory chief stated.

The rapid growing scope and importance of radio requires the small radio section of the bureau to handle a wide variety of projects and in order that it may be of maximum service in advancing science and in the development of radio applications for the Government and for the general public, the bureau avoids duplicating work done by other agencies.

Australia to California With Two Tubes



With the above circuit, A. E. Wright of Scarborough, Australia, picked up KGO, a distance of 7000 miles, on several different occasions. The diagram is reprinted from Radio, an Australian radio magazine.

All of the parts used in this circuit by the Australian experimenter were of American manufacture. The list follows: .001 mfd. variable condenser, with vernier. Variometer. Variocoupler (of the type having primary tapped every five turns, the taps served by two switch levers). .0005 mfd. variable condenser. Two "A" tubes. Two sockets. Two rheostats. Audio frequency transformer, (10-1 ratio). Two .0005 mfd. fixed condensers. .001 mfd. fixed condenser. .002 mfd. fixed condenser. Two 45-volt "B" batteries. "A" battery.

Note—The "A" and "B" battery terminals are connected together on one common negative binding post.

GOVERNMENT NEEDS RADIO ENGINEERS

Insufficient Pay Causes Qualified Men to Leave for Better Paying Positions.

The Government is badly in need of radio engineers, associate radio engineers and assistants due to the fact that several of those men have left the service to accept better paying positions with commercial enterprises. The Civil Service Commission has just advertised for several men of this class, offering $4000 yearly for radio engineers, $3000 to $4000 for associate engineers, and $2000 to $3000 for assistants. The men are needed at the Naval Research Laboratory and in the Federal classified service throughout the country.

Several more vacancies in the supervisor service are expected soon by the Radio Bureau of the Department of Commerce. Several of the inspectors have offered their resignations to become effective when they can be replaced. Difficulty is being experienced in finding men capable to take these positions, due to the fact that men with the ability to handle them can get considerably more money from other sources.

Battery Tags.

Burning out of tubes is a common failing to radio beginners through mistakes in making connections. It is a good plan to have the leads from the "A" batteries and the "B" batteries tagged with little tags marked with the voltage and polarity for each lead.

EXPERIMENTAL BROADCASTING STATION TO LOCATE IN EAST

Cost Said to Be Approximately $150,000; Systematic Investigation to Be Carried On.

A large experimental radio station will shortly be built by the General Electric Co. for a more complete investigation of radio phenomena and broadcasting. It is understood that the cost of the experimental station will be approximately $150,000, and that it will be located on land recently acquired by the company in Schenectady.

While no plans have been drawn for the new station it is understood that a power house capable of delivering high power at various frequencies will be built and also antenna structures will be erected for a wide range of wavelengths so that systematic investigation can be made of the advantages of various wavelengths in solving the many problems with which radio now has to deal.

CHILEANS INTERESTED IN RADIO

Improved Broadcasting Creates Demand for Apparatus.

Radio is beginning to take a strong hold on the people of Chile. A report to the Department of Commerce states that improved broadcasting conditions inaugurated in Chile have resulted in "a startling increase" in the demand for radio equipment since the first of the year. The report says that American radio sets are preferred, although they are considerably more expensive than either French or German which predominate. A new broadcasting station with a 500-watt transmitter will soon be installed which will reach all parts of the republic, the report adds.

A. T. & T. GRANTS LICENSES

More Than Forty Broadcasters Pay Fee for Privilege.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. recently stated that more than 40 broadcasting stations throughout the United States that were formerly infringing their patents had taken licenses under their patents. Inquiries in regard to licenses and applications for licenses are being received in considerable numbers. Licenses under the patents of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. are being granted to broadcasting stations now infringing their patent under conditions which have been generally accepted as fair and reasonable.

Beware Old Batteries.

A "B" battery that has been on the shelf of a store for a long time will not last the same length of time as a fresh battery. If the purchaser of a "B" battery will watch closely the expiring date on the side of the battery he will oftentimes save himself much trouble and expense. This date was placed there for the fans' protection, and so should be watched closely. It is well to refuse an old battery, as it will not last long in the circuit. If there are cracks in the top, near the contacts, it is well to demand another battery, as it may have loose contacts and be noisy when used.

HOOVER WILL HOLD CONFERENCE IN FALL

Representatives of All Walks of Radio Industry Will Be Invited to Attend.

With the closing of the doors of Congress, all hopes for the enactment of radio legislation this session were terminated. In the fall, two things may happen to the revised White bill, now known as the Howell bill, which sleeps in a pigeon-hole until December: Either it will be revived then or new bills may be introduced in the Senate or House, or both.

In the meantime, Secretary Hoover is planning a general radio conference, to which he will invite representatives of all walks of the radio industry, including manufacturers, commercial and amateur operators, broadcasters and associations interested in radio development.

The purpose of this, the third radio conference, will be two-fold: Efforts will be made to improve present conditions relating to interference, assignment of wave lengths and time distribution among the commercial, amateurs and broadcasting interests, all of which are now operating on a voluntary agreement, and also to review pending legislation to get expressions of opinion from the many radio users and listeners, before any new regulatory laws are enacted. An agreement between the several interests for stronger voluntary self-regulation is hoped for by Mr. Hoover, whose only authority is contained in a law enacted 12 years ago before radio was used generally throughout the country.

Representatives of the Department of Commerce are now working out in detail the scope of the conference, securing advices from those affected as to a suitable date for the Washington meeting. At first Secretary Hoover planned to hold the sessions in June, but difficulties arose. The question now before the department is whether it would not be more agreeable to all parties to avoid the summer months and call the meeting early in September. An early announcement is expected on the date and scope.

For the Notebook.

Unless the spaghetti tubing is made of the highest grade varnished cambric it will prove a very poor insulator.

Often scratchy and rasping noises in the phones may be traced to chap or improperly designed transformers.

Radio sets have become an essential part of modern camping equipment for yachts, motorboats, automobiles and country homes.

Reduce the plate or "B" battery voltage immediately when the tube turns to a bluish color. This is a warning that too much plate voltage is being used on the battery.

NAVAL AIR CRAFT TO BE RADIO EQUIPPED

Installation Presents Problems, but Is Considered Necessary to Service.

The Navy Department plans to equip all naval planes with radio so as to permit communication between each other, between their bases, ground stations and ships, according to Capt. R. W. McNeely, Chief of the Radio Division of the Bureau of Engineering of the Navy Department.

"At present all fleet aircraft are equipped with radio," says Capt. McNeely, "and also all types operating from shore bases except training types, certain miscellaneous types in use for experiments only and small fighters.

"In aviation radio, as in the planes themselves, everything is a compromise between weight, space, strength and reliability versus speed, cruising radius and maneuverability.

"If we have too much weight the plane will not get off the ground or water, or its cruising radius is cut down because of limited fuel carrying capacity. If we have too many appliances hung on the wings, fuselage, struts, etc., the head resistance becomes enormous and the plane is slowed down and may lose a certain degree of maneuverability.

"A radio transmitting and receiving set which would weigh 800 to 1000 pounds for a shore or ship station and would occupy a small room must be cut down to less than 100 pounds and must be designed to fit into the very limited space available in an airplane. There is no current supply such as city mains or ship dynamo, so the current must be obtained from some small light weight device. Storage batteries are too heavy so a generator driven by a small air propeller is used. The voltage must be absolutely constant regardless of the speed at which the plane is flying so a method of regulation must be used.

"The noise from the engines makes receiving very difficult so that many steps of amplification are necessary to overcome this. Three and usually six tubes are now used. New designs will employ seven or eight receiving tubes.

"The interference from the ignition system must be overcome by various schemes. There are 24 spark plugs in a Liberty motor and each one is a small transmitting station, located within a few feet of the receiving equipment. The operator wears a leather helmet strapped tightly to his head, into which telephone receivers are built, surrounded by soft rubber ear cups to exclude wind and noise.

"This winter 27 planes of the aircraft squadrons, scouting fleet, flew to Cuba and the West Indies, only recently returning to the fleet base at Hampton Roads, Va. Each one of these planes carried a regular radio operator and communication up to 400 miles in daylight was obtained by them. The same squadron flew to Panama, through the Panama Canal and 600 miles up the Pacific Coast on fleet problems last winter. Radio played an important part in all these problems and exercises. The larger types of planes also carry radio compasses or direction finders and two kites for communication while on the water. These pilots would not think of making a flight over open sea or even along the coast without their radio equipment and radio operators.

"Radio in planes has a particular application in fire observation or 'spotting' as the battleships may be directed how to shoot even though the enemy is hidden by smoke or poor visibility. In scouting planes it is indispensable as the speed of the planes and their advantage over surface ships in sighting an enemy at a distance all goes for naught if they cannot report to the commander-in-chief what they see.

"In fighting planes where speed and maneuverability are the prime necessities, the use of the trailing wire antenna is precluded because of close formation work and stunting, also weight and space are greater considerations than in the larger types. At the same time the squadron leader should be able to direct his squadron in an attack so that radio is also required here.

"About the only naval plane in which radio is not a necessity, is the preliminary training type. As soon as preliminary training is over the student naval aviator begins to use radio and must qualify in this subject before he receives his wings and is assigned to the fleet."

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

Not the least of many improvements that have been made in the last year in the radio art is the development by The Miller Rubber Co. of an amplifying horn for use with any type of loud speaker unit which can be manufactured in many forms to suit the requirements of loud speakers. This horn is manufactured from a plastic material, having extreme lightness, sufficient rigidity and ability to withstand moist atmosphere and all ordinary climatic conditions. These properties are said to be due to the composition, which is the result of long research conducted by some of the foremost chemists in the rubber industry. In structure this horn, while having a perfectly molded, solid surface, adapted to reflect sound, is composed internally of a myriad of small air-tight chambers. The material thus produced is incapable of vibrating at any audio frequency within the range of voice or music. The delicate cellular structure just described supports the thin surface layer in such a way as to effectively damp any vibration which might originate in the horn surface. The invention is said to be the result of extensive research in which almost every known material and construction was thoroughly tested.

"Kodel" is the name given to a new portable receiving set, manufactured by the Kodel Manufacturing Co. It is entirely self-contained. Both "A" and "B" batteries, headphones, vacuum tube, and 15 feet of aerial and ground wire are accommodated within the small case, which measures 5¾x4½x8 inches over all, and weighs but 4¾ pounds complete with all accessories. According to the makers, the Kodel requires no loop or aerial for its successful operation, a single connection to a water pipe or other ground being all that is required. With an outside aerial, the set is claimed to have a coast-to-coast range. Only one tuning control is employed. A honeycomb coal is used for the tuning inductance.

Snap terminal connectors known as the Rajah have recently made their appearance on the market. The removable part is attached to the wire in a way that makes soldering unnecessary, while the base stud is secured to the panel by means of an 8-32 screw which also fits all standard "A" battery binding posts. Base studs are sold separately as they can be used wherever a change of connection is desired, thus permitting a quick change of lead-in or battery wires from one set to another.

"Better Results From Radio" is the title of a booklet issued by the Willard Storage Battery Co. of Cleveland, O. The publication is illustrated and takes up various phases of battery care and operation in a way that offers valuable assistance to the radio fan. The book is sent free to those writing for it.

G. M. Proudfoot is the designer of a new variable condenser in which losses have been reduced to a minimum. The stator plates are mounted on two, instead of the usual three plates, so as to give a loss of but .007 per cent at a capacity of .001 mfd. By means of two scales the coarse adjustment is made by turning the knob to the right on the large scale and the fine adjustment by turning to the left on the small scale. Body capacity effects are said to be eliminated by grounding the rotor plates.

COPPER AN IMPORTANT PART OF EVERY RADIO

Estimate Shows That 5,000,000 Pounds of Metal Has Been Used in Sets.

A survey of the radio industry just concluded by the Copper and Brass Research Association discloses that on the basis of an estimated total of 2,500,000 sets in use today, radio apparatus in the United States has consumed 5,000,000 pounds of copper.

The survey indicates that the number of radio sets in use will increase to equal the number of automobiles and telephones in the United States (viz., 15,000,000), and that this will likely occur in five years' time. In this event, radio manufacturers would use, in the next five years, 5,000,000 pounds of copper annually.

Copper is an indispensable metal in radio manufacture, either in its basic form or in alloys of brass or bronze. The "average" radio set requires about two pounds of copper in all forms. It is used as coil windings, antennae or loops, lead-in wires and connections, switch points, switches, binding posts, terminals and other fittings.

The manufacturing end of radio is carried on by both individuals and corporations of all degrees of importance and output, from the lone individual "attic-manufacturer" to the largest electrical manufacturing corporation. The real radio fan is continually making and remaking his set, which is reflected in the proportion of sales of parts to finished sets. About 75 per cent of radio sales are for parts, and 25 per cent for finished sets, so that even allowing for replacements to finished sets, the home-made set is numerically much more important.

The radio industry has grown from practically a nonexistent status only four years ago to an industry with a sales volume of $115,000,000 in 1923, and the total sales are expected to be over $300,000,000 in 1924. In another two or three years radio sales in the United States will undoubtedly reach the half-billion dollar mark.

Of the various items of radio equipment sales, vacuum tubes amount to a surprisingly large total. Their yearly volume accounts for at least 20 per cent of the entire incandescent lamp sales for all purposes, and over 25 per cent of all sales of radio merchandise.

There is no question of the stations whose sending radius is growing interest of the public in radio. The extent of its future growth will depend upon the power and location of broadcasting stations, as well as the continued high quality of their programs. The total number of broadcasting stations in this country today is over 550 and five of these are high-power reckoned in thousands of miles.

RADIO TO BE HEARD IN "DARKEST AFRICA"

Loud Speakers Will Be Installed in Streets of Tribal Villages Below Congo.

Way down on the yon side of the Congo, radio is about to cause a revolution—a revolution in social customs. "Darkest Africa" is going to be all lit up presently, predict the wireless promoters.

It will not be long before every tribal village will be equipped with a loud speaker, it is promised. Already civilization, with all its improved means of transportation and communication, has burst upon a people who for centuries have been isolated from the rest of the world. Today many a chief is the proud possessor of a Ford.

Upon the rest of the world civilization dawned slowly and built itself up by imperceptible degrees, but upon the "great dark continent" civilization burst as suddenly as its own tropic sunrise. Bicycles and motor cars were quickly accepted as the white man's magic and the telephone superseded the old-time drum signals from the hill tops.

Africa has taken with amazing rapidity to these innovations, and the native boy loves to hear his far distant friends chatter over the telephone, and is just as easily intrigued with the mechanics of a car as an enthusiastic European owner. It will not be long before these same people, who have taken so readily to our other inventions, will welcome radio.

In a country where dissemination of news depends so largely upon the spoken word broadcasting will have a significance all its own. Whereas here in Europe "listening-in" is merely a pleasant pastime or an agreeable and useful adjunct to the evening papers, out there it can be turned to real account not only for the purpose of broadcasting Government orders and information but for distributing colony news and valuable instruction in agriculture.

In the past, when it has been necessary to promulgate orders, meetings of the chiefs have been summoned by sending relays of runners long distances with verbal messages. The advent of the loud speaker will change all this, for in future the District Commissioner will be able to get in direct touch with the people.

Radiograms.

English is becoming the international language of the air.

Canada has more than 100,000 radio users, with over $2,000,000 invested in receiving sets.

There are now 16 radio stations in the United States using storage batteries for transmission power and 101 others using batteries in connection with generator or rectified a. c. power.

The United States Army radio communication system includes 112 radio telegraph and telephone stations at army posts all over the country. There are 14 major stations with a radius of 1000 miles each.

It is estimated that 75 per cent of all the new homes now under construction in the big cities are radio equipped.

The United States has 567 broadcasting stations, which is more than four times the total of all the rest of the world combined.

Radio sets are now part of the equipment of the Boy Scouts of America.

Five hundred American radio amateur transmitting stations were heard in New Zealand during the past 12 months.

Farmers in practically any part of the United States can now receive by radio reports of agricultural prices and movement at the leading market centers the same day, and in many cases a few hours after the news develops.

Great Britain is to have what is claimed will be the largest and most powerful radio station in the world. Work is in progress on 960 acres at Hillmorton, near Rugby, where 16 masts, 820 feet in height are being erected to carry the aerials. The station is designed to communicate directly with India and Australia.

About Wires.

Before making a bend in the wire, be sure it is of the proper length. If the wire is bent and then found that it is too short or too long, do not attempt to straighten it—lay it aside to be used for some other connection. Wire that has been bent is apt to break if an attempt is made to straighten it out, and even if it does not break it will be weak where the bend occurred, or, due to crystallization at this point, it may cause high resistance.

Broadcasting in South America.

Improved broadcasting in Chile has stimulated the demand for radio equipment, reports state. American apparatus, though higher in price is preferred to French and German radio equipment. The Chilean Radio Chilean proposes to install a new 500-watt transmitter which should carry news and entertainment to all cities in the republic.

Baseboard Pointers.

A baseboard should be half an inch to seven-eighths of an inch thick, and heavy enough to offer real support for the panel. Be sure it is dry, preferably kiln dried. Boil it in paraffine if possible. Otherwise use celluloid dissolved in acetone to fill the pores. Never use shellac or the common variety. Do not use varnish or paint.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All queries must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer.

Q. (1) I have used excessive filament voltage on my single tube receiver, and now the set won't work. Please tell me my trouble. (2) How can one make a set tune up to 500 meters without changing the wire on the primary of the primary of the tuner? P. M.

A. (1) This frequently happens with the newer mode tubes. They can usually be restored to normalcy by burning the filament about 20 minutes with the "B" battery disconnected. (2) Probably the simplest way is to connect a 23 or 43-plate variable condenser across the aerial and ground binding posts of your set. If no condenser is available, try lengthening your aerial about 20 feet. You gave no dimensions regarding your antenna, and we therefore cannot give any definite figures.

Q. I have a one-tube ultra-audion receiving set which is capable of picking up stations from 800 to 1000 miles distant. I intended to build a four-tube set, and, referring to some of your diagrams I read that a four-tube set has only a range of some 1500 miles. If this is correct, I would not profit by the extra work and expense involved in adding the three tubes. If you have a diagram of a set having a radius of two to three thousand miles, will you kindly send it to me. No loud speaker is desired. M. C. O.

A. You are getting very good results with your one-tube set and it is fairly certain that the range you could obtain with the addition of three tubes would not equal three times that of your present receiver. One-tube sets, efficiently constructed, have repeatedly picked up trans-Atlantic code stations when atmospheric conditions were favorable. If you add three tubes, we would suggest using two stages of radio frequency, cystal detector and two stages of audio frequency. Some radio fans obtain excellent results with this system and, with an outdoor aerial, obtain a coast to coast range. If your chief interest is in broadcast reception and you do not care for loud speaker volume, there would be little gained from altering your present receiver.

Q. What ratio audio frequency transformers shall I use in connection with my two-stage radio frequency receiver. I want loud volume on my speaker. I have everything but my two audio transformers and I don't know what ratio to get to give me the greatest volume. H. B.

A. It is customary to use a high ratio in the first stage (8 or 10 to 1) and a low ratio in the second stage (3½ or 4 to 1). If you want great volume why not use a push-pull amplifier in connection with one stage of audio frequency? This would incur a slight additional expense over the two steps of audio, but it will give much louder signals.

Q. We have had quite a discussion over the following question: Using a UV-199 tube, will two dry cells serve the same purpose as three dry cells? How many volts should be used on the above tube? P. P.

A. If you have reference to the filament, two dry cells will not deliver sufficient voltage to operate the tube successfully. Three 1½-volt dry cells should be employed in connection with a 30-ohm rheostat. The UV-199 is rated as a 3-volt tube.

Q. What is the amperage consumption of a UV-199 tube? R. A.

A. The UV-199 tube consumes .06 ampere.

Q. (1) What are the materials of the electrodes and of what does the electrolyte consist in the home-made battery charger which uses incandescent lamps in a resistance bank? (2) How many circuits has the hook-up inclosed with my letter? (3) Does using an amplifier with a receiver, and then removing it have any effect on the efficiency of the set? W. E.

A. (1) The electrodes consist of one piece of lead and one of aluminum. The electrolyte is a solution of borax and water. Borax is added to the water until it ceases to go into solution, in other words, dissolve. (2) The diagram inclosed with your letter is a single-circuit hook-up. (3) No. There should be no difference in the operation of the receiver after the amplifier is disconnected.

Q. Will a small single-pole double throw porcelain base switch provide as good protection against lightning as a larger one? A. L.

A. No. Furthermore, the insurance companies specify that an approved lightning arrester be installed, even though a lightning switch is employed.

Mountings.

When mounting binding posts off the rear of the cabinet, it is a good plan to use a small strip of bakelite instead of placing the posts in the wooden cabinet. The aerial and ground connections should also be mounted on a strip of bakelite or formica, and kept at least three inches apart. Never mount these connections in the wood of the cabinet.

A Radio Record.

Keep a record of the dial settings of all stations received if it is desired to get them again. A record book can be kept and will not only tell the dial settings at a glance, but will be a permanent record of all stations heard.

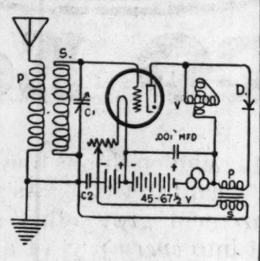
SIMPLE CHANGES INCREASE RANGE

Regenerative Set May Easily Be Converted to Reflex by Following Directions.

Here is a method of converting an ordinary single variometer regenerative circuit into a reflex set, which, with a crystal detector, will give one step of radio and one stage of audio frequency amplification.

Additional parts required are: One .002 mfd. fixed condenser, a low ratio audio frequency transformer (3½-1) and a crystal detector, preferably of the variety especially designed for reflex work.



Either an aperiodic primary made up of four turns of No. 22 wire wound over a 40-45 turn secondary on a 4-inch tube, or a vario-coupler may be used as the tuning transformer. If the first-mentioned method is employed, better results may be had by using as many as 12 turns for the primary—depending upon the length of the aerial. This can best be determined by experimentation.

The rotor or movable plates of the variable condenser connected across the secondary of this tuning device, should be connected to the ground of the set.

If no variometer is available and it is desired to assemble this set with parts found on the average enthusiast's work bench, a coil wound with 40 turns of No. 24 d. c. wire on a 4-inch tube and shunted with a .0005 mfd. variable condenser may be substituted for the variometer.

After the above described changes are completed, it may become necessary to do some experimenting before the set will operate at its best. It is therefore suggested that a .001 mfd. fixed condenser be connected across the primary of the audio frequency transformer, while if the set "howls," try reversing the leads (both the primary and secondary) of the audio transformer. Results may often be bettered by trying fixed condensers of different capacity in place of the .002 specified at C2. Try either a .003 or .005 mfd.

Contraband Radio Conquering China.

There are several hundred radio receiving sets in use in Shanghai though radio sets are upon the contraband list and their importation is absolutely prohibited by the Customs, Consul-General E. S. Cunningham reports. Some of the sets there have probably been assembled locally from materials imported under various classifications. The fact that many firms are able to offer these radio receiving sets for sale is evidence that some firms are able to manufacture or assemble them locally.

For the Notebook.

Never "ground" a set on the house wiring.

Life of a vacuum tube is from 1000 to 3000 burning hours.

Lead or zinc is much better for battery connections than copper.

Adding more "A" batteries to a dry cell tube will not give any louder signals and may cause the tube to burn out.

Use a drill for making holes in hard rubber, bakelite, or other compositions. Never try to make a hole by forcing a nail through it.

REPORT ON CHILD DELINQUENCY HERE

Kiwanis Club Committee Finds Immoral Conditions at House of Detention.

"We found that the police were arresting children for trivial offenses and placing them in the House of Detention, when in most cases there was no need of arrest at all. We suggested that the police take the children to their homes except where it was absolutely necessary to arrest them. We have been assured of this co-operation from the police."

So reads the report of the Kiwanis Club Committee, headed by Terry W. Allen, that investigated juvenile delinquency, its causes and cure, in St. Louis. Results of this survey are further listed as follows:

"The House of Detention was overcrowded, and immoral conditions were found to exist there, so we suggested that the girls be taken out of the House of Detention and placed somewhere else, and that the older boys be separated from the younger ones. We are assured by the Mayor and the Comptroller that this will be done, that a building will be acquired for the girls and that the older boys will be separated from the younger ones.

"The Board of Education no longer arrests children for truancy for appearances in court, but are operating under the fundamental law which gives them control of children for educational purposes, and truant and incorrigible children need a system of moral education.

"The Juvenile Court proceeding where the child was made the principal, as the very name suggests, has been changed into a Parental Court hearing, and all complaints against the child have been dispensed with, and a strictly chancery proceedings instituted, parents and guardians who have to do with children are the principals under the law. Because of this change in the hearings in the court, no child is committed, as before, and any and all boys who need the advantages of Bellefontaine Farm, regardless of any specified time, can have them.

"The city is equipping a separate House of Detention for the girls. The elimination of the truant and school incorrigibles with the holding of parents responsible for their boys has lessened the number of inmates held in the House of Detention, and we believe, eliminated the need of larger quarters for these, because of the decrease of delinquent children."

The report insists that "parental and not juvenile responsibility is the only cure for the growing crime" and says St. Louis, at the instance of the Kiwanis Club, is the first city in the United States to adopt a system of equity proceedings whereby the parents of juvenile offenders are held responsible for their conduct or misconduct rather than the child, the result being that juvenile delinquency will be checked in the home, rather than in court.

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY FETE THIS YEAR SET FOR JULY 17

Program to Include Marathon for Boys and Shuttle Relay Race for Girls.

Headquarters for the tenth annual benefit ball game and outdoor fete of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis will be opened tomorrow at 609 Locust street, where the thousands of presents to be given away to coupon holders will be on display until the day set for the game, July 17.

The ball game this year will be between the Cardinals and the Boston Braves, at Sportsman's Park. Another feature of the program will be a junior marathon race for boys over a one and three-quarter mile course, ending inside the park. The race has been indorsed by the St. Louis Medical Society and the Board of Education. Last year more than 500 boys entered.

A girl's shuttle relay race, in which about 100 girls will participate, is also on the program.

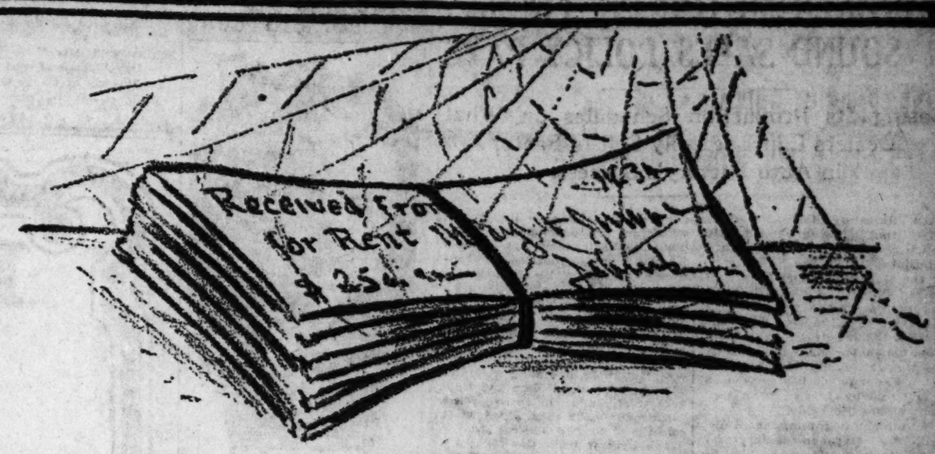
More than 30,000 souvenir programs will be for sale on the grounds by society girls, chaperoned by women members of the Board of Directors of the Tuberculosis Society. Each program bears a coupon entitling the purchaser to a present. Last year 37,000 articles, all donated by manufacturers and merchants, were distributed to holders of coupons.

Proceeds of the game will be used in the fight against tuberculosis in St. Louis and St. Louis County. Tickets will be on sale beginning tomorrow at 609 and 613 Locust street.

The General Arrangements Committee will meet tomorrow noon at headquarters to make final plans. J. Ferd Oberwinder has been reappointed chairman. Verne R. C. Lacy will be in charge of the athletic events.

Insulate Wires With Tubing.

Even though the lead-in wire is insulated, never let it touch metal objects such as the coping around the roof, lead pipes, fire escapes, etc., as energy will leak through the insulation and cause partial short circuits in that the aerial will be partially shorted, thereby prohibiting the incoming signal from being cleared up. Place all wires through porcelain tubing where there is any possibility of its touching metal.



The Most Useless Thing in the World

Some jester has said that the most useless thing in the world is the North Pole. Perhaps he was right. But nature put the North Pole there, and it never cost you or me a dollar.

Certainly one of the most useless—and expensive—and tragic—things in the world is a bundle of old rent receipts. If you have been a renter—for, say—ten years, sit down some night and figure up how much rent you have paid in that time.

Even at the modest average of $100 a month, you have spent $12,000—for which you have nothing to show but a bundle of faded paper. It's probably twice this amount, but $12,000 is sufficient to point the moral. If, instead of paying rent, you have applied that money to the purchase of a place to live, you would now own a home—with all the independence and happiness and stability that home ownership means.

Don't repeat your mistake during the next ten years.

Or, if you are just starting out, don't make the mistake at all.

Own your own home! Investigate the attractive properties advertised in the "Real Estate" columns of the Post-Dispatch. You can earn even a modest salary and still afford to buy a home.

There are desirable places for sale in all of St. Louis' residential districts. The beautiful suburbs around the city are growing. Your home will increase steadily in value while you are paying for it.

There are many ways to save, but the most constructive, satisfying way is to buy a home, because it allows you to save the money you spend.

If you would eat your cake and have it too—buy a home.

Read the Post-Dispatch's "Real Estate" columns today and every day. You will be gratified at the values offered.

GARDNER MOTOR CO. FINDS SOUND SALES POLICY PAYS

Basing Its Production Schedules on What Dealers Can Logically Sell Is Factor in Auto Factory's Success.

An interesting illustration of the effect that adherence to definite policies can have on the growth of a business is afforded by the story of the Gardner Motor Co. of St. Louis. When it began to make the Gardner car, in the spring of 1920, it decided to make a good car and to look at the dealer's problems from his angle. Making a good car has won the public. How the factory's dealer policy has worked out is best told by General Sales Manager Walter H. Yeldell.

"From the beginning," said Yeldell, "the Gardner factory has based its marketing policy on the belief that a dealer can merchandise sanely and soundly so many automobiles, and that he cannot force the issue successfully in the long run. When a dealer is overloaded he may manage to sell the cars. But he carries such a financial burden, and is thereby so forced into unsound methods that he is almost sure to go broke.

How It Works Out.

"We fit our production to what our dealers can logically sell and be prosperous. We never overload ourselves, and we do not overload them.

"Here is the way it has worked out: On April 1 Gardner dealers had less than a third as many cars as they had on hand a year ago. They are not driven into wild trading. They are not loaded down with used cars. Their money is not tied up. So our dealers, despite the slackening in business, are in good shape, ready to take advantage of steady demand.

"The Gardner sales policy is appealing more and more to the dealers who have learned by experience. They like to run their own business and make a definite, sure profit on what they sell.

The Gardner factory is not reaching out wildly to add territory. Instead, it is concentrating on the regions where its sales organization has been built up logically. We are developing where we are solidly established. The rest will come in due time.

"Gardner has proved that there is a definite place in the industry for such a factory, soundly financed, building a fine car and with a sound sales policy."

Used Five-Bearing Motor.

The Gardner Motor Co. is an outgrowth of the Banner Buggy Co., which, in turn, developed from the buggy-spoke business that Russell E. Gardner Sr., founded in Tennessee in 1872. He formed the Banner Buggy Co. in 1888, with a factory at Columbus, O., and in 1892 moved it to St. Louis, where he developed the largest buggy business in the world. In 1916 the company arranged with the General Motors to assemble Chevrolet cars in its plant, at Main and Rutger street, and in three years turne out 60,000 cars. In 1918 it sold the factory to General Motors, but bought it back the following year and began designing and developing a four-cylinder automobile, which was placed on the market as the Gardner car in the spring of 1920. Success was immediate.

In the fall of 1922, the car's engine was made vibrationless and highly effective by special engineering and installation of a five-bearing crankshaft. The Gardner line also was expanded to provide eight models on standard chassis—touring, roadster, radio special sport touring, radio special sedan, and five-passenger coupe. In the meanwhile, the factory was expanded until it provided 300,000 square feet of manufacturing space.

The Coast-to-Coast Run.

Then, in the dead of last winter, National attention was focussed on the Gardner car when "Cannon Ball" Baker took a stock Gardner sedan, weighing with load 4700 pounds, and drove it through ice and snow, over all kinds of roads, through mud that in places had stopped other cars, and traveled from New York City to Los Angeles in four days and 14 hours driving time.

In the Alleghanies, the car fought two feet of snow in a blizzard. Told that roads from Jefferson City to Kansas City were impassable and that no car had made the trip in the last two weeks, Baker took the Gardner through without once stalling the engine and pulled through every mud hole at th efirst attempt. Only the one Gardner car was used throughout the 3398-mile cross-continent run.

At Los Angeles the automobile editor of a Los Angeles newspaper wired: "Motor running perfectly. Car in first-class condition."

Baker's Opinion of the Car.

Here is "Cannon Ball" Baker's own comment on the feat:

"This was my sixty-fourth trip across, and I can conscientiously say that the Gardner is more car for the money than any I have ever driven.

"My actual driving time—4 days, 14 hours and 15 minutes—necessitated my keeping the motor doing its duty at all times. It never failed me. After making the run, and without any mechanical adjustments being made, it did 64.28 miles per hour at Los Angeles. The Gardner is equal to any test.

"The fact that I have just bought a Gardner sedan is proof that I mean what I say."

Russell E. Gardner Sr. retired from the presidency of the Gardner Motor Co. a year ago to become president of the board. The present officers of the company are: President, Russell E. Gardner Jr.; vice president and treasurer, Fred Gardner; secretary and sales manager, Walter H. Yeldell.

TOURISTS FROM TEXAS FIND RAIN HAS MADE GOING BAD

Soldier and His Wife Carry 20 Days' Rations and 1053 Pounds of Camp Outfit.

First Sergt. Paul P. Altmann, Q. M. C., and Mrs. Altmann, who stopped in St. Louis Tuesday en route from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to Brooklyn, N. Y., do not intend to starve. They carried 20 days' rations, and the camping outfit they had loaded into their Olds six sport model weighed 1052 pounds.

Mrs. Altmann, who is doing the driving, said the continued rains had made the going bad in many places. Roads in Texas, she said, were fair. In Oklahoma they were bad, and in Missouri the worst they had found.

Sergt. Altmann, who is on a 90-day furlough, is combining a pleasure trip and a long distance test of his car. He stopped at the De Luxe Automobile Co. service station to have his car washed and polished. Thus far, he said, he has had no repairs. George T. Willett of the De Luxe Co. stated that Altmann said he had been getting 24 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

OLDSMOBILE SIX

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Is DELCO Equipped!

a SIX at $795 F.O.B. Factory

It's the hidden things that count! That's why the Oldsmobile Six "wears so well." As you delve into its construction, your amazement grows that such uniformly high quality can be built into every part of a car so reasonably priced.

Finest Electrical System

Take the Starting, Lighting and Ignition system—a mighty important unit: Oldsmobile uses DELCO—so does a majority of other fine cars—so does Uncle Sam in his airplanes, dirigibles and submarines—so do most of those intrepid drivers who risk their lives on the speedways of the nation!

One Quality All Through

DELCO—finest unit of its kind—typifies the quality built into every cubic inch of the Oldsmobile Six from axle to axle, from roadway to top! It has the finest clutch in the industry, the best bearings, Harrison radiator, the most resilient springs, the finest bodies, and so on down the line.

A General Motors Product

Only Oldsmobile—with the limitless resources of General Motors at its command—could build such a quality car and sell it for only $795! Before buying any car at any price—investigate this beautiful, smooth-running, economical, powerful and long-lived "Six!"

"Woman of Paris," "Code of the Sea" Picture Features

"Restless Wives," "True as Steel" and "The Dancing Cheat" Are Other Photoplay Attractions at Local Theaters for Current Week.

THE week's photoplay feature at the Grand Central, Lyric Skydome and Capitol theaters is Charles Chaplin's first plunge into legitimate drama, "A Woman of Paris," featuring Edna Purviance and Adolphe Menjou. The story was written, directed and presented by Chaplin. There is nothing funny about this picture.

The story is based on the idea that all things and coincidences have great influence on our lives.

Bruce Grayson, a young artist, is in love with Marie St. Clair, a girl living in a small French town. She decides to elope to Paris with her sweetheart. There is a misunderstanding and by the slightest chance an interrupted telephone conversation with him causes her to believe that he has changed his mind. She decides to go to Paris anyway.

Then she becomes "a woman of Paris," protected by Pierre Reval, a rich man. Afterwards her former sweetheart and his mother come to Paris. The old love is fanned anew and the boy again proposes, but upon learning of Marie's past changes his mind. He decides to kill both Marie and Pierre, but lacks the courage to go through with it. Remorse sets in and Chaplin provides an unusual ending.

"Code of the Sea," a Paramount picture, is being shown at the Missouri Theater this week. Featured in the cast are Jacqueline Logan and Rod La Rocque. This is the story of one character, a coward, whose regeneration is accomplished by a girl.

The picture opens aboard the schooner "Chink" with Rod La Rocque playing Bruce McDow, a sailor. He is called on to climb the mast, but hesitates with fear. His father before him was a coward.

Bruce is in love with Jenny Mayden (Jacqueline Logan). She believes Bruce strong and brave at heart. Through a friend she succeeds in getting Bruce an appointment as first mate of a lightship. In his new responsibility Bruce struggles to overcome his fear. There seems to be little hope until in the middle of a raging storm he makes a mighty decision and becomes a hero.

Rupert Hughes' latest film production, "True as Steel," starring Aileen Pringle, is the attraction at the Kings this week. It deals with the problems of the woman in business, and takes its title from a bit of dialogue in which the woman says: "I am as true as steel to my husband. Steel bends, but doesn't break."

The cast in addition to Aileen Pringle includes Huntly Gordon, Eleanor Boardman, Norman Kerry, Louise Fazenda, William H. Crane, Cleo Madison and Lucien Littlefield. The Kings orchestra has been enlarged for the summer season.

Naomi Childers, who has been missing from the screen for some time, is back on view at the Delmonte Theater this week in a new melodrama, "Restless Wives." Also on the bill are a Sunshine Comedy, a new Girl and Music Revue and the usual short reel subjects, including news pictures of the Republican national convention.

With Miss Childers in "Restless Wives" are Doris Kenyon, Edmund Breese, Montagu Love, Burr McIntosh and others. The story of the play, taken from a novel by Izola Forrester, tells of a husband who devotes too much time to his business and too little to his wife, with the result that another man comes between them. Miss Kenyon is the wife and Naomi Childers plays the part of a gossipy society woman.

The week's feature at the Rivoli is "The Dancing Cheat," featuring Alice Lake and Herbert Rawlinson. Most of the scenes are laid in the Mexican "Monte Carlo" at Tia Juana.

NINE-ACT BILL AT GRAND

The Grand Opera House, which now offers the only spoken drama entertainment in St. Louis, has a 9-act vaudeville and picture program for today and this week. It is headed by "La Fantasie," an illusion act by Charles Prevette and Renya Orjena. Lew and Madaline Wilson, in "A Bag of Surprises," are also on the bill.

Gloria Swanson looks as though she were about 19 years old these days. She is tripping about the Paramount Long Island studio in a filmy gown that could be used for a graduation dress and has blonde hair that hangs to her waist. She's a Balkan maiden in "A Woman of Fire," an adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's story, "The Queen's Love Story."

Song Hits of 1904 Will Be Featured in 'Chinese Honeymoon'

Remember "Mr. Dooley?" It's in Original Score of Work to Be Revived at Municipal Theater Tomorrow Night.

A COMPLEX of the musical comedy of 20 years ago and the Gilbert-Sullivan "Mikado," more than twice as old, appears in "A Chinese Honeymoon," selected for this week's production in the Municipal Theater, beginning tomorrow night. "Florodora" has its last presentation tonight.

"A Chinese Honeymoon" has not been presented on the Municipal Theater stage before. It was seen at the Garrick Theater here in 1904, following its New York success, in which the radiant Julia Sanderson and Thomas Q. Seabrooke figured.

It is about an English naval officer and a Chinese Princess, who in the end marry without any concession to such prejudices as that which cause the Chinese heroine in "East Is West" to be identified, in the last scene, as being really an American girl.

Like Ko-Ko and Pooh-Bah.

The comedy characters are officials of the type introduced in "The Mikado," who enact preposterous laws, and are kept in hot water by the whims of their royal masters. The purpose in making the hero English, rather than American, probably was that his uncle, a comedy character, might be an Englishman, too. His wedding journey to the Orient, with his stenographer-bride, gives "A Chinese Honeymoon" its name.

The music of the play is by Howard Talbot, and the songs in the program include notable comedy hits, including the "Mr. Dooley-ooley-oo," which is still remembered.

Raymond Crane is to have the role of the British uncle, and William McCarthy that of the Lord Chancellor, with Thomas Conkey as the Lord High Admiral and Ralph Errolle as the hero. Dorothy Francis, who in the past week has been a Filipino beauty, will become a Chinese one as Princess Soo-Soo. Two graduates of the opera chorus, Fannye Block and Elva Magnus, will have minor roles. Part of the past week's Florodora sextet, enlarged to constitute an octet, will appear as English bridesmaids. (It is to be remembered that this work is of the period when the success of "Florodora" had made a sextet, or septet, or octet, indispensable in any well regulated show.)

Both the scenes of "A Chinese Honeymoon" are outdoors in the Celestial Empire, and the scenic opportunities will be fully used in the staging of the play.

Scene in O'Neill Play Which a Mayor Forbids

EUGENE O'NEILL'S play of racial intermarriage, "All God's Chillun Got Wings.", which is being presented at the Provincetown Playhouse, New York, has been the most discussed production of the year. Its first scene, a prologue to the main story of the play, covers the mingling of white and negro children in a New York street. This scene has not been presented, because the necessary permits for the appearance of the child actors have been withheld by Mayor Hylan. It is read from the stage before every performance, and the forbidden scene is here presented.

SCENE:

A corner in Lower New York, at the edge of a colored district. Three narrow streets converge. On the sidewalk are eight children—four boys and four girls. Two of each sex are white, two black. They are playing marbles. One of the black boys is Jim Harris. The little blonde girl, her complexion rose and white, who sits behind his elbow and holds his marbles is Ella Conway. From the street of the whites a high-pitched nasal tenor voice the chorus of "Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage." On the street of the blacks a negro strikes up the chorus of "I Guess I'll Have to Telegraph My Baby."

Black Girl: Lawdy, it's late!

Joe: Me for grub!

Little Girls: Hurry! Come on, come on! (The six start off together. Then they notice that Jim and Ella are hesitating, standing awkwardly and shyly together. They turn to mock.)

Joe: Look at dat Jim Crow! Land sakes, he got a gal!

Jim: Ne'er mind, you Chocolate!

Mickey: Look at de two softies, will yeh! Mush! Mush! (He and the two other boys take this up.)

Little Girls (Pointing their fingers at Ella): Shame! Shame; Everybody knows your name! Painty Face! Painty Face!

Jim (suddenly rushing at them, with clenched fists, furiously): Shut yo moufs': I kin fick de hull of you! (They all run away, laughing, shouting and jeering. He comes back to Ella, and stands beside her sheepishly, stepping on one foot after the other. Suddenly he blurts out): Don't bawl no more. I done chased 'em.

Ella (comforted, politely): T'anks.

Jim (protectingly): You mustn't never be scared when I'm hanging round, Painty Face.

Modest Actors In Vilna Groups

TWO groups of Jewish actors, both using the name "Vilna" in their titles, are to be seen here for one night each. The Vilna-Odessa Players will perform at the Odeon tonight, and the Vilna Troupe will appear in the same hall tomorrow night. Both performances will be in Yiddish.

The actors of both companies are so chary of self-exploitation that their names are not announced in advance, and they regard the star system as a device of the Evil One.

The Vilna-Odessa Players, who come from the two cities named, will perform "The Devil's Kiss," by Sophia Diall.

The Vilna Troupe, tomorrow night, will present "The Green Fields," by Perets Hirschbein, a drama of Jewish farm life in Russia.

What They Are Doing in the Movies

The "shooting" of Charles Ray's first comeback feature, temporarily titled "Smith," has been completed under the direction of Ralph Ince at the Thomas H. Ince studios. It is to be ready for release by Pathe early in the fall. In the supporting cast are Bessie Love, Jacqueline Logan, Lydia Knott and Wallace Beery.

Lou Tellegen will be seen soon in "Between Friends," a picturization of Robert W. Chambers' novel.

Gloria Swanson's new picture which has been called "A Woman of Fire," will have the new title of "Her Love Story." The screen story was adapted by Frank Tuttle from Mary Roberts Rinehart's magazine story, "Her Majesty, the Queen."

Thomas Meighan, Producer Herbert Brenon and a company of Paramount players have left Los Angeles for Alaska where they are to film James Oliver Curwood's story, "The Alaskan."

Because of the numerous costume changes her dual role necessitates, a portable dressing room has been constructed for Leatrice Joy's use in the filming of "Changing Husbands," at Paramount's West Coast studio. Both characters portrayed by Miss Joy have extensive wardrobes and it is frequently necessary for the actress to make six changes in the course of a single day's work.

Ann Brody, who made her debut in pictures 12 years ago in "The Sacrilege," a two-reeler directed by Herbert Brenon at the old Imp studios, is now appearing in the important role of the Duenna in "A Sainted Devil," which stars Rudolph Valentino. Miss Brody was working at the Vitagraph studio at the time Antonio Moreno was just coming into his own and Agnes Ayres was starring in the famous O. Henry Girl series.

Hungarian literature is following the lead of the French and Spanish in providing material for American photoplays. The latest is the forthcoming Al Christie feature comedy to be released by Hodkinson, titled "A Reckless Romance," from the Hungarian by Emile Nytray.

Margaret Livingston, who has been featured in the James Kirkwood-Lila Lee productions, has just been selected to star in a series of pictures for Regal Pictures Corporation to be released by Hodkinson. Miss Livingston is creating a new type of screen vamp which the players and directors on the West coast call the "I-Don't-Care Girl."

The first electric motion picture camera has been introduced at the Paramount Long Island Studio. When the director calls "camera" the operator presses a button. Smoother photography is claimed to be the result, for it has been observed that in the turning of a crank by hand there is always danger that the camera will wave, no matter how solidly it is fastened down.

The old homestead of "Lucky" Baldwin, whose name was one to conjure with in the halcyon days of horse racing on the West coast, will serve as one of the locations for "The Wise Virgin." The Baldwin rancho is a landmark near Pleasanton, Cal., and has a history as old and picturesque as California itself.

The United Studios in Hollywood is glittering with stars these days. Among the favorites now working there are Colleen Moore, Conway Tearle, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Corinne Griffith, May McAvoy, Ben Lyon, Phyllis Haver, Sid Chaplin, Lloyd Hughes, Alexander Carr, Lew Cody, Lou Tellegen, Henry B. Walthal and some 75 others.

For the first time within the memory of Paramount's productions department officials, a brother and sister have been given important roles in the same picture. They are Helen D'Algy and Anthony D'Algy, and they are playing in Rudolph Valentino's next picture, "A Sainted Devil."

Constance Talmadge is to be seen in "Learning to Love," which will be directed by Sidney Franklin.

Carl Miller and Edna Purviance in "A Woman of Paris"—Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol.

Jacqueline Logan and Rod La Rocque in "Code of the Sea"—Missouri.

Alice Lake and Herbert Rawlinson in "The Dancing Cheat"—Rivoli.

WALKER WHITESIDE PRAISES OUR OPERA

Actor-Manager, Whose Daughter Is in Cast, Finds Public Interest Keen.

Walker Whiteside, actor and manager, who numbered "The Melting Pot" among his stage successes, borrowed the name of that play in his attempt to characterize the St. Louis Municipal Opera, which he visited at a time to see the closing performance of "Firefly" and the opening of "Fiorodora."

"The Municipal Theater is St. Louis' melting pot," Whiteside said. "It is where your people, while enjoying beautiful entertainment, are fused into a big civic whole.

"It is the most beautiful outdoor theater I have seen," he continued, "and I have seen the notable outdoor theaters on the Pacific Coast. The amphitheater seems to have been designed by nature for its purpose, just as the two majestic trees which frame the stage.

Neighborly Spirit Here.

"The Greek Theater at Berkeley, Cal., is beautiful, but cold and forbidding. The formal temple wall at the back of the stage precludes the spirit of neighborliness which is attained here.

"Here people come in, visit and chat, but the minute the stage is lighted they are quiet, and remain at attention through the performance. And everyone seems to have a personal interest in the company. I didn't know there were so many critics. I don't mean knockers; I mean people who like or dislike certain things, and can discuss their reasons with intelligence. Most of the comment I have heard here was praise."

Whiteside's daughter, Rosamond Whiteside, is a member of the opera cast. His visit here, he said, was partly to determine whether she was in surroundings which would aid her progress on the stage. If not, he had thought of urging her to go East with him and Mrs. Whiteside. After an inspection he decided that he wished her to remain here.

Fine Spirit Prevails.

"There is a splendid spirit back stage, and fine discipline," Whiteside said. "David Russell, manager, should have credit for this. Frank Bainger, stage director, and Charles Previn, musical director, are also well placed. The chorus is unequalled, both for looks and singing quality. I have never heard its equal.

"And it is not an amateur body. Everyone knows what amateurs are—lackadaisical, interested only in honors for themselves, giving uneven performances, ruled by whim or mood. That is what I have found in most little theaters."

Praising several of the members of the cast, Whiteside mentioned with especial commendation the finished work done by Dorothy Francis, in "Firefly," in a role which was hardly more than a "bit," and the work in "Fiorodora," in a minor role, of Dorothy Maynard, who had the lead in "Firefly." "That example is a good one to have before the eyes of a young woman who is striving for a stage career," he said.

"I look for the time to come," Whiteside said, "when a season's success in St. Louis will be the highest sort of a recommendation to Broadway managers, and when the intelligent singing actor will seek a summer engagement here, to perfect himself in his work."

January, in the United States. In Europe their longest stays were in London and Antwerp. Some London and continental reviewers compared their acting, for its excellence, with that of the Moscow Art Theater troupe.

Israel Zangwill's comment, as cited by the management of the troupe, was:

"I took a very experienced English manager to see the Vilna Troupe. He was as full of admiration as of envy. 'If only I could get such actors,' he said, 'for the British drama. What cleanness of attack. What vitality. What a Romeo and Juliet I could get from them. They are not afraid of feeling or of making the audience feel.'"

The printed program of the performance, which is given out only at the theater, shows no distinction between different members of the troupe. It is declared that the salary list shows the same equality, the same pay being given to each of the actors.

"The Potters" A True Life Picture

By HEYWOOD BROUN, Drama Editor of the New York World.

(A foreword to published version of the play.)

NEW YORK, June 14.

It was not until I had seen "The Potters" for the second time that I began to try to make a picture of J. P. McEvoy in my mind. I had never seen him, so I was not in a position simply to take him for granted. It is true that I was willing enough to dismiss him as a humorous and particularly kindly man who had written one of the best of the year's comedies, after I had seen "The Potters" only once, but that was chiefly because I had had such a good time at the piece that a good part of its significance had escaped me while I laughed.

Now of course there isn't any better method in the world than that is for dealing in significances. Mr. McEvoy was writing his play for a lot of people, most of them very like the Potter family, and as sad the shrewdness to keep anything even approaching a message from showing on the outside. Not that I would suggest here that "The Potters" had any message, even on a close inspection. But I have a feeling that those who read this play rather than see it, or who read it after seeing it, will find that its power to stick in the mind, and to foment a very considerable speculation about its author, rests in this author's philosophy concerning the man inside all of us.

Whenever any man's philosophy begins to hold your interest it is an inevitable next step that you will become curious about the man. If a man makes his times, so do his times make him. And McEvoy is so clear an example of an increasing and valuable spirit in the theater that I, for one, would like to think that he and his play were very much alike.

Truth-Telling Realism.

The most practical advantage of this would be that it virtually guarantees us another play as good as "The Potters" and another after that. But the greatest advantage is that it would at least indicate, if it did not prove, that this country is beginning both to demand and to create this kind of man.

I think that McEvoy is a realist. I think he is the sort of stone-hearted truth-teller that American literature, at least American dramatic literature, has anguished for the want of, already much too long.

I think we are now in a Renaissance period of the American theater and that McEvoy is of it. I like to think that this Renaissance is coming on sturdily, and I know that it is if these plays are not just so many happy accidents.

There are several reasons why I believe that there is nothing accidental about "The Potters." It was precisely these reasons which first set me wondering about the author.

A Play About Life.

In the first place, then, McEvoy has written a play not about a certain kind of character or even about a certain group of characters, but about a certain kind of life. When people come away from "The Potters" saying "Why, they might be three-fourths of the families I know" that is literally what they mean. It isn't Mr. Potter as a person who engages them, comic and diverting as he is. It is Mr. Potter's life which has been on trial, or, to speak more accurately, under a scrupulous inspection. His is precisely the kind of life that most of us have to lead whether we like it or not. That is why it is important McEvoy should be truthful. He has been. He hasn't shirked a single thing. Mr. Potter's home is ugly and a little messy. He is crowded and jostled on his way to work. His work is without any vestigate of dignity or importance. But Mr. Potter's life has this, also, in common with all other lives—it has to be lived. None of us can afford to have him get bored with it, or rebellious against it, except within certain practicable limits. At any rate, we cannot afford to have him forswear and abandon it. Mr. Potter himself cannot afford to be so low-spirited about his life as even to make himself sick, let alone die.

Now this, in its essentials, is precisely the problem that has always presented itself to the artist: how to keep the soul of man from becoming either so bored or so lonely that it had to flee before its appointed time.

Probably nobody can escape the conviction that life is ugly and bewildering. But life is also something else. What this something else is has been called by every name imaginable, so that the chances for anybody's being accurate are small, but it is nevertheless extremely important that we should be as accurate as we can.

Not an Uplift Play.

I have called McEvoy a realist, partly because he does not try to pretend that the life of the Potters is any better than it is, but more because he seems to me to be so truthful in this matter of life's saving grace.

He does not try to foist on us any conviction that anything can come along and make Mr. Potter's life actually better. What he does say is that about once in so often Mr. Potter will be attacked by a sort of divine lunacy and will go out and buy an oil well, or throw some other grotesque anchor to the windward, and will be revived by it whether it be successful or not. Life cannot help doing this. He says that the human spirit has its systolic system of refreshment as involuntary as the body's heart, and that it can and must be trusted.

Once upon a time man's duty to the race was fairly measured by the amount he could add to the total of man's usable environment. It had not been measured in miles. Now the miles are measured and the maps are made. But the explorers cannot stop. There are ourselves still to be understood. McEvoy has pried into us. He has brought back one authentic story. His place is waiting—for his next return.

Ella: Don't call me that, Jim—please.

Jim (contritely): I didn't mean nuffin'. I didn't know you'd mind.

Ella: I do—more'n anything.

Jim: You oughtn't to mind. Dey's jealous, dat's what.

Ella: Jealous? Of what?

Jim: (pointing to her face): Of dat. Red'n' white. It's purty.

Ella: I hate it!

Jim: It's purty. Yes. It's—it's purty. It's—outa sight!

Ella: I hate it. I wish I was black like you.

Jim (sort of shrinking): No, you don't. Dey'd call you Crow, den, or Chocolate—or Smoke.

Ella: I wouldn't mind. (An awkward pause.)

Jim (suddenly): You know what, Ella? Since I been tuckin' yo' books to school and back, I been drinkin' lots o' chalk 'n' water tree times a day. Dat Tom, de barber, he tole me dat make me white if I drink enought. (Pleadingly)—Does I look whiter?

Ella (comfortingly): Yes—maybe—a little bit——

Jim (trying a careless tone): Reckon dat Toms a liar, an' de joke's on me.

Ella (wonderingly): Why do you want to be white?

Jim: Because—just because—I jak dat better.

Ella: I wouldn't. I like black. Let's you and me swap. I'd like to be black. (Clapping her hands.) Gee, that'd be fun if we only could!

Jim (hesitatingly): Yes—maybe——

Ella: Then they'd call me Crow and you'd be Painty Face.

Jim: They wouldn't never dast call you nigger, you bet! I'd kill 'em. (A long pause. Finally she takes his hand shyly.)

Ella: I like you.

Jim: I like you.

Ella: Do you want to be my feller?

Jim: Yes.

Ella: Then I'm your girl.

Jim: Yes. (Then grandly.) You kin bet none o' de gang gwine call you Painty Face from dis out. I lam 'em good. (The sun has set.)

Ella (suddenly): Golly, it's late! I gotta skip now.

Jim: Me, too.

Ella: I like you, Jim.

Jim: I like you.

Ella: Don't forget.

Jim: Don't you.

Ella: Goodby.

Jim: So long. (They run away from each other, then stop abruptly.)

Ella: Don't forget.

Jim: I won't, you bet!

Ella: Here! (She kisses her hand at him, then runs off in frantic embarrassment.)

Jim (overcome): Gee! (Then he turns and darts away as the curtail falls.)

DAISY TAAKE, St. Louis sculptress, recently completed a fountain design for William Wallace Kincaid, wealthy manufacturer, to be placed in his country home on the Niagara River between Lewiston and Youngstown. The fountain is a life-size portrait of Kincaid's 4-year-old grandson, William Wallace Kincaid Smith, and is designed for execution in light green bronze.

Photographs of the model show the work to be very nicely done and to possess a great deal of feeling. The chubby baby stands in an attitude of delight in watching the creatures of the water, a turtle and a frog, approach him from the pool. His dimpled knees are set closely together and his toes are curled inward as if to draw backward from the turtle which waddles toward him on the pedestal. The child's face radiates a marvelous smile and bespeaks unlimited health and joy.

The environment in which this fountain will soon be placed is especially conducive to enhancing its charms. A six-foot pool of black marble has been made in a 30-foot sunroom fronting the river at the Kincaid home, and at the far side of the basin this delightful figure will be placed.

Miss Taake will be remembered in St. Louis for having won the St. Louis Art League prize for a fountain design eight years ago. She began her study in St. Louis at the School of Fine Art, and has studied with George Julian Zolnay, Robert Bringhurst, Victor Holm and in Chicago, with Lorado Taft, with whom she has worked on several commissions. Miss Taake is visiting her home in St. Louis at the present time, but expects to return to Chicago and thence to New York within a few weeks.

ANNOUNCEMENTS of the Nineteenth Annual Exhibition of Paintings by American Artists to be held at the City Art Museum this fall are now being mailed to local painters, accompanied by entry cards and specifications. The 1924 show will be conducted in the same manner as was the one just previous, these arranegements being deemed fairest and having proven most satisfactory. Paintings having been selected during the year from the important exhibitions in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, etc., have been invited to comprise a part of the coming exhibit, these pictures having already passed juries before entrance into the shows from which they were chosen. St. Louis artists are invited to submit three of their works in oil to a jury which will decide the local pictures to be entered. The names of the persons comprising this jury will be announced later in the press.

Entry cards must be in the hands of the museum director before Aug. 15, and collection of the paintings to be submitted will be made Aug. 20. Any local painters not receiving entry blanks and wishing to submit works for consideration may procure cards and specifications from the City Art Museum at any time before Aug. 15.

The dates of the exhibition will be from Sept. 15 to Oct. 25.

ONE HUNDRED photographs of the world's masterpieces in sculpture from a fine special exhibit in Gallery 33 of the City Art Museum. The photographs, heralded by leading museum directors in America and Europe as the finest of their kind ever produced, are made by Prof. Clarence Kennedy, professor of the history of art at Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

Prof. Kennedy's work in making the photographs which comprise this display, extends over a period of many years and in various countries. Directors of the great museums of Rome, Florence, Paris, etc., have been so delighted and in sympathy with Prof. Kennedy's theory and its results, that many high privileges have been allowed him in the way of assisting him in his splendid work.

Photography of a stone object, offhand, to be one of the simplest matters, whereas in reality it is one of the most complex. Statuary which is made in a studio under carefully arranged lighting conditions is often installed at a great disadvantage in institutions where spacing and lighting cannot be changed or hardly regarded. An object which the sculptor may have intended to be viewed from above may be placed on a pedestal, or the light which should come from one side, perhaps comes from the other. Prof. Kennedy's efforts have been to decide the sculptor's original idea and intention and to interpret this in his photography. Often, many days have been spent in merely arranging the lighting of a sculptured figure before even an actual exposure is made on the plate.

The exhibit here is highly interesting not only from the standpoint of admirable photographic achievement, but also since the photographs present splendid and accurate views of the masterpieces which attract visitors from every corner of the globe.

THE current exhibition at the Art Department of the Public Library is a display of commercial art produced in St. Louis. Several accounts are represented, foremost among which is that of the Purina Mills. John Eppensteiner's work is the outstanding feature of that unit, his oil paintings designed for two and three color reproduction being especially noteworthy. A Haskell Coffin, doubtless belonging with the Purina division of the show, is interesting.

Charles Overall, with whose work most people are familiar through its reproduction in the Chicago Tribune, is represented here by several pencil portraits.

The Gray-Adams Engraving Co. displays a progressive print of a Cupples Cord potser in four colors and a halftone engraving.

The exhibition is greatly restricted, representing chiefly but one account. The material shown is interesting enough, no doubt, for most spectators who view the show desire a more complete representation of other phases of the commercial work being done in the city. The exhibit will remain in progress until June 23.

MARY POWELL, head of the new educational department of the City Art Museum, will commence her series of story hours for children next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. These hours for children will continue weekly through the summer months, the Wednesday topics, of which there are 10, to be repeated on Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock. Any child over 6 years of age is welcome to attend and adults may accompany the children if they wish.

NEW ERA IN NURSING EDUCATION DISCUSSED

Scope and Object of Course at Washington U. Explained by the Director.

Discussing "The New Era in Nursing Education," in connection with graduation exercises of the Washington University Training School for nurses, Miss Claribel A. Wheeler, director of the school of nurses at Barnes Hospital, said:

"The modern system of nursing originated in 1860 in London, when the first school of nursing was founded by Florence Nightingale. The first ones founded in the United States were at Boston, New Haven and New York in 1873. Following these, any hospital that desired nursing service at once organized a school—in many instances education was furthered from their thought. In others, such as Johns Hopkins, the Massachusetts General and the Illinois Training School, the education of the nurse has always been emphasized.

Considered Privilege of Women.

"From the early days of Christianity, nursing has been considered one of the privileges granted to women. The early orders of deaconesses considered it one of their principal functions; the monastic women often spent a life time in the hospitals of the Middle Ages, as did the later lay groups such as the Beguines and Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul. Although these women were not trained as we understand the term, they were inspired with the same ideal of service which actuates their successors of today.

"To better fit young women for this fast growing field of usefulness many universities have undertaken to provide a type of systematic professional training, comparable to the improved courses of instruction now required for the practice of medicine. In some leading universities schools of nursing have been established to replace or to supplement the 'training schools so long connected with and operated by hospitals alone.

"With the clear realization that the training for service as a nurse is a form of education as well as practice in nursing duties, universities are assuming this new responsibility by adopting the same sort of close relation and co-operation between the university and the hospital which have brought about such important improvements in medical teaching and practice. The education of the nurse will be broadened and elevated to fit her for her important function in modern life.

1800 Schools of Nursing in U. S.

"The census of 1920 showed 1800 schools of nursing in the United States. This, of course, includes schools of all types and grades. The medical profession found themselves in a similar position ten years ago but they have gradually eliminated the poorer schools.

"Although the School of Nursing has always been an integral part of Washington University, its students have not been allowed any credit toward an academic degree. With the establishment of the new school, students of nursing may now become candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing, which will be awarded upon the successful completion of a five-year course.

"The five-year course leading to a B. S. degree and a diploma in nursing consists of two academic years in the College of Liberal Arts during which time the students are in residence in the college and pay the regular tuition. The next two calendar years are spent in hospitals affiliated with the university—Barnes, St. Louis Children's and the new Maternity hospitals, during which time the students live in the nurses' home. The fifth year is spent in special branches of nursing and consists of one semester of college work and one semester of field work.

"The course is particularly designed to develop nurses for leadership in public health nursing, teaching and supervising schools of nursing. At the present time it is almost impossible to secure adequately prepared women for teaching positions in schools of nursing. Students will be given advanced courses in principles of education, educational psychology and actual practice work in teaching in the school of nursing."

PRIZES OFFERED ARTISTS IN BLACK AND WHITE CONTEST

St. Louis Guild and Post-Dispatch Will Give Awards For Best Drawings.

The St. Louis Artists' Guild and the Post-Dispatch have announced an annual balck and white competition to be held in the Guild galleries Jan. 12 and 13. Prizes of $250, $100 and $50 will be awarded by the Post-Dispatch for the best drawings. The competition is arranged to stimulate interest in St. Louis scenes among artists in this city and elsewhere.

The competition will be open to artists, whether resident or non-resident, but the drawings submitted must be of St. Louis scenes. All work submitted will be exhibited and artists are not limited in the numbers of drawings they may enter. Any black and white medium may be used, such as oil, water, color, etching or pen and ink. Size of drawing must not exceed 25x30 inches. The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to publication of the work entered, and the winning pictures will become the property of the Post-Dispatch for use within its discretion. Further details of the competition may be obtained from Miss Grace Goodine.

BRITISH PREMIER LOSES IN FOURSOME AT GOLF

MacDonald's Son and Air Minister Victorious in Game Played in Scotland.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—Almost every week end he spends at Chequers court Ramsay MacDonald puts on his knickerbockers, but up to the present he has been unable to take enough time off from his two jobs of Premier and Foreign Minister to indulge in golf, which is his only outdoor recreation aside from the good old-fashioned exercise called "going for a walk."

During the extended parliamentary recess over Whitsunday, however, the Premier went to Scotland with his golf bag and, partnered with former Provost Archibald of Buckie, played in a foursome with his son, Alistair, and Baron Thomson, the Air Minister. The latter pair was victorious.

B. R. T. Memorial Services.

Memoral services for deceased members will be held by the combined lodges in St. Louis of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen at Tyler Place Presbyterian Church this evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. R. C. Williamson will preach.

My Experience is that
DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
Is just what you need

This Will Make Digestion Easy

WHAT the dyspeptic needs is not soda and charcoal and breath perfumes but a medicine that will help his bowels to move regularly, for dyspepsia and constipation are allied. If you will take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin systematically as the directions on the package call for you will soon digest your food properly and pass it out normally, and heartburn, belching, dizziness, nervousness and bloating will vanish. In time you can dispense with all medicines as Syrup Pepsin will have exercised the intestinal and stomach muscles so they act for themselves. Mr. Lewis F. Schultz of Reasnor, Ia., Mrs. Victor Knodler of 3625 Bank St., Louisville, Ky., and hosts of others will verify this.

World Acclaims Success

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the prescription of a well-known physician of that name who practised successfully for 47 years. It has been on the market thirty years and is today the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. Thousands of families have it in their medicine chest ready when any member shows signs of dyspepsia, constipation, torpid liver, sour stomach, biliousness, coated tongue, offensive breath, headaches and such ailments that indicate deranged stomach and bowels. Many serious diseases are prevented by this timely aid.

Formula Plainly Stated

Have no hesitancy giving Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to anyone young or old. It is a mild, gentle laxative free from narcotics. It will not cramp or gripe. The formula is on the package, a compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and simple aromatics. A bottle can be had at any drug store and averages less than a cent a dose. Economical for families and fully guaranteed. You will find it a great improvement in taste and action over castor oil, or "candy cathartics" made from coal-tar that cause skin diseases, calomel that loosens the teeth, salts in water or powder that concentrate the blood and dry the skin.

If You Want to Try It Free Before Buying

The closing of schools for the summer with the excitement of attendant picnics and other festivities has occupied the minds of junior St. Louis during the past two weeks to the exclusion of plans for shows, lemonade stands and other benefits for the babies. In consequence the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund is lagging, somewhat, last week's receipts amounting to only $56.76, making a total of $589.65 thus far this season. This is $165 less than the amount in the fund on the same day last year.

Five direct cash donations and four benefit affairs are included in the total of $56.76. B. Price, Missouri Athletic Association, forwarded $25; $10 was received from the Charles School Parent-Teacher Association through it's treasurer, Mrs. M. Merkel, 2115 Shenandoah avenue; Dr. and Mrs. Carl Glaser gave $5; Mrs. A. C. Davis of Springfield, Mo., formerly of Gravette, Ark., sent $2.50 and Dr. F. D. Johns, 4616 McPherson avenue, donated $2.

A play given May 17 at 935 Laurel avenue earned $5.36 for the Ice Fund. The participants were: Betty Stitch, Jane Tebbetts, Gertrude Geekie, Charlene Hall and Helen Hall.

Veola Meier, 1518A Burd avenue and Estelle Klein, 5650 Cote Brilliante avenue, brought $4.40, which they earned for the fund by holding a dancing school last summer on the Klein lawn.

Jane Fisher, Mary Alice Medsker and Thomas Mills held a sale June 6 at 6963 Amherst avenue and cleared $2 for the babies' fund. Fifty cents was received as the proceeds of a lemonade stand at Maple and Laurel avenues.

500 ILLINOIS WAR FLAGS IN NEW MEMORIAL HALL

Emblems Being Mounted in Glass Cases at Springfield and Encased in Silk Nettings.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, June 14.—Approximately 500 war flags, that have gone through the battles of four wars with the Illinois legions are being mounted in "Memorial Hall" in the new Centennial Building. The flags, which have moved at the heads of Illinois columns in Mexico, the tropics, the Southern states and Europe, are being carefully cleaned by a force of 19 women and incased in fine invisible silk nettings, that will keep them from tearings, as they deteriorate with age.

These war flags, the only collection in Illinois, are being mounted in cases which line the walls of the hall. Each case will contain 12 flags, and is so arranged that more can be added, without disturbing the symmetry of the group. The World War collection, consisting of 119 flags, is already in place, and the other groups will be installed as they are prepared. A record of the engagements, in which each flag was used is engraved on silver rings placed on the staff.

In addition to the World War flags, the collection includes two flags of the Mexican War, 350 flags from the Civil War and 24 from the Spanish-American War.

The collection began as an ex-officio activity of the Adjutant-General's office, and was housed in the old arsenal for many years.

The new hall in the Centennial Building, a long, highceilinged room, offers adequate space for all of the exhibits. The room is well lighted and is considered one of the best examples of architecture and interior decoration owned by the State. Two rows of huge brown granite columns separate the flag cases from the center of the hall where the cases of arms and other relics will be placed. The continuous capitals of these columns form a rectangular panel on which is carved the names of Illinois' Generals.

Church Excursion Thursday.

Christ Church Cathedral has chartered the steamer St. Paul for next Thursday for the annual church school treat, and a number of other Episcopal Church schools will join in the excursion. Family parties wishing tickets may obtain them at the Cathedral office, 1210 Locust street. A Vacation Bible School for children from 5 to 12 will open at the Cathedral house, 1210 Locust street, on June 23, for a five-weeks' session for the benefit of children living in the downtown vicinity of the Cathedral. Miss Phoebe Schafer will direct the school, which will be held every morning from 9 to 11:30, with a kindergarten, a toy making class for boys, music, dramatized Bible stories, sewing and craft work.

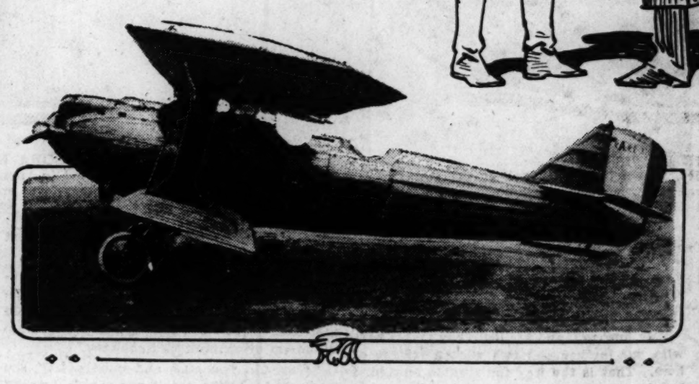
FLYING HALF AROUND THE WORLD TO SELL A BILL OF GOODS

D'Oisy, the New French Eagle, Heard Japan Was in the Market for Airplanes, So He Set Out to Show His Smoke

Map showing the route taken by D'Oisy on his flight from Paris to Tokio, and his principal stops. The distance by this course is approximately 12,000 miles.



The plane which Lieut. D'Oisy borrowed from a French manufacturer and in which he made most of the journey. When it was wrecked in landing near Shanghai he borrowed another from the Chinese government and completed the trip.

Above, at the left, is Lieut. Pelletier D'Oisy, now idolized as the hero of France following his remarkable flight from Paris to Tokio without supply depots or equipment other than that he carried in his plane. At the right is Mme. D'Oisy, his wife. Below he is seen in his plane with his mechanic at the start of the flight from Paris.

With a Machine Borrowed from a Manufacturer, Unheralded and Without Supply Depots or Prearranged Plan, He Set Out from Paris for Tokio With a Mechanician on a Salesmanship Voyage Like No Other in History—Now He Is the Hero of All Parisians Who Will Heap High Honors Upon Him on His Return.

By WILLIAM BOLITHO.
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

PARIS, June 14.

PELLETIER D'OISY, the aviator, a worthy hero, ascends to the fragile throne of Paris popularity, in sudden succession to the long line of happy demi-gods whose exploits flattered and touched the Latin people.

This Paris fame is the most intoxicating reward open to humanity. No crowds cheer like this one. None knows better the way to the railway station when heroes arrive. There are no streets for a carriage triumph-antly open like these mad boulevards, no girls with such aim with bouquets. Nowhere in the world is fame, the third spring of human action, so sudden, so sweet and generous. Elsewhere it grows; here it explodes like a flash of magnesium.

In a night an unknown soldier may be crowned dictator of all luxury and wit and love, and for the term of his rule fear neither disaffection nor revolution, nor even envy. Everything will come true for him overnight. He will be as loved as Napoleon, as honored as Clemenceau, as cherished as Georges Carpentier. He will name new wonders, be received at the Elysee, be garlanded with ribbons, and dance all night. In a day, a week, or even longer, it may all be gone the way of Paris glory; but—it is good while it lasts.

Still Poor, but Rich in Glory

All this is waiting for young Pelletier D'Oisy, who has just completed his daring flight to Tokio. He has shown all the Vishnu marks of the Paris hero and we are at his feet. He was poor, and young and Latin—the last the multiplier. That doubles the value of the rest. He has accomplished victory, alone, with that isolation which draws down fame like lightning—more alone than any hero Paris has had, in the supreme isolation of the air. And his story is drama of conflict and speed and unaided victory over the rivals of France.

Scarcely less idolized is Mme. D'Oisy, his wife, who lived in oppressive suspense during the weeks in which the young Lieutenant (now a Captain) was soaring over wide expanses of scorching desert and tiger-infested jungles, where a forced landing would have been fatal.

Difficulties All Overcome

Before 5 o'clock on the 24th of April, France had not heard of D'Oisy. It came to his ears in the undistinguished post he held that a fat order for aeroplanes was possible in Tokio. A party in favor of French machines were pushing the matter in the Japanese Parliament; but others there were using the British world trip as propaganda for placing the order in the country that had enough faith in its own material to put it to such a test. The British flyer had started on March 24 from London. There were the American flyers, too, to be reckoned with. They were using American-made machines and there were many who thought these machines would be the best of all. "Let's wait and see what they do; maybe we shall prefer their machines," said the pro-American party. Their flight began at Santa Monica, Calif., March 17. There was nothing commercial about it, however. It was purely a sporting proposition and there was no thought or care about selling American-made machines.

D'Oisy began the most difficult part of his feat. He had to persuade Breguet, the French manufacturer, to lend him a machine, and the Government Department of Aviation to grant him enough money for expenses for a rush to overtake the British aviator. The Americans were coming the other way. Naturally, the French authorities laughed at him. These world trips are expensive and demand as much organization of supply depots and spare engines as a minor war operation.

Even if one so late could be arranged, the new economies would not allow it. If this obstacle could be overcome, and a first-class expedition planned out, why should young D'Oisy go? There are thousands of D'Oisys in France with equal claims to such a trust. Hundreds of them have more and they have friends in a place to help them to get it, which our D'Oisy certainly had not. But Breguet was disappointed about that Japanese order.

So D'Oisy talked for days on end, and shadowed the powers until they listened to his plan. He, Pelletier D'Oisy, needed only 100,000 francs. He, D'Oisy would take one of Breguet's machines to Tokio in 10 days. Without any depot, any supplies but those he carried in the wings of his mount, "like a tourist on a cycle-car." No supplies, no depots, no funds needed, nothing but the machine and the spare parts on board. At last—more miraculous than the flight—they yielded. Breguet granted the machine, the Air Department the $5000 at about present quotations in exchange.

Do It; Others Will Tell It

They made a last condition, which struck them only when he had gone to get ready—no publicity before the first stage was done, no preliminary puffs to make them ridiculous in the event he should fail early in his voyage. O'Oisy is the sort of young man with whom you have to think of such things. He is one of the new French that the youth of Latinity from Milan to Buenos Aires imitates. He is more than six feet tall. The new Southerners want to hustle Anglo-Saxonian—having learned its weakness, its slowness, its trust-to-instinct, in the war—off the pre-eminence of the earth. They have learned sport, the old and the new, which plays with the exact art of the machine.

The English, who will have most to do with this new Latinity, only vaguely see it as yet. They notice it with wonder when their dining saloon passes through the outskirts of great towns—Madrid, Paris, Barcelona, Turin—through measured acres, to which they have no like in England, of playing fields, football, tennis, hockey—their own sacred games; and if it is a Saturday, observe them black with active teams. The old ideas stay, when even their excuse is one with archaeology, the dapper little Frenchman, who makes poems and attitudes, the man who plays an eternal guitar, the serenading Italian.

New, Ardent and Active

These misunderstood types of antiquity have passed with Queen Victoria and the Empire Builders. The new is Pelletier d'Oisy, Fonck, Carpentier, Firpo, channel swimmers, record breakers, Rugby footballers—who yell for Mussolini because he put Lord Curzon in his place, and told the world about their new selves. There is a Pan-Latinism as ardent, as active, almost as dangerous and modern as Pan-Slavism, or the Pan-Teutons.

The exploits of the D'Oisys are the glory and the joy not only of Paris, but almost equally of Rome and Rio de Janeiro. In the old sports they have drawn level; in the new, the sport of the machine, they passed the English flyers over Kirachi, with Pelletier D'Oisy on his aerial way. He flew the 2000 kilometers (1250 miles) to Bucharest between 6 in the morning and 5 o'clock that same evening. The British took three leisurely days to Lyons, and there changed their engine. The contrast, not its decent reasons, is what put the youth of Latin Europe and America in ecstasies of enthusiasm the same night.

So Pelletier D'Oisy, is the hero and temporarily the king of the Young Latin movement which blindly strikes at Anglo-Saxon predominance, in sport openly, beneath it all the good things that its holders retain. He is typical of them—unreflective, boastful, hard, speedy young men who have learned the tricks of self-confidence. Their coming has been recent. They found all ready for them—the lassitude of the English, the awakening of South America, the war that put their French champions in military charge of Europe.

Most lasting of all advantages, they have grown up in the coming of the machine, whose virtue is speed, and whose secret is good reflexes. The Latin genius finds the new wings fit. It begins to soar again with ambition and will, as high as before in its story, as high and as swift and as fast as young Pelletier DOisy for sport, for business and for game. So last Monday, D'Oisy landed

ANOTHER WOMAN SLAYER ORDERED TO THE GALLOWS BY A JURY IN GEORGIA

SHOT HER MOTHER-IN-LAW IN QUARREL SHE FEARED WOULD END IN LOSS OF HER HUSBAND

MRS. IDA HUGHES,
Georgia woman who is under death sentence for the murder of her mother-in-law. At the right she is seen reading the Bible in the Fulton county jail at Atlanta.

In spite of the fact that the jury's verdict does not give her long to live, Mrs. Hughes is still careful about her personal appearance. She is shown here with two other women prisoners "dolling up."

No Consideration for Her Because of Her Sex in Trial and Judgment, But Already a Movement Is Under Way to Get Her Sentence Commuted to Life Imprisonment—the Fourth Recent Case in the State Where the Plea, "I am a Woman" Was Ignored.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 14.—THE foes of capital punishment again are mobilizing in Georgia to snatch from the gallows its latest promised victim—Mrs. Ida Hughes, who was condemned by a jury last January to die for the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. M. C. Hughes. Her execution, which was originally set for March 14, already has been stayed several times and there is now a good prospect, many observers declare, that she will not go to the gibbet at all, but will receive a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment as did Mrs. Cora Lou Vinson, sentenced to hang for the murder of her husband in 1922.

A motion for a new trial for Mrs. Hughes is pending, and the prisoner meanwhile is being held in the Fulton County Tower, uncertain as to what her fate may eventually be. Since the trial, at which the prosecutor characterized her deed as the "most cold-blooded of murders" and the jury acted so promptly on his plea to "give her the rope," her confidence has been severely shaken. She declares that if she gets a new trial she will have much to tell that she didn't mention the first time, but she is not building any false hopes in these days of sex equality and unemotional juries.

MRS. OLLIE JUSTISS,
Another Georgia woman, convicted of murder, shown in prison garb at the state prison farm where she is serving a life term. She was sentenced last November.

MRS. CORA LOU VINSON,
Convicted of murdering her husband in 1922. She was sentenced to death also, but received a commutation to life imprisonment and appears here in uniform tending the prison flower beds. Many believe Mrs. Hughes' sentence will be commuted as was Mrs. Vinson's.

"Killed Because She Loved"

"I am in the hands of the law," she says, "and if the law says I must go to the gallows, then of course I'll simply have to go, but I shot her—if I shot her at all—in defense of my home. I killed my husband's mother because I loved him and would rather hang than lose his love."

Mrs. Hughes, who is rather small and of attractive brunette type, is but 24 years old. Although the shooting was witnessed by two policemen, the prisoner has maintained from the first that she remembers nothing about it. "Nothing that has happened since then seems real," she asserts. "I cannot believe that I am going to hang."

She sits in the woman's ward, gazing straight before her with a wide-eyed, child-like stare. She sleeps a great deal of the time during the day, as well as at night, "having nothing else to do," as she explained. Sometimes she amuses herself with light fiction, and though she is a member of no church, she occasionally studies the Bible with a puzzled sort of absorption.

As she talks of her case, with her childish stare and expressionless voice, it is as though she were telling a story that happened to someone else, never herself. The reality of her crime does not seem to have touched her, nor the reality of its consequences. And, although her husband has not visited her for weeks, she still hopes that he will come "tomorrow."

On the morning of Dec. 30, Mrs. M. C. Hughes went to the home of her son and daughter-in-law, in company with two policemen and a possessory warrant for the purpose of recovering alleged personal property. A few minutes later she lay on the floor, dead, shot down by her daughter-in-law. Her son, Frank Hughes, who had asked the officers if he might sit in their car, in front of the house, did not witness the shooting, although he knew that the feud between the two women had existed for more than six months.

It began, according to Mrs. Ida Hughes, when he brought his mother to live with them, six months before.

"I thought it would be all right, and that she would be a mother to me also," says Mrs. Hughes, "but no home is big enough for two families.

"You see, I worked in a cotton mill. I know lots of folks think it is not nice to do work like that, but I was brought up on a farm, and didn't have much education. That was all I could do without some kind of special training, and somebody had to work. My husband hadn't had a job in six months or more. He was a carpenter by trade, but he couldn't find work.

Grocery Bill Foments the Tragedy

"I worked on the night shift, and made from $3.20 to $3.90 a night. That had to pay the house rent, grocery bill and everything for all of us." When Mrs. Hughes said "grocery bill" there was more feeling in her voice than when she talked of paying the extreme penalty of the law, by hanging by the neck until dead. That grocery bill had been an ogre, a wolf at the door, never quite satisfied, always demanding more, though she worked her fingers to the bone.

"How many were there in the family?" she was asked.

"My husband, and his little boy by his first wife, his mother and two women friends of hers. That is the way the trouble started. I loved my husband's little boy just like he was my own. He is 13 years old. We had been married five years, but we didn't have any children. My mother-in-law insisted on keeping these women there for me to support. But my husband kept telling me not to make trouble."

"Didn't you ever suspect your husband?"

"Well, some of the things he did sometimes seemed suspicious, but he was my husband, and I loved him, and I kept thinking things would work out all right, if I just waited a little longer.

"I used to come home and cook the breakfast, after working all night, and half the time none of them would speak to me. Sometimes they would cuss because we didn't have more to eat, and say I was a sorry cook. At night I would prepare the supper before I went to work.

"One day my husband took these two women to Griffin, 16 miles away, with him in his car."

"What kind of a car was it?"

"I don't know," she answered. "I don't know one car from another. Anyway, it all looked funny to me, but he told me that his mother had asked him to take them over there to get a job. They came back the next day, so I reckon they didn't get any job."

As Mrs. Hughes tells this story, one wonders how after endless days of drab submission to "things as they were," she achieved that sudden flare of red, when with one drastic sweep everything was changed.

"Why did you stay and endure it?" she was asked. "Why didn't you simply leave?"

"I didn't have a penny of my own," she explains, as a child might. "My people live on a little farm a Sylacauga, Ala. My father is an invalid. They weren't able to help me. And I kept thinking things would get better.

"Then at last, Mrs. Hughes decided to move. She'd say, while she was packing up her things, 'Well, this is Frank's. I'll just take it along.' There was almost nothing left.

"Sunday she came back with two policemen and a warrant.

"They said they were going to arrest me, but I reckon they didn't mean that, for my husband looked at the warrant and said it wasn't that kind. Then he went outside and sat in the officers' car.

How Mood to Kill Seized Her

"I told Mrs. Hughes that I didn't have anything of hers, but she went over to my trunk and began throwing my clothes on the floor.

"My husband's little boy always had other children playing in the house, and for that reason I kept our pistol under a pillow on the bed. I remember putting it there that morning, but I don't remember getting it or shooting Mrs. Hughes, or anything after I asked her to quit throwing my things on the floor.

"The next thing I remember I was riding in a car, and my husband and little boy were crying.

"I asked them what was the matter. The policeman said, "You know what's the matter. You've killed your mother-in-law." But that was the first I knew of it.

"I didn't tell all this at the trial," says Mrs. Hughes, "because I didn't want to embarrass my husband by telling the real truth about his mother's character. He told me not to say much. It looks now like he would rather have me hang than let people know that his mother was like that.

"If he feels that way," she said listlessly, "I don't reckon it matters much what happens to me."

Four times since 1922 juries of this State have had occasion to weigh the dictates of their judgment against the plea of "I am a woman," and four times they have sent the prisoner back to jail to pay as the law provides for her too great liberties with weapons. Two years ago the old notorious brand of sentimentality was put aside for the "merits of the case" when Mrs. Cora Lou Vinson went to trial for the murder of her husband. She drew the death penalty from the jury and is now serving a life term at the State Prison Farm by grace of a Governor's commutation. Last November Mrs. Ollie Justiss, convicted by the celebrated "praying jury" of shooting her lover, went the same route. Still more recently Mrs. Love Rogers, another husband killer, met a similar fate, and now Mrs. Hughes faces the most severe penalty of all—if it is ever carried out.

It was in 1559 when Georgia witnessed its last execution of a woman. In that year Susan Eberhart of Webster County helped a man named Spann to choke his wife to death and went to the gallows for her part in the murder. Some 19 years before that Mrs. Polly Barclay of Wilkes County was hanged for killing her husband. Following the Civil War, however, the so-called "gallantry" of the South reigned through many [illegible] years before another feminine slayer was severely dealt with. In 1877 Kate Bradley of Jasper County drew a death sentence for cutting the throat of another woman in a fit of jealousy. But her sentence was never carried out. Henry W. Grady interested himself in her case and obtained for her a commutation to life imprisonment.

The murder for which Mrs. Vinson was sentenced to death and later confined for life on the prison farm, occurred on March 31, 1922, just a few days after her husband, J. W. D. Vinson, had filed a divorce petition alleging that she had threatened to kill him. She drove to his drug store in a taxicab and without a word shot him to death as he sat in his office in the rear writing prescriptions, then walked calmly out and rode away.

At her trial an attempt was made to prove her insane, but as a lunacy commission had examined her a short time previously on the complaint of a married daughter and found her sane, the effort carried little weight. The jury returned a verdict of guilty without recommendation of clemency and Judge John [illegible] Humphreys automatically imposed the death sentence, which later was commuted and the prisoner was permitted to share in her husband's estate.

At the trial of Mrs. Justiss the defense took the well-known role of the "woman scorned" and told with melodramatic accompaniments how she had killed De Witt Turner "because I loved him." There was an attempt to show that Turner had tried to elope with her 15-year-old sister and that the fatal shot was fired to keep him from "ruining" my sister what he made of me," but the plea fell on ears deaf to sentimental pleas. After 10 minutes of prayer the jury arose from their knees and quickly voted "guilty," two members even holding out for the death penalty.

The case of Mrs. Love Rogers was another notable one in Georgia in which a woman drew a life term. The belief at the time of her arrest was that she and her brother-in-law, Alton Rogers, who was her partner in the murder of her husband, [illegible] would draw a death penalty. But they chose to plead guilty and take a life term rather than attempt any sort of defense. That, coupled with testimony that they were not mentally responsible, saved them from the gallows, and they are now on the state prison farm with Mrs. Vinson and Mrs. Justiss.

The Rogers crime, which occurred more than a year ago, is remembered as particularly hideous. The couple and the husband's brother lived together in a little farm home in Coffey County. There an altercation sprang up between the wife and the brother-in-law. Finding the husband asleep one day they shot him as he lay and buried his body in an adjoining field; then gave out to the neighbors the report that he had eloped with another woman. The brother continued to live at the cabin and planted corn over the spot where his brother's body lay. A few months later he and the woman fled to Florida and when captured, Alton Rogers told a wild-eyed horror how he had been driven to confession by his fear of his brother's "ghost," which, it seemed to him, walked through the rustling corn blades all night and hovered about the cabin.

CHICAGO, June 14.

IT was to be a "perfect murder"—the killing of Robert Franks. It was to go down in the annals of criminology as one piece of macabre workmanship that would endure through the ages, an unsolved, unsolvable mystery.

Spectacled and scholarly sociologists would recall it in their lectures on criminal ingenuity; detective story writers would weave about it the vagaries of their distorted fancies; old policemen in years to come would prop their feet on the desk and relate to younger officers how they, in their better days, almost but didn't quite bag the master player whose hands were too crafty for detection.

But these would-be master criminals, Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, who conceived it, failed to take account of inevitable human frailties when they set about their grewsome experiment in "thrills." Perched on their self-constructed pedestal of egotism, their view was downward—downward on the rabble; never inward. In themselves they saw no frailties, so with all the diabolical cleverness of their plot, with all the cunning ramifications of its execution, it was clever only to the point where some lurking fate should cause a single slip and direct suspicion on them. They worked for six months to make it clew proof and then, like two bungling children, walked away from the murder scene leaving a pair of glasses to serve as label, seal and signature.

When that was done all was undone. There was needed only that little slip to point the way to a multitude of other slips. The fabric that was to be faultless unraveled like an old yarn sock. Instead of the work of a master criminal it became the clumsy labor of inexperienced amateurs. Instead of taking its place among so-called "perfect crimes," it stood as new confirmation of the old axiom of Chaucer that:

"Murder will out, that see we day by day";

or of Dryden, that:

"Murder may pass unpunished for a time,
But tardy justice will o'ertake the crime";

or again, of Shakspeare, that:

"Murder, though it have no tongue,
Will speak with most miraculous organ."

Cry of Guilt From Every Nook

The murder of 13-year-old Robert Franks, ostensibly for a $10,000 ransom, did speak loudly, first from the brushy spot where the pair of glasses lay and then, with that as a signal, the cry of guilt came from every nook along the circuitous route that the months of plotting had marked out. Typewritten notes, a naive and well-meaning family chauffeur, a blood-stained chisel, fictitious names, a rented car with murder stains still on it, hidden clothing, an easily punctured alibi and a score of other minor details that even a second-rate assassin would not have overlooked, came forward one by one to confirm the story told by the horn-rimmed glasses. Had the glasses remained the only clew, Leopold, with his conversational adroitness, might possibly have explained away suspicion, for it was known that he frequently went to the Wolf Lake swamp district to study bird life. With the other facts rolling up against him that was impossible.

In view of this vast array of circumstantial evidence which Loeb and Leopold left to accuse them just so soon as a slight mishap brought them under investigation, it is not easy to understand how two youths celebrated for their superior intelligence and schooled in theoretical crime through their diet of detective and decadent literature could have been so stupid in practice.

It now seems that almost any regular crook might have done it better, but that is just what these striplings were thinking all the time their plans were hatching—how much better "we could do it than the average murderer." For that matter, it is no easier to comprehend how they were moved to hazard such an undertaking at all.

Heirs to millions, occupants with their parents of magnificent homes, reared in luxury, they had no need of money, least of all money to be extorted through kidnaping. They had no enmity against the Franks boy. He was only a chance victim, one of four prospects in fact. There was in their habits and reputation a suggestion of degeneracy, but even that would not ordinarily impel to murder, and, even if it was a factor, does not completely explain the shocking puzzle. Owing to marks found on the body, the authorities tried to question Leopold on the degeneracy angle before his confession, and the attempt proved more embarrassing to them than to the prisoner.

While they were stumbling for words, he knocked them flat with his fluency in scientific terms which they didn't understand. He literally took the inquiry out of their hands and launched into a ready discourse on more forms of degeneracy than they had ever heard of. Psychologists believe that sadism, or that form of degeneracy which enables the subject to gain pleasure from witnessing death and remaining in proximity to dead bodies, may have figured in the crime, but in the end the only tangible motive appears to be what the two 19-year-old slayers said it was in the beginning—the desire for a "thrill," sport, excitement—a new laboratory test in human emotion.

Lived Only for Their Pleasures

These self-styled "intellectual rebels," Loeb and Leopold, had run the gamut of normal emotions already, had experienced every reaction, both physical and mental, that could come with law-abiding conduct. They never had a job, they never had a boss, they never had to take orders or devote an hour now and then to the service of others. With minds abnormally acute, they didn't have to grind to win scholastic honors, even though they took twice the number of courses carried by the average student. They had only to satisfy their curiosities, which were mostly morbid, and seek in forbidden fields for new and vicious amusement. They cast about for one more medium through which they might squeeze the sponge of experience dry and they chose murder.

With this in mind, there arose the desire, born of egotism, to make it a "perfect crime," one that would set the whole city in turmoil, go down in history as a masterpiece, and, as a means of providing additional excitement, afford a comfortable ransom for their trouble. These were the factors behind their decision to make a rich man's son their victim. Protected by honorable family names and versed in the murder technique of fiction, they thought they could sidestep suspicion and sit by enjoying the chase to the fullest while the "little minds" vainly attempted to match themselves against superior craft. Everything was staked on averting suspicion. Here is where they measured short as master criminals. A master criminal, of course, tries to avert suspicion, but he also sees to it that his alibi is clear, so that if a slight mishap draws him under scrutiny his way will still be open fore and aft. Loeb and Leopold spent their six months of planning and several hundred dollars making the first phase of their plot airtight and then lift their alibi full of tell-tale holes.

The story-book influence crops out at intervals all through their weird machinations. First there was the ransom note. To begin with, it was couched in polished diction and faultless phrases. It would read better that way in the newspapers. It did; but it also stamped the writer as an educated man. In the summing up of clews it was evidence that was damaging. A really clever kidnaper, even though capable of writing such a letter, might have disguised it, giving it the unschooled flavor of the average criminal. It would have thrown detectives off the track a little farther. And even with all its erudition and the erudition of its writers there is indication that it was largely borrowed from a kidnaper's letter in a current magazine story. Here are some comparisons in phraseology:

The magazine letter said: "This is strictly a business organization."

Leopold's letter to Jacob Franks, the victim's father, said:

"This is strictly a commercial proposition."

The magazine letter again: "It is imperative that you make absolutely no appeal to the police or to any private detective agency."

Leopold's note echoes with this: "For obvious reasons, make absolutely no attempt to communicate with the police authorities or private agencies."

As for the typewriting phase of their faulty structure, little needs to be said. The fact that Leopold used his own typewriter for the purpose at once stamps him as a rank amateur, for even the most inexperienced crook ought to know by this time that typewriting has its peculiarities just the same as handwriting and can be identified by experts just as easily.

This very thing happened. Before Leopold had been arrested or even mentioned in the case, a Milwaukee typewriter expert had identified the typing in the letter as work done on a portable Underwood machine. No sooner had he been taken into custody as a result of the finding of his glasses than inquiry on that angle began. Investigators quickly learned from his fellow students and Lizzie Sattler, the Leopold housemaid, that he owned or had owned such a machine and search at Chicago University brought to light notes which he was known to have written.

Although he and Loeb had taken the precaution to tear off the keys and sink the typewriter in a park lagoon, it was a simple matter to compare the writing, and the characteristics tallied perfectly. A really clever kidnaper would never have used his own machine, from which there existed abundant samples of his work. He might have stolen a machine for the purpose and taken pains to disguise his "hand" by writing in a manner different from his accustomed style.

Probably the most elaborate phase of the deeply complicated exploit was that connected with renting an automobile for the murder. In this the 19-year-old culprits spent a month of time and several hundred dollars besides, and they thought the scheme flawless, but here again they guarded only against suspicion. The alibi was left to be taken care of as an afterthought.

Apparently they decided to use a rented car, obtained under fictitious names, so that if pursued the license number would lead to the car agency and then up a blind alley in the false identities—in itself a foolish bit of reasoning. They chose a red Willys-Knight similar to that habitually driven by Leopold, so that their appearance in it would not be noted as anything unusual by acquaintances in their home neighborhood, in which they expected to operate. But first, their involved plan for obtaining this rented car is worth noting. It was a long and tedious process.

About the first of May, Leopold went to Peoria, Ill., established a bank account and registered at a hotel as Morton D. Ballard. On May 9 he registered at the Morrison Hotel in Chicago under this name, giving his address as Peoria. From there he went to the Rent-a-Car Company on South Michigan avenue under his assumed identity and representing himself as a salesman desirous of renting a machine for canvassing his territory.

No, he couldn't give the three references which the firm asked for as he was not well acquainted in Chicago, but he could give one good one and was willing to deposit $400 for the car. Moreover, he had an account at a certain bank in Peoria, which might be verified on inquiry.

Who was the one good reference? Mr. Lewis D. Mason, former United States Commissioner in Chicago, and he could be reached at once by calling Calumet 4658. W. C. Herndon, manager at the automobile concern, "fell for" the ruse and called the number. A man's voice promptly answered. Yes, he was Mr. Mason and he knew Morton D. Ballard of Peoria. Mr. Ballard was strictly honest and reliable; the company need have no fear in giving him all the credit he wished.

The voice was that of Loeb, who had been "planted" in a public telephone booth in a cigar store a few blocks away, waiting for the call.

The car was rented and returned in due time in good condition. "Mr. Ballard's" standing was established, so when he went again on May 21 to get the car there was no delay or trouble.

"Deep Stuff" Didn't Mean Anything

It was all "deep stuff," according to the boys' way of thinking—very melodramatic, and so it was on the surface. But through all this it seemingly never occurred to Leopold that if suspicion against him and betraying signs on the murder car should be connected the Rent-a-Car man would have no trouble in identifying him as the "Mr. Ballard" who had used the machine.

And that wasn't the end of their bungling. On the night of the murder they permitted themselves to be seen washing blood stains off the rented machine and then neglected to "fix" the old family chauffeur, Sven Englund, beyond telling him that the stains had been made by red wine. They might have known the police would grill it out of him.

That same neglect proved fatal later when the tracing of Leopold's glasses dragged the pair into the inquiry. They told the examiners they had been out riding on the afternoon of the murder "picking up" girls in Leopold's own Willys-Knight, when as a matter of fact it had been in the home garage all day undergoing repairs. It should have required no exceptional sagacity to surmise that the police would ferret out the whereabouts of that car if the owner came under suspicion, and they didn't even coach the chauffeur to tell a story corresponding with their alibi. They permitted him to walk unsuspectingly into the trap set and swallow the bait, hook, line and sinker.

"Oh," he said, when questioned about the probability that the boys had used Leopold's car in the murder, "they couldn't have done that because the car wasn't out of the garage all day. I was repairing the brakes."

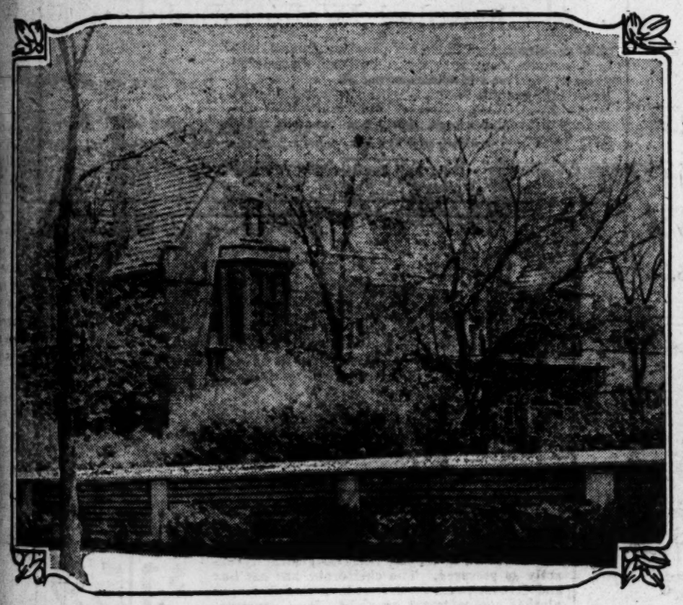
His Own Typewriter Against Him

Again lack of originality appears in their plan for the delivery of the ransom money. The idea of having it thrown from a speeding train in compliance with instructions "planted" on the train itself was not a new one. It was used as early as 1874 in the famous Charlie Ross case. The scheme of imparting instructions through a chain of messages, each leading to the other, was another bit of borrowed technique, it having been employed 10 years or more ago in a notorious Cleveland kidnaping.

Thus, apparently, the self-termed "Nietzschean colossus" had to borrow his ideas from cheap news-stand literature. This was another bit of evidence which, in its way, has a value, for both Loeb and Leopold were notorious among their associates for their passion for wild adventure fiction.



The Chicago home of Albert H. Loeb, multi-millionaire vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and at the right below is the summer home of the family at Charlevoix, Mich. Born to such luxurious surroundings as these, young Loeb and Leopold gave up everything to risk an experiment in murder.

THE "PERFECT MURDER" FULL OF CLEWS THOUGH PLANNED FOR 6 MONTHS

His were the best intentions in the world and he thought he was helping them but in that one statement he proved they had lied and thereby swept away their entire alibi.

But this amazing boldness of Leopold and Loeb stood out brazenly all through their operations as if to challenge suspicion. They allowed themselves to be seen hanging about the Harvard school, which adjoined Leopold's home, just before Robert Franks disappeared. They lured him into their car in broad daylight within two blocks of his home and theirs and killed him with the chisel and gag five minutes later on a street lined with traffic. They rode about with his body in the car for hours and even stopped at a restaurant in Hammond, Ind., to get sandwiches. After hiding his stripped body in the swamp culvert, they carried the padded chisel almost home before it occured to them to throw it away, and then threw it on a neighbor's lawn, where a watchman, Bernard Hunt, saw it fall and picked it up. They burned the slain boy's clothing in their own furnaces, something a finished criminal would never have done because he would know that the ashes would be sifted as they actually were later, and then made themselves conspicuous in their efforts to aid detectives in the search for the slayers.

Most incredible of all, they helped to point out real clews instead of false ones.

When detectives and two newspaper reporters, one of whom was a fraternity brother of Loeb, stopped at the Zeta Beta Tau house, near Chicago University, during their canvass of the neighborhood for traces of the criminals, they found Loeb highly excited over the "mystery." His arms were full of newspapers carrying accounts of the case, the arrest of two Harvard school teachers and the quest for further clews.

He was poring over the Franks case, but hastened to explain, without necessity for an explanation, that his mother was a close friend of the Franks family, was deeply interested in the case and had sent him out to get copies of all the daily papers. That was convincing enough and readily passed muster. But his curiosity didn't stop there. He begged, and was granted, permission to accompany the detective party in the search for a drug store to which Jacob Franks had been directed to go for another message on the day after the murder. In his excitement, Franks had forgotten the location of the place.

Visits to two or three stores brought to light no evidence of a call having been received for Franks. Finally Loeb suggested that they try the C. M. Ross store at 1465 East Sixty-third street. As they approached the place he drew away from the rest and entered fully 100 feet ahead. Almost immediately he stepped out, meeting them at the door.

"This was the place," he said.

Sure enough it proved to be. A call for "Mr. Jacob Franks" had been received at that store on the day after the murder. The fact that he had forgotten the address prevented him from receiving it and boarding the Michigan Central train from which he was to throw the money.

No effrontery, however, could match the gem of mocking drollery conceived by that suave, cynical and cock-sure Leopold.

Early in the investigation a Chicago newspaper offered an award of $50 to the person contributing the most plausible and logical "solution" of the case. Leopold entered the competition. He sent in a "theory" that tallied almost perfectly with the real facts and then, as a trascendent scoff, made a bet with Loeb that it wouldn't win the prize.

And it didn't.

near Tokio and that same day was in the Japanese capital. Now, no doubt, he is hustling for his airplane orders. The Americans were there before him but that did not count. They were not traveling salesmen—they were gentlemen, not tradesmen. But not so with D'Oisy. He has the goods and he wants to sell them—and he doesn't care who knows it.

It took him a good deal more than his promised 10 days to get there—in fact, it was just two months from the time he started until he finished in Tokio. But what fine advertising he gathered along the way! The French Government and Breguet soon forgot their fear that he would make them ridicutous. Nothing succeeds like success, and when d'Oisy was far on his way and it was evident that he was, at least, going to take his machine very near to the goal, Breguet and the French Government both began to boast of his being under their auspices. It was good advertising to them, too. Americans would have seen the opportunity sooner but they are a bit more cautious and slower in France.

It was little short of tragedy that d'Oisy's machine fell near Shanghai. He had used the same engine all the way there and it would have been a bit more romantic if he could have floated into Tokio's landing field on its power. But the Chinese Government has a lot of airplanes—maybe you didn't know that—but it's a fact. And so the Chinese Government told d'Oisy to take the pick, with its compliments, and go on to Tokio.

And that is how d'Oisy completed his trip.

FACTORY BUILDING UNDER CONSTRUCTION ON MO PAC SPUR AT THERESA AVE. AND GRATIOT STREET FOR THE STEELCOTE MFG CO.

PAUL BROWN, OWNER OF THE TITLE GUARANTY BUILDING, ALSO PURCHASES THE SITE

Bond Broker's Activity a Feature of Realty Buoyancy in Downtown Business District.

By Berry Moore.

It was disclosed yesterday that Paul Brown, broker, had acquired the site of the Title Guaranty Building at the southwest corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets, owned by the Delaney estate, through Isaac T. Cook & Co. Some time ago Brown purchased the Title Guaranty Building, which occupied the site under a 99-year lease. Through the purchase of the fee he has obtained ownership of the property in its entirety. The price paid for the fee was not made public.

The site has a frontage of 155 feet on Chestnut street, with a depth of 109 feet 4 inches on Seventh street, approximately a quarter of a block, while the structure has 12 stories, exclusive of basement. The building has been remodeled and equipped by Brown.

Realty in the central business district is characterized by notable buoyancy, as a result of the impressive number of building projects for this area. The B. Nugent & Bro. Dry Goods Co., the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., and the Mayfair Hotel projects have given the needed stimulus, real estate men declare.

Several Projects Planned.

Plans for several projects of a diverse character came to light during the week but announcements were withheld pending completion of the financial arrangements.

Conditions are conducive to resumption of construction on a large scale for commercial purposes. Capital is in abundant supply, while there is a demand for buildings of all kinds. Due to the fact that construction in downtown St. Louis has been at a negligible stage since the World War, office buildings, hotels, shops and wholesale houses are in demand.

There is much money available for underwriting purposes, as well as for investment and speculation on a conservative basis, at rates ranging from 5 to 6 per cent, according to real estate men.

The general realty market, however, is relatively quiet, due to the fact that there is a diversity of opinion as to values. There is no absence of prospective buyers, but offers submitted are marked by a conservatism that is retarding transactions.

Owners of flats and apartments are averse to surrendering their buildings, except on the high basis of present rentals, which prospective purchasers are hesitant to pay. With the supply of flats and apartments more than counterbalancing the demand on the part of renters, no brakes have been put on construction of these types of buildings with a view to stabilizing prices.

May Building Record.

The May building record for the 36 Eastern States showed a decline, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. Total May building contracts in these 36 States (which include about seven-eighths of the total construction activity of the country) amounted to $419,272,600. The decrease from the previous month was 3 per cent; from May, 1923, 13 per cent. While there were substantial increases over April in New England, the Northwest and the Southwestern States, the remaining sections showed falling rates of activity. Construction is holding up at a relatively higher rate in the Southwestern States than in any other section included in this report.

Total construction started from Jan. 1 to June 1 has amounted to $1,934,240,800, an unprecedented figure, being an increase of 11 per cent over the corresponding period of last year, which established a high record. The increase in New York City on the five-months' record has been 101 per cent; outside of New York City there has been a decline from last year of nearly 3 per cent.

Analysis of the May record shows the following important items: $185,418,900, or 44 per cent, for residential buildings; $68,708,400, or 16 per cent, for public works and utilities; $56,379,500, or 13 per cent, for commercial buildings; $40,582,200, or 10 per cent, for educational buildings, and $28,901,400, or 7 per cent, for industrial buildings. Residential and industrial buildings and public works declined in May; commercial and educational buildings increased.

Contemplated new work reported last month amounted to $574,639,000, which was 5 per cent less than the amount reported in April and 10 per cent less than the amount reported in May of last year.

Central West Report.

May building contracts in the Central West—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, amounted to $95,909,400. The decrease from April was 13 per cent, from May of last year 18 per cent. Last month's record included: $44,766,500, or 47 per cent, for residential buildings; $12,432,100, or 13 per cent, for commercial buildings, and $9,775,500, or 10 per cent, for educational buildings.

Total construction started in the district during the first five months of the year has amounted to $430,471,900, a decrease of 5 per cent from the corresponding period of last year.

Contemplated new work reported in May amounted to $155,318,600, an increase of 1 per cent over the amount reported in April.

THEATER AND OTHER PROPERTY SALES BY OLIVER R. KRAEHE

Oliver R. Kraehe reports the sale of the Knickerbocker Theater at 3145 Park avenue for Eugene A. Freund to the Park Amusement Co.; two stores and six flats at 2934-06 Chouteau avenue for Charles Harold Jr., and 3905-07 Castleman avenue, a four-family flat, for Fred W. West to a client of the F. A. Doumer Realty Co.

JUNIATA THEATER BOUGHT FOR $65,000

The Juniata Theater at 3147-49 South Grand boulevard has been purchased by the Stromsell Real Estate and Investment Co., of which Ben P. Stromberg is president and Louis K. Ansell treasurer and general manager. It is of fireproof construction.

The amount involved was $65,000, according to the Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co., which handled the transaction. The building, however, it is declared, could not be built under the prevailing cost of construction for less than $75,000, Otto Dickmann, vice president of the company, declared. The Otecy Amusement Co., of which Max M. Feuerbacher is president, was the former owner of the property.

The building is one of a chain of theaters of this type, erected 15 years ago, including the Arsenal, Shenandoah and Park theaters, by Hagerman, Fitzsimmons and Flynn, and operated under the management of O. T. Crawford.

The Juniata virtually formed the nucleus for the growth of this part of the city, which constitutes one of the most flourishing centers of the South Side.

The building is to be remodeled on a handsome scale.

TWO TENEMENT BUILDINGS SOLD BY CHAUNCEY P. HEATH

The Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. has effected the sale of 1401-15 North Seventh street, consisting of two tenement buildings three stories high, with a lot with a frontage of 172 feet on Seventh street. The rental is approximately $10,000 a year. The consideration was not disclosed.

The property was sold for Robert F. Ryan, who was represented by the Savings Trust Co., to Arthur B. Mooney who was represented by the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co.

FOR ADDITIONAL REAL ESTATE NEWS, SEE PAGE 7S, PART TWO.

WORK TO START SOON ON UNION-EASTON BANK BUILDING

Plans for the new Union-Easton Trust Co. building at 5325 Easton avenue, are nearing completion in the offices of Klingensmith-Rice-Wilkins architects, and excavation will start within ten days or two weeks. The building will have a 50-foot frontage on Easton avenue, with two full stories and basement. The first floor will house the trust company and provision is made for the general banking and real estate business. The second floor will contain 18 modern offices to which a separate entrance from that of the bank is provided.

Fireproof construction is used throughout. The design is of classical style in which can be found the Greek influence in the ornament. The exterior material is to be stone and the general appearance will be consistent with modern bank practice. The banking floor will contain consultation rooms, private offices, directors' room, and modern safe deposit vault of the most approved type.

The board of directors will consist of Arthur F. C. Blase, R. A. Stierlin, Wm. A. Keeneman, A. J. Spring, M. B. Bellis, J. H. Rodes, Eugene H. Harms, Edward A. Horstmeyer, and John G. Faust. There will also be an advisory board composed of 15 shareholders.

BUILDINGS BEING ERECTED FOR FONTBONNE COLLEGE

Group of Five Structures, to Cost $1,500,000, to Be Ready for Use by Fall Term in 1925.

The buildings for Fontbonne College for girls, an outgrowth of St. Joseph's Academy, are now being erected by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet upon their 15-acre tract at Pennsylvania avenue and Wydown boulevard. The group of five buildings, which is to cost $1,500,000, is expected to be ready for use by the fall terms in 1925.

Fontbonne will be a four-year college, conferring the degrees of A. B. and B. S. The name was chosen to perpetuate the memory of Mother St. John Fontbonne, the French Superior who reorganized the Congregation of St. Joseph, dispersed in the French revolution, and who sent the first band of the Sisters of St. Joseph to America in 1836.

In that year three of the sisters established the first convent and school in the village of Carondelet, their building being a log cabin on the site of the present St. Joseph's Academy at 6400 Minnesota avenue. In 1840 the first wing of a brick and stone structure was built. Additions at varying intervals have brought the school to its present size; but need for more room and the introduction of college work last year necessitated the building of the new college.

After the students leave the Minnesota avenue home, the building will be known as St. Joseph's Convent and will be the Mother House of the Congregation and the novitiate for the training of young sisters.

The buildings, designed in Tudor Gothic style of architecture, will be of red Missouri granite, with trimmings of Bedford stone. They will be fireproof throughout. The central, or administration building, will be four stories in height, 200 feet long and 60 feet wide. Besides the administrative offices, it will contain a dining hall, a cafeteria, reception rooms, the main library, dormitory quarters, and individual rooms. The chapel will connect with it.

One-story arcades will join to the administration building the science hall on the west and the music and art building on the east, both of which will be of the same ground dimensions as the administration building, but will not be so high by a story. Science hall will contain 30 classrooms, four science laboratories, and study and lecture halls. In the music and art building will be large reception and exhibit rooms, libraries, class rooms, studios, individual sound-proof music rooms, and an auditorium with a capacity of 400.

Power House Planned.

The gymnasium, one story high, 100 feet long and 75 feet wide, will contain, besides the gymnasium floor proper, a large swimming pool and spectators' gallery. The power house will have in addition to the power equipment, a laundry and living quarters for employes of the college.

The campus will be laid out in landscape garden effect, with walks and drives, while to the south will be an athletic field.

While the first unit of buildings will accommodate 350 students and 100 boarding students, the design is such that ample space will be left for additional structures for expansion.

The Hume & Deal Co. is the contractor, and Albert B. Groves the architect. The Rev. P. E. Bradley of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament is directing the work for the sisters.

ENAMELING CONCERN IN NEW BUSY BEE BUILDING

The building recently completed at Taylor and Manchester avenues for the Busy Bee Motor Co. forms an attractive addition to this part of the city. The Delco Baked Enameling Co. has acquired a lease of 12,000 square feet of the building through Isaac Cook & Co.

IMPETUS GIVEN TO SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH IN THE PACIFIC

Governments, Organizations and Individuals Focusing Activities in Region.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, May 20.—More impetus has been given in the past four years to scientific research in the Pacific area than at any previous time, Dr. H. E. Gregory, director of the Bishop Museum, which has been prominent in research, especially in Polynesia, recently told the members of the Pan-Pacific club here.

Governments, scientific organizations and individuals have been focusing their activities in this region since 1920 with encouraging results, Dr. Gregory declared. Only centralized and organized effort has effected this success.

The Pacific is not a unit, commercially, but Dr. Gregory said he hoped the region might be a commercial unit in the future and might be self-contained. The same is true of education, but politically it did not seem as though the Pacific could become a unit. Part of the area is governed from Europe, part from the Far East, and part from America, while Australia and New Zealand are embraced within the British Empire.

The speaker detailed the beginnings of Pacific scientific research in 1908 and set forth its progress to the present day. In formulating a program it was found that the problems were too vast for any one institution or group of scientists, and the National Research Council undertook the work in co-operation with councils in Australia, Japan, Canada and other countries bordering the ocean. The study of ethnology alone in the Pacific has claimed the attention of 32 investigators, some of the most noted in the world.

GERMAN PHYSICIANS ADVISE AGAINST STUDY OF MEDICINE

They Point Out That Profession Is Overcrowded Because of Economic Conditions.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LEIPZIG, May 27.—"Don't study medicine," is the advice given to prospective students by the German Physicians' Association, pointing out that for years to come the medical profession will be overcrowded.

One reason assigned is the fact that old doctors find themselves unable to retire from active practice, since their savings were wiped out by the depreciation of the mark. Other reasons assigned are the loss of colonies, the disarmament of Germany, and the poverty of the masses, who will not call a doctor except in the most necessary cases.

MIDNIGHT PRAYERS LAND IRISH WORSHIPERS IN COURT

Ulster Congregation Prosecuted for Violation of the Curfew Regulations.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, June 14.—Ulster still has its curfew regulations, and they appear to be strictly and impartially applied. The police patrol recently found a religious service under way in a private house at Ballintaggart at 3 a. m. and prosecuted those present in the court at Portadown. The members of the congregation said they were praying to the Lord and that it was customary for them to pray all night at week ends.

They were told they could not have these night prayers without a permit, and were let off on payment of the cost of the prosecution.

AND MANY OTHERS TO SELECT FROM $50.00 AND UP

We still have a plentiful and choice assortment. All cars are ready for the road—many have been repainted—equipped with new tires—and accessories that not only add to their appearance but also to the general comfort.

Nothing sacrificed on these cars—BUT THE PRICE.

Some folks said Saturday that we are "literally" giving away perfectly good automobiles.

Not exactly true, perhaps, but we are giving away a great big chunk of real money value when we part with a motor car on the prices and terms quoted here during this sale.

CONDITION—VARIETY—PRICE

The main features of this sale.

Every car gladly demonstrated. Your car taken in trade. Courteous salesmen. Open evenings until ten o'clock. All day Sunday.

The Sandman's Deadly Pranks

Men and women, seemingly well, go to sleep without warning—Some pass from sleep to death and others recover after months of slumber — Western form of the disease has no relation to African sleeping sickness caused by the tse-tse fly—Puzzling case of the woman who fell from a stepladder and odd instance of sleeping man who was mistaken for a clothing dummy — Why one farmer sold his land :: ::

A WOMAN on a stepladder was dusting the ceiling of her flat. Suddenly and without warning and between two strokes of her feather duster she was overcome by drowsiness. She fell from the ladder and when her husband came home several hours later he found her on the floor fast asleep, with the feather duster clasped tightly in her hand. Doctors found that she was not in any way physically injured in the fall from the ladder. Yet she remained unconscious for 39 days.

Another woman had a dinner party at her home. She was busy and active in superintending the preparation of the meal. When her guests arrived she greeted them warmly and vivaciously and several of them complimented her on her fine appearance and evident good health. When at last the meal was served she was one of the gayest at the table. And then when in the very act of putting a bite of food into her mouth this charming hostess went to sleep, and she remained asleep for nearly a month.

A grocer's delivery boy, usually very prompt and conscientious, started out with a basket of goods for customers. He had made several deliveries and was on his way to the next customer's house when he suddenly began to dance. This performance in a busy street attracted a crowd. Traffic was blocked. A policeman tried to stop the dancing boy, who paid no attention to the interference and continued to dance until he fell, seemingly from exhaustion. When he was picked up it was found he was asleep. He remained in that state of deep slumber for 73 days.

A farmer, perched on the seat of his disc plow had guided his horses back and forth over half the area of his field. He had been whistling. Suddenly the notes died on his lips. He went to sleep and fell off the plow seat. He woke up two months later in a hospital.

A man stopped to look into a clothier's show window. After critically inspecting the large assortment of garments on display he turned and was about to be on his way when sleep gripped him. He stopped in his tracks and his plight was not noticed for several hours, as passers-by, seeing him standing there immobile and with an expressionless face, thought he was one of several "dummies" ranged in front of the clothier's shop.

A man who habitually had been blithe and entertaining at home of evenings began to show changes of inclination and temperament. Ignoring other members of the family he would sit, at first for short periods and later for hours at a time, looking into the grate fire with a fixed stare. One night at bedtime he was found asleep in front of the grate. All efforts to rouse him were futile. Doctors put him to bed. After sleeping for two months he awoke one morning and asked: "What are you going to have for breakfast?" This had been his daily query for years before he started on his long sleep.

Such have been some of the strange manifestations of that Western form of sleeping sickness which has reached almost the proportions of an epidemic in Great Britain.

Widespread interest was aroused in this strange malady recently when it caused the death of C. Bower Ismay, one of the largest ship owners in the British Empire. Every resource known to wealth and science was called into play to save the life of this rich and industrially important individual, but in his case encephalitis lethargica was as relentless as it had been in the cases of thousands of other and more obscure Britons.

The death of Ismay focussed attention on the disease and brought out statements that in the two months preceding May 27 the average number of sleeping sickness cases officially reported in England was between 250 and 300 a week in England with a mortality ranging from 12 to 21 per cent, according to location.

Up to that time Birmingham alone had 150 cases since the first of the year and in that city the highest death rate was recorded. Other cities seriously affected were London, Sheffield, Bristol and Manchester.

The British Ministry of Health and all the important medical research bodies of the United Kingdom are investigating the disease, but up to the present they have been able to throw little real light on its causation or cure.

On only one point all of the scientists who have investigated the disease are in agreement. That is that the Western form of sleeping sickness, which is now prevalent in England and has at times been endemic in the United States, is in no way related to the more widely exploited and better known African sleeping sickness, which will be remembered as one of the perils which it was feared would be encountered by Theodore Roosevelt on his famous hunting trip. But the mighty Bwana Tumbo fearlessly went through a large section of the Dark Continent with his eyes open and remained wide awake to the opportunity to collect a dollar a word for all he could write about his experiences on the trail of the lion and the dik-dik bird.

Although the Western form of sleeping sickness has usually become most active following visitations of influenza in the United States and other countries, it has not been fully established that it bears any clear relation to influenza. Some scientists in exhaustive reports have reached the conclusion that the disease has a specific germ which probably is breathed through the nose and thus affects the brain.

Often the eyes "go funny." Then lethargy becomes more and more marked. The patient may be on his feet when the attack comes and may remain in an upright position for a considerable time, or he may pass from normal sleep and continue for a long time in the peaceful posture of a trance. He may be easily aroused, only to go back to sleep, or in extreme cases he may sink into a state of coma so profound that even painful inducing methods like sticking pins in the flesh will not wake the sleeper. Recovery usually quickly follows the return to consciousness.

It has been found that while the total number of cases in large cities is greatest, the percentage in proportion to population is higher in small communities and even in isolated settlements.

In this connection Dr. P. Ravenel, of Columbia, Mo., a Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service has

STRANGE MALADY SWEEPS OVER BRITISH ISLES

say in an article in the American Journal of Public Health last June:

"The disease presents some very peculiar features. Cases of multiple infection are comparatively frequently found in isolated districts or secluded communities, and apparently people living in centers of population through constant contact with crowd infection acquire an immunity which is not seen in smaller communities. There seem to be healthy carriers who harbor the virus in a virulent form, and healthy persons can apparently carry an attenuated virus in their saliva."

Dr. Ravenel describes the after-effects of the disease as being "emotionalism, intellectual weakness and defective memory for recent events."

Dr. Gabrielle Levy, a celebrated woman physician of Paris, has reported her finding that "a certain number of cases carry the virus in an active condition after recovery."

Thus it will be seen that there is a chance for sleeping sickness of this type to be spread by persons who apparently are in the best of health or by persons who have had the disease and have been seemingly cured.

The treatment of encephalitis lethargica has thus far been very simple. There are no known medicines which are effective in routing the disease. Sometimes there is a feverish condition in the early stages and this is broken in the usual way by medical treatment. Yet it has been found that the state of somnolence is in no way relieved by the breaking of the fever in a great majority of cases, though in some instances this form of treatment has brought the patient back to normal consciousness.

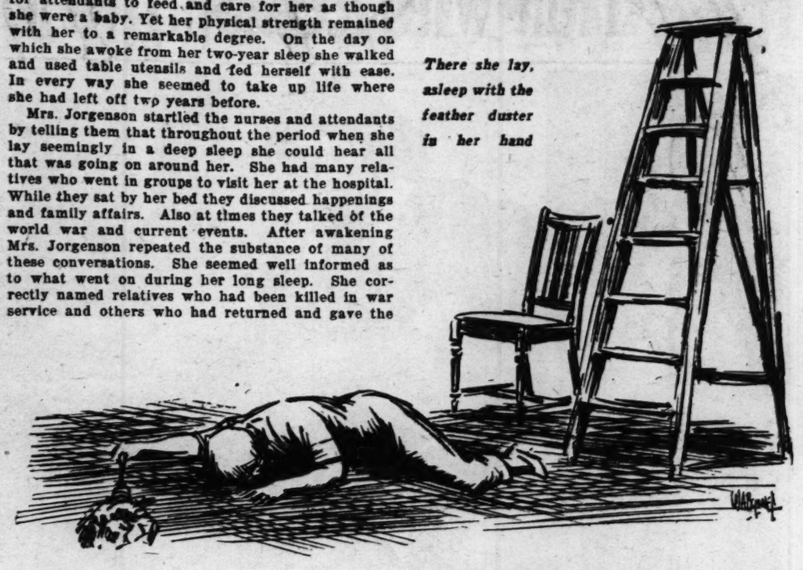
The manifestations and symptoms are so varied as to be most puzzling to the practitioners who have to contend with it. Many instances of its strange vagaries have been noted, not only in its present visitation to the British Isles but during earlier periods of its activity in various sections of the United States.

Sometimes the patient is completely without consciousness. No appeal to his senses, even the infliction of pain, will serve to rouse him from his unnatural torpor.

Then again, the patient may give every outward indication of consciousness and yet remain motionless and speechless.

There was, for instance, the remarkable case of Mrs. Clara Jorgenson, then 38 years old, who awoke in a Waukesha, Wis., hospital Aug. 21, 1920, after she had apparently been in a deep sleep for two years. During all that time it had been necessary for attendants to feed and care for her as though she were a baby. Yet her physical strength remained with her to a remarkable degree. On the day on which she awoke from her two-year sleep she walked and used table utensils and fed herself with ease. In every way she seemed to take up life where she had left off two years before.

Mrs. Jorgenson startled the nurses and attendants by telling them that throughout the period when she lay seemingly in a deep sleep she could hear all that was going on around her. She had many relatives who went in groups to visit her at the hospital. While they sat by her bed they discussed happenings and family affairs. Also at times they talked of the world war and current events. After awakening Mrs. Jorgenson repeated the substance of many of these conversations. She seemed well informed as to what went on during her long sleep. She correctly named relatives who had been killed in war service and others who had returned and gave the dates of these returns as she had heard them given by relatives at her bedside.



There she lay, asleep with the feather duster in her hand

A still more remarkable instance of the strange vagaries of the disease was cited in a press dispatch from Yonkers, N. Y., which told of the case of Michael Piemonte, who fell into a deep sleep and remained in that state for several days. Two doctors diagnosed his ailment as sleeping sickness. He was put in a city ambulance and sent to the City Hospital. On arrival at the hospital it was found that Piemonte was wide awake. In fact, he remained so wide awake that hospital physicians diagnosed his malady as insomnia. Whether the ambulance ride through the streets of Yonkers caused the sudden transition from sleeping sickness to insomnia has never been scientifically ascertained.

The case of Mrs. Frederick Tracy of Oxford, N. Y., also attracted wide attention. Mrs. Tracy, up to that time apparently in the best of health, suddenly went to sleep doing her housework. She remained in this condition for 80 days. After every other means of arousing her had been tried it was suggested that a phonograph be played near her bed. This worked like magic. With the first strains of the music there were indications of returning consciousness and before the record was played through Mrs. Tracy sat up. That was in 1919. Today a radio loud speaker might be equally effective in a similar case.

Violin music was used successfully in arousing Mrs. Dora Mintz of New York City after she had been asleep for 52 days.

After an 11-day sleep Sophie Troyanski, 11 years old, of Brooklyn, N. Y., took up the thread of life at the exact point where she had dropped it. She was studying her lessons when drowsiness came upon her. All efforts to wake her were unsuccessful. Eleven days later she suddenly sat up in bed and said to her nurse: "I must hurry and finish my lessons. If I don't I will get a bad mark at school." She did not know of her long sleep and refused to believe she had spent 11 days in slumber.

Several cases have been noted in which the sleep was not continuous. A St. Louis man who died of the disease would get up at intervals and walk about the room and at times he would rise and go to the table and eat, although while doing this he seemed dazed and did not talk to others at the table. A student at Missouri University in 1920 seemed to have a very pronounced case. It was impossible to rouse him and yet at regular intervals he would eat, although seemingly fast asleep while consuming his food.

The farmer referred to earlier in this article as having fallen from his plow into the deep slumber of sleeping sickness was August Heinzerling of Manly, Ia. Stalwart, industrious and only 22 years old and with a farm of his own to yield him a living, he seemed to have a happy and contented life ahead of him. The first stroke came without warning. After he had fallen from his plow seat several times and had also fallen 25 feet from the roof of a corncrib he consulted physicians, who told him his only hope for freedom from these strange visitations of sleep would be a change of climate. He reluctantly sacrificed his fine farm at auction and went away to more wakeful pastures new.

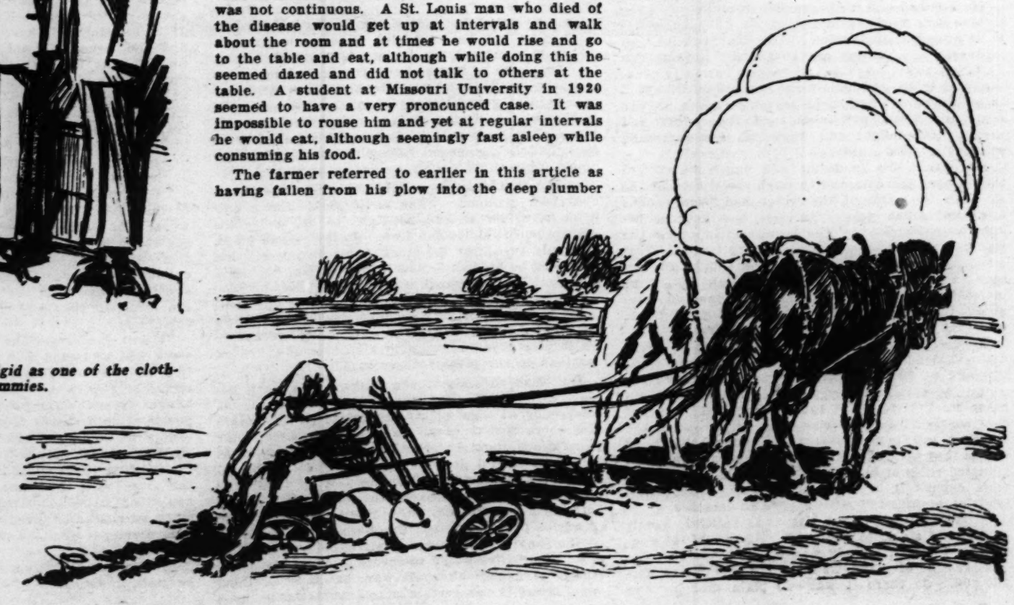
While Eleanor Settle of Moline, Ill., was in a sleep that lasted for 53 days the only thing she knew or could remember was her mother's name. Without any other evidence of a return to consciousness she would repeat this name at intervals.

An odd manifestation of the disease was the case of Mrs. Lorena Fitzgibbons of Jerseyville, Ill., who slept for more than three weeks at St. Anthony's Hospital in St. Louis. Here there was no lapse into complete unconsciousness. Throughout the period of her slumber Mrs. Fitzgibbons seemed to understand what was said to her. She would answer most questions with nods of the head, but occasionally she would give verbal replies in mumbling tones like those of one talking in his sleep.

It will be remembered that last winter there was a very severe visitation of influenza in England. While, so far as is known, there were no recorded cases in which a patient fell a victim to the sleeping sickness while also suffering from influenza, it was observed that in many instances the sleeping sickness seemed to come as an influenza after-effect.

While this seemed to indicate some close connection between the diseases, it was in a measure offset by the fact that a large proportion of the sleeping sickness cases had no trace of influenza history. Several persons who died of sleeping sickness had apparently been in the best of health up to the very moment they sank into the mysterious slumber.

In slumber he was as rigid as one of the clothing dummies.



After falling from his disc plow several times he sold his farm.

The Man Who Refuses to Be a Millionaire

"Golden Rule" Nash conferring with a committee of employes regarding distribution of his stock dividend of $600,000.

—P. & A. Photo.

Arthur Nash of Cincinnati explains why he has worked out a plan, with aid from sociologists and clergymen, to turn over general management and chief ownership of his growing business to his employes at the end of five years — He declines to accept his stock dividend of $600,000 because, under his conception of the Golden Rule, no man has a right to own a million dollars, and he already is worth $600,000 :: ::

ARTHUR NASH of Cincinnati declared the other day that, according to his profound conviction, no man who lives by the Golden Rule has a right to become a millionaire. For the past five years he has been known as "Golden Rule" Nash, because of his professed determination to live by the Golden Rule and of certain specific performances indicating that he has been living up to his profession. As head of the A. Nash Co. he has approximately 6000 employes engaged in the production and distribution of clothing.

Some weeks ago the Cincinnati clothing manufacturer made the discovery that he was right on the edge of becoming a millionaire. The prospect worried him mightily. Something must be done to keep him out of the millionaire class. Business conditions indicated that if he accepted what he regarded as the infamy of owning a million dollars—$1,200,000, in fact, was the immediate prospect staring him straight in the face—it would be but a few years before he became a multi-millionaire. From that situation, which appears to be the chief aim of many other men, Mr. Nash shrank back almost in horror.

In expressing his feelings by use of the foregoing language, no levity is intended. Arthur Nash actually recoiled from the imminence of multi-millionairism. It was a religious recoil, for the Golden Rule is his religion. Nearly four years ago he had made that fact known at a meeting of his factory working force. He had quoted the Golden Rule from the Bible:

"All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets."

Then he had said to his assembled employes: "The Golden Rule needs no interpretation. What it needs is its universal application. It is clear, concise, and all-inclusive. Nothing can be added. Nothing can be taken away. And yet, if we are earnestly seeking after truth, and are sincere co-workers with God in building the kingdom of heaven on earth, we are constantly given new visions of the length and breadth and height and depth of this governing principle of God's universe."

Since that day in July, 1920, much water had flowed over the dam and through the sluices of the A. Nash Co. Out of the water had been caught and kept much gold. Business had boomed beyond all expectations. The depression following the war had yielded to a general upward trend. "Produce, produce!" was the cry. The Cincinnati factory had produced and the distribution due to an increasing demand had made the company so prosperous that its head and front, "Golden Rule" Nash, said that it seemed to him almost a miracle.

Since the summer of 1920, in addition to large cash dividends, the company has issued one stock dividend of 200 per cent, then another of 100 per cent; and early in May the directors declared another stock dividend of 100 per cent. This meant that nearly $1,000,000 was to be taken out of the treasury and turned over to the stockholders, to use as they pleased. It was theirs, according to all accepted rules of business. They could turn it into cash, deposit it in bank, buy homes, automobiles, luxuries or invest it with a view to increase.

Of this million Arthur Nash was entitled, by his holdings of stock, to $600,000. His stock, the controlling interest, already was worth $600,000. The 100-per-cent dividend would make him worth $1,200,000. So there it was—so plain that he who runs may read—Arthur Nash a millionaire!

Mr. Nash, in his extremity, went into close retirement for a couple of days to wrestle with his problem. It was a condition, not a theory, that confronted Arthur Nash. Mixed up in the matter was a theory, also, the theory that he had not earned the $600,000, that his employes had earned it; that without their co-operation his modest business of four years ago could not have grown to its present proportions; that Arthur Nash alone and unaided never could have acquired even his original $600,000 worth of stock, let alone that extra $600,000 which was about to be thrust into his unwilling pockets. But that was not exactly a theory to Arthur Nash—it was, by reason of his religion—the Golden Rule—a concrete, specific, plain matter of fact.

In arriving at that view of his accrued and accruing wealth, Mr. Nash traveled, it seems hardly necessary to point out, by a route far from the main-traveled roads of commerce in the lands known collectively as Christendom. He had taken what appears to the general business eye as a bypath, but to his own eye as the one and only broad highway. For Arthur Nash that highway runs straight to its goal, and he proceeded forthwith to lay plans for going forward as swiftly as safety permitted.

In the first place, he would not accept the $600,000 stock dividend. That would make him a millionaire, which he had no right to be, under his conception of the Golden Rule. In the second place, he would turn over the stock to his employes, who, according to his belief, had earned it; but he would not give them the stock outright, for that, he felt, would be unwise. There was the business, the company, to look after, and as chief steward thereof he felt that he had a certain duty of guardianship which precluded an abrupt turning over of the stock dividend to the employes pro rata.

Mr. Nash advertised in a number of church papers throughout the country for advice in his emergency. He got plenty of responses. It appears that there were a great many persons, subscribers to religious journals, who knew just exactly what Mr. Nash should do to keep himself from the infamy of becoming a millionaire. Why, it was as plain as the wart on Oliver Cromwell's face! From both men and women, here, there, yonder, letters of advice poured through the mails to Arthur Nash of Cincinnati. Some of the missives carried advice more or less applicable to the solution of the problem in a sensible and just way, but most of them were requests for certain stated sums to be used for the culture of pet hobbies or schemes for personal enrichment. Mr. Nash, had he taken all this advice, could have kept himself out of the millionaire class and put himself into the pauper class at one and the same time. He has a way of saying in plain words what he wishes to express.

"These people," he said, "wanted me to steal the money from those to whom it belongs and give it to them."

Finally, however, a plan was evolved. Arthur Nash was saved from being a millionaire. "There was first a small committee and then several larger committees that worked out this plan," he told his employes at the recent meeting where they were given to understand that all this stock dividend is to be distributed amongst themselves. "I am frank to say to you that the plan of distribution has not all been worked out by myself. The first small committee was composed of the Rev. Harold Marshall of Boston, Prof. Alva W. Taylor of Indianapolis, former professor of social science in the University of Missouri; the Rev. Harry Pearce Atkins, secretary of the Federation of Churches of Cincinnati, and Prof. Earl E. Eubank of the chair of sociology in the University of Cincinnati. We shall not attempt to name those in the larger committee meetings who passed on this plan of distribution."

Thus it is seen that Mr. Nash ignored the amateur advice of self-interested folk and accepted the wiser counsel of sociologists and clergymen in conference. At this meeting of his employes—co-workers, he calls them—he proceeds thus to unfold the plan of distribution:

"The plan as it is worked out is intended to effect a distribution of the stock of the A. Nash Co. in such a way that everyone may own at least four shares of the stock. Everyone having two shares of the old stock will have four shares after this stock dividend, hence will not participate in the distribution of this 6000 shares. Everyone owning one share of the old stock will have two shares, and by buying one more share of the treasury stock will have given him one share of the stock that would regularly come to me. Everyone having none of the original stock may buy two shares of the treasury stock of the company and get with it two shares of the stock that would regularly come to me.

"This proposition is open to everyone employed by the A. Nash Co. in the capacity of salesmen, shop workers or office workers in any of the companies controlled by the company. We estimate that in all there are about 4000, including the salesmen and outside shop workers, that do not at this time own stock, and based on the experience of the past we are sure that they will take up this entire issue on this basis.

"I will first state the conditions on which this stock will be issued and then offer a brief explanation of these conditions. In consideration of the fact that I give one share of stock to one share bought from the company, I am to hold the voting power of both shares of stock for five years, and it cannot be sold or pledged in any way without my written consent within five years. After that time the stock is yours without any restrictions. During the five years the same conditions will apply to any stock issued as stock dividends on either the stock purchased or given with that purchase, but all cash dividends shall be paid direct to the owner of the stock.

"I believe the reasons for these conditions will be plain to you all. After this stock is distributed,

Telling Mile-High Weather for Airmen

How the U. S. Weather Bureau uses box kites, with piano wire for "string," also sounding balloons and pilot balloons — Regular observations of the air's upper levels are made twice daily — Greatest heights are reached by balloons, which finally burst, but their parachutes bring down the recording instruments safely — The coldest air of all is found above the equator—In our latitude, the atmosphere at great altitudes often colder in summer than in winter ::

MARK TWAIN said it in a sentence when he observed that while everybody complained about the weather nobody did anything about it.

But that was years ago. Nowadays your Uncle Sam is going up in the air about the weather, not figuratively but actually, and his ascensions into the empyrean mean something. They mean that he is chasing the weather to its lair and trying to bring it down to earth.

Furthermore, he is psycho-analyzing our temperamental climate for the benefit of the aviators who must woo it at home and, like the fairy story heroes, must either win their suit or lose their lives.

Once upon a time, weather observations meant that "Captain Amariah" spat meditatively on his forefinger, held it aloft to see which way the wind was blowing, remarked that it was east, there was a red sunrise and his rheumatiz was biting him, and so in short that there was sure to be a "good old sizzle-sozzle" before sundown.

Later weather prophets consulted barometers and still later came the Weather Bureau with its array of instruments, but all these stopped at the earth's surface or a few feet above. There was no way of finding out with any degree of accuracy just what was going on a mile or more above the earth.

Then came the airplane and the dirigible. Navigation of the air began to assume interesting importance, and almost at the same time came the war with its enormous impetus to the development of aviation. Something had to be done.

So the Weather Bureau went up in the air. With kites and balloons and observations from planes the range of its vision was turned upward, and now the conditions likely to be met by aviators at all ordinary flying levels are as well known in advance as those due to happen on the surface. Just how is all this done?

The first stage in the journey was made years ago when box kites were invented. Long before then, of course, every boy knew that the wind wasn't always the same aloft as at the surface, but the old-fashioned two or three-stick affairs with dangling tails, while picturesque enough, didn't fly very high and couldn't lift instruments high enough to make it worth while. The big box kite was able to lift a man, and easily able to go up a mile or so with a set of recording instruments. Still later the sounding balloon and the pilot balloon were developed, and now all of these devices are used to find out just what is happening up aloft.

At six stations, scattered throughout the country, the Weather Bureau maintains what are known as aerological stations. These are devoted almost wholly to explorations of the upper air and observations are made regularly twice every day except when weather conditions absolutely forbid. The most usual means for exploration of the sea of air, at the bottom of which we humans crawl about, are kites. They may not go so high but they can get up every day the wind blows and they bring back their records with them.

These kites are about seven feet square and about three feet high, covered with cotton cloth. The "string" is fine piano wire, and it is reeled in by a handy little electric motor, the whole being set up in a kite house mounted so that it may revolve according to the direction of the wind. Kites are hardly ever sent up singly. They hunt in couples, or even in flocks, as many as 10 having been sent up on one line.

One kite carries the little instrument case which keeps a continuous record of conditions as they are met from the beginning of the flight to the end.

Kites can be flown in practically all weathers when there is a wind of more than 10 miles an hour. While they don't do their best at velocities above 30 miles an hour, they have been sent up in roaring gales as strong as 80 miles an hour. Sometimes under such trying conditions the wire breaks and the kites drift down the wind for miles. In one case, 300 miles was covered before they had settled securely to earth.

As much as six or eight miles of wire are sometimes paid out in a big flight, and under such conditions the kites climb as high as two miles or more above the surface. The record height is about four and a half miles. The biggest danger in this kite flying de luxe is from thunderstorms, or even from atmospheric electricity. Ben Franklin in his famous experiment brought enough electricity down a wet cotton string from an old-fashioned kite to give himself a shock.

The modern kites with their high altitudes and their wire strings leading to the ground furnish an ideal path for lightning and there have been records of severe shocks received while flying kites in thunderstorms.

But kites aren't all that Uncle Sam depends upon to learn the ways of the wind and weather. After all, they are tied down. They can't soar. So, to penetrate still farther into the depths of the sky, the sounding balloon was invented, perhaps the most romantic scientific device ever conceived by the mind of man with the exception of the telescope. For the sounding balloon, "the sky is the limit."

This balloon is a bag of fine rubber, inflated with hydrogen until it measures about three or four feet in diameter. To it is attached an aluminum case containing a set of specially devised recording instruments mounted within a wicker cage. Above the balloon is attached an open parachute pulled closely down on top of the balloon and attached below to the instrument basket.

When set free, such a balloon keeps on rising until it bursts at a height depending upon the temperature and pressure of the air. For as it ascends to where the air is thinner and thinner, the pressure of the gas within causes it to expand, and if the air grows warmer a similar result is effected. By and by the balloon can no longer stand the pressure and it bursts. But the parachute remains open and Sky exploration. Diagram of the first 10 miles of earth's atmosphere, showing relative heights of mountains, clouds, kites, airplanes and weather balloons. At upper right, sounding balloons being sent up tandem. They carry the instruments seen in the man's hand. When 10 or more miles above earth, one of the rubber bags will burst and the increased weight thus thrown upon the other will bring it slowly back to the ground.

the wicker framework holding the instruments comes gently to earth. Attached to it are instructions for its return to the Weather Bureau, which pays $2.00 for its safe delivery. Some of these records come down in inaccessible places and are lost, but the great majority are found and sent in.

The sounding balloons soar higher than ever aviator has winged his solitary way. The aviation record of about eight miles is only an average performance for a sounding balloon. Ten miles is more common, and the record is a trifle more than 20 miles. This is higher than anything sent up by man from the earth's surface except perhaps the shells of the longest range artillery.

A modification of the parachute method is sending the sounding balloons up tandem. They are so adjusted that while the two balloons easily lift the instrument case to a height of 10 miles or more, the lifting power of one balloon is not quite enough to carry the load. When the tandem gets high enough one of the balloons bursts. As the other is not buoyant enough to carry the load, it gradually comes to earth, but so slowly that the instruments are not harmed upon landing.

The picture shows such a balloon tandem being set free at Santa Catalina Island, off the coast of Southern California. A west wind is blowing which will carry the balloons over to the mainland before one of them bursts, and the record will be found somewhere between the mountains and the sea.

Some of these sounding balloons make long trips, exceeded only by professional balloonists. One sent up in Nebraska was found in West Virginia.

Uncle Sam's final method of going up in the air about the weather is by means of the pilot balloon. This is a wild and vagrant device, the hobo of the clouds, the sport of every wind that blows. Once turned loose the pilot balloon never comes back, but before it is lost to sight it yields

THE JOURNEYS OF A BIRDMAN'S WIFE

Mary Irwin McDearmon, formerly of St. Louis, now the wife of an officer in the Air Service, describes some of her interesting wanderings of the past few years — First time her plane-driving husband ever drove a flivver they made the ascent of Mount Tacoma, up to Paradise Inn, which trip had certain thrills not to be discounted even by an airman— She advises everybody suffering from ennui to take a touring trip across country and get acquainted with America :: :: ::

The writer of this article is the wife of Capt. George Stewart Warren, United States Army Air Service, located just now at Scott Field, near Belleville, Ill. Mrs. Warren is a granddaughter of the late Dr. Irwin, who for many years was president of the Lindenwood College at St. Charles, Mo. She is a graduate of the University of Missouri and of the Benton College of Law in St. Louis and formerly was engaged in newspaper work in this city.

By MARY IRWIN McDEARMON.

IN THE days gone by wives of army officers traveled with their husbands across the plains by rail, or on horseback, or stayed at home in quiet safety, waiting for the return of their hero. Not so for me. After I have packed the 11 trunks, parked the animal at a veterinarian's "to be sent for," made a list of the contents of every barracks bag and barrel, poured mothballs in the rugs, breathed a prayer over my china, kissed the pictures of my ancestors farewell and left them all to the tender mercies of the Quartermaster. I climbed in our little car by my husband's side, and away we go to the new station.

In the four and one-half years of my marriage I have been from Texas to California, to Seattle, back to California, to Virginia through the Panama Canal, midwest, south to Carolina, and back home again to Missouri. Of the prosaic journeys by rail little new can be told. But I date my romance with my own country from the day my partner took a little roadster of a cheap but well-known make in exchange for a debt. And the next day the fun began.

We were stationed at Camp Lewis, Wash., at that time. At the foot of our street Mount Tacoma (with apologies to Seattle), or Mount Rainier (with the same to Tacoma) stood 15,000 feet high, like a plate of the most perfect ice cream I ever saw. That mountain was a lure to both of us. So on the first day of car-owning, my partner looked at me and I returned the look with "You are going to try that mountain?" and he nodded "Yes; how did you guess it?"

He said he had never driven a car before and I could well believe him. Everything went fine on the 60 miles of boulevard that leads to the mountain, that mountain which seemed so near at the camp, but which seemed to run away farther and farther the longer we rode. Then at last the entrance! We had been running quite well up to this time, keeping fairly on the road, in spite of the shaky driving of my partner. But when that car saw the rangers' cabin and the attractive entrance it drew up in front with a doleful sound and refused to go on.

We ate our lunch at the rangers'. They had all been in the service during the war and liked us because of it. (So they said.) It seemed to please them that we dared to go up the mountain the very first day we drove a car. They seemed to think it daring, but not one bit foolish. But after we began the ascent and had to get in line with high-priced cars in front of us and high-priced cars in rear of us, and sometimes our own little car wouldn't start when it was supposed to and wouldn't stop when it was commanded to, we began to think we were not only daring but foolish as well.

Climbing Mount Tacoma has its thrills.

MRS. G. S. WARREN (Mary Irwin McDearmon).

Oh, what an afternoon! We could look down on chasms thousands of feet below us, rounded corners of mountains that were breath-taking. I closed my eyes and kept saying to myself: "If he can fly a plane he can surely drive a car." The perspiration dripped from both foreheads as we went higher, and steeper and steeper. But we got there, clear to Paradise Inn and back, all the way down to the rangers' cabin. Home down the boulevard in the lovely long northern evening, with only one catastrophe—about five miles from the camp we ran completely out of gasoline (this is the only time this has ever happened to us), and the head of the family had to walk two miles to buy some. The garage man, in true Western fashion, drove him all the two miles to the little roadster, and he bore in his arms a large can of gasoline. How we laughed when we got home! Up and down a mountain the first day our pilot ever drove a car, a far greater feat than flying up, when one thought of those mountain roads with that railroad curling around, down miles below.

Followed then a wonderful summer in the Northwest. We traveled all over Northwest Washington. Each week end found us with a lunch basket and suit cases in the little car, traveling from one beautiful spot to another, the wife from the valley of the Mississippi, the husband from one of the most populated blocks of Manhattan. Each trip we made taught us to love the Northwest more, a summer of little rain, of long, cool days, of sunshine and shadow, and of Northern Lights in late summer. My partner would locate lovely spots from his observation balloon during the working week, and we waited only for Saturday noon to make it possible for us to find them. The Cascades, Snoqualamie Falls, Mount Baker, even to Portland we went that summer.

Right here I must tell of "Garry Owen," for it was at Camp Lewis that we found him. The Air Service detachment was surrounded by a regiment of coast artillery, and wonderful neighbors they were. Soon after we got our little car, we acquired a pet named by us "Garry Owen," in remembrance of a famous regiment once our near neighbor in our honeymoon days on the Texas border. "Garry" had belonged to a coast artillery officer's family who were ordered to the Philippine Islands.

My partner taught him many tricks from his kittenhood. By some magic he would ask him if he belonged to the coast artillery, and by blowing on his ear "sight unseen" he would make Garry shake

The Crow Indicted as a Criminal

"International crow-shooting contest" is proposed by a manufacturer of sporting powder who urges all sportsmen to shoot the American raven at sight—Much evidence is marshaled to prove the bird an all-round undesirable, he is pronounced guilty, and the penalty is death — But he has defenders who hold that he does at least as much good as he does harm, and they say that to exterminate him would disturb the balance of nature :: :: ::

There was a crow sat on a limb.
What did the huntsman do to him?
The huntsman aimed,
The crow was maimed;
But ere he died, "What did I do,"
He asked the huntsman, "sir, to you?"
Replied the huntsman, "I don't know—
But then, you see, you are a crow."

THE crow is in dire peril, but he doesn't know it. After being frightened out of his wits for centuries by scarecrows set up in cornfields, now he faces extermination as a distinct race by the guns of entrants in an "international crow-shooting contest" that is being sponsored by a powder factory. Too modest to quote the price of its shotgun powder, this sponsor is broadcasting illustrated literature to the four winds, wherein the crow is indicted for sundry high crimes and misdemeanors. Broadsides are being returned by the opposition—not, of course, the crow himself, but the crow's defenders.

It may be news to you that the crow has defenders. Fact, though. Yet it is hardly correct to say that the crow has friends. Even his defenders denounce him, up to a certain point. Then they begin to hedge. They admit that the notorious American raven is a black devil of a bird, but they insist that he is not so black as he is painted by those who launch indictments against him. They find that he has his white spots, so to speak; though not one of his defenders is so bold as to seek to whitewash the crow altogether.

On the side of the shoot-the-crow party has been gathered a considerable number of State Game Commissioners; a still more considerable number of farmers who grow corn, chickens and other commodities; a number, alleged to be "thousands upon thousands," of sportsmen.

On the side of the spare-the-crow party arise the Christian Science Monitor, the Audubon societies, the experts of the United States Biological Survey and the widespread sentiment against cruelty to animals. And so the battle is on!

First off, the side of the enemy—meaning not the crow but those who would shoot him without further ado.

According to the literature sent out by the promoters of the so-termed international crow-shooting contest, the crow is not entitled to a court trial before shooting. He has been tried already, and found guilty on all counts. Penalty, death.

The crow is a thief, a murderer, a glutton, an artist in mayhem, an all-round miscreant whose deeds have put him far beyond the pale of human protection. His enemies in this battle for extermination will offer you proof, specific instances, harrowing details, to bring you around to their view, in case you entertain a half-hearted notion that injustice is being done, or is about to be done.

Fragments of about 50 eggs, mostly of the clapper rail bird, found on the broken limb of a cedar tree in Virginia, a few feet below a crow's nest in which were four young crows. On the ground beneath were fragments of hundreds of eggshells, showing that the crows had robbed nests of other birds.

"I have observed two crows kill a matured rabbit and then eat all but the pelt and feet," avers a Pennsylvania farmer. "I have seen crows steal little chicks alongside a brooder. Many farmers report thefts of chickens by crows. I have seen crows pull up field corn in spring, causing the tiller of soil to replant many times. I have observed eggshells of birds and bills and feet of young birds under crows' nests."

"On several occasions I have seen crows rob songbirds' nests," says another farmer. "I think the nests mostly contained young birds. Hundreds of times I have been a witness to crows destroying cultivated crops, and could get a statement signed by every farmer in Potter and Cameron counties, (Pa.) to the effect of crows' destructiveness to crops."

"I have known crows to catch young chickens," says still another farmer. "I know of one instance where they picked out the eyes of a young lamb. Crows are destructive to corn crops. I have known the habits of the crow all my life, and I count him a robber and a murderer."

Here comes now a fourth farmer, who goes so far as to propose a bounty for crow killing: "From my observation I know that crows are a nuisance and should be exterminated. They will kill robins, turtledoves, cedar waxwings and even domestic pigeons. Let's get rid of them at any cost. The sooner the better, if we want more song and insectivorous birds. A crow will carry off small chickens and pull up corn, and I believe there should be a bounty of 25 cents a head on them to encourage sportsmen to kill them off."

"The only good crow is the dead one," concludes a farmer who says he has asked nearly every neighbor in his section if a single point in defense of the crow can be given, and not one such point has turned up. "If we kill the crows," he says, "we will have more game."

From Kentucky comes a sweeping indictment. A farmer reports that 50 of his lambs were blinded by crows that picked out the eyes of the tender creatures. All the lambs died. Another Kentucky farmer says that when hogs are fed on corn, in winter, swarms of crows gather and devour the feed. They are more "hoggish" about it, he declares, than are the hogs themselves. Tender shoots of wheat, this authority adds, are sweet morsels for crows.

But a still sterner indictment is to follow with a bill of particulars hardly believable. A Pennsylvanian who for more than 60 years has been engaged in farming and fruit growing arises to testify. He loves the feathered flock, he states, and he hates to say anything against a species thereof. But——

"My observations have fully convinced me that the crow's merits are few, while his demerits are many. However, in passing judgment upon the vices and virtues of the crow, we must not be unmindful of the fact that the omniscient God has created naught in vain. Nevertheless, since the crow's case is to be tried and weighed in the balance of civilized human judgment, I entertain grave fears for his destiny—unless he can obtain an appeal to a higher court; for we have suffered much from his ravages and pilfering.

"He has not only pulled my corn, beans, etc., but my good wife, Viola, who has always tried so hard to earn her own pin money with her flock of poultry, complains of his ravages, and says the crow is a pilferer, a villain and an assassin, and that he should be dealt with as such.

"Also, my neighbor, Peter T., complains that in the winter of 1917-18, the winter of much snow here, when he was caught with his corn out, the crows came, thousands of them, and threshed and devoured about 50 per cent of his corn, and that he and his landlord had a dispute as to who should suffer the loss.

"However, man is not the only victim of his ravages. The songbirds, the insectivorous birds, and the game birds as well, such as the quail, pheasant and wild turkey, these are all victims of his prey and all share the same fate. He robs their nests of the eggs (which he is so fond of) and kidnaps their young and carries them away, to gourmandize himself. Practically the whole feathered tribe share his unrelenting ravages.

"Nor can you reason with him, for we have tried to domesticate the crow, and we find that even in captivity, when he is well fed, he is a very cuning sneakthief. He is crafty, and will take and

This collection represents about 3000 shells of the eggs of various kinds of birds, and includes remains of fishes, of sand and blue crabs, and feathers of chickens. Most of this material was found under trees where crows had nests.

The GAUZE

PAT MAHONEY stood in the wings beside the stage manager and stared admiringly at the strangely moving figure of Mademoiselle Sylvia. Enveloped by voluminous folds of gauzy stuff, Mademoiselle Sylvia was doing a highly complicated daily dozen in more or less time to the music made by the Elite Theater orchestra.

"She's class, ain't she?" said Pat, admiringly.

The stage manager stared at him. "What are you trying to do, kid me?" he asked in an unfriendly tone.

"No, I'm not trying to kid you," said Mahoney, nettled. "I'm telling you something. I said the young lady out there has class, and that goes."

"That's your story," said the stage manager. "Now listen to mine. I've seen many a gauze fluffer in my time, and I've never seen one yet that was any good. Some are bad and some are worse. That dame out there now, picking her feet up and putting them down, is the worst. You call her a young lady, but she ain't young, and she's maybe a lady, though I doubt it, and there ain't any class to her."

"You're a liar," said Mahoney, hotly.

"Say," said the manager, "that's a fighting word around here."

"Is it?" said Mahoney. "Then let's fight!"

He smacked the stage manager on the nose, and the stage manager retaliated by pasting him in the eye. They clinched then and fell to the floor and rolled over and over. By this time other performers and stage hands were rushing toward them. Before anyone could reach the struggling pair they had stumbled erect, swayed, tumbled and banged hard against the cage containing Prof. Tomaselli's trained bear. The door of the cage was closed and bolted, but not locked. The jar of the fighting pair falling against the framework loosened the bolt, and when they rolled away from the cage the door came open.

"Woof!" said the big brown occupant in a pleased tone and walked out.

The performers and stage hands who had been approaching with the idea of stopping the fight turned and went rapidly away from there, not caring a whoop in a heavy thunderstorm whether the fighting was ever stopped or not.

"Woof!" the big brown bear repeated and ambled leisurely over to sniff at the two squirming forms that were performing so strangely. The stage manager, fighting one hand loose, made a wild grab to get Mahoney by the hair, and grabbed the bear by the nose instead.

"Yow!" cried the stage manager.

He shook himself free and in a second he was well up the ladder leading to the flies and wondering what detained Mahoney.

At about the same moment Mahoney, looking furiously about to see what had become of the stage manager, peeked into the eyes and mouth of the bear that had spoiled the fight. The bear's eyes were less than a foot from Mahoney's face; the bear's mouth was open, and Mahoney noted that the revealed teeth were long and yellow and capable looking.

"Woof!" said the bear once more.

Mr. Mahoney said nothing. Action was his answer to the bear's remark, and in no time at all Mr. Mahoney stood on the ladder just below his late opponent's feet.

Just at this moment the orchestra stopped playing, and two or three people in the audience applauded enthusiastically. Mademoiselle Sylvia's act was at an end. She came off, bowing her way backward until she reached the wings and then turned around and almost bumped face on into the big brown bear.

"Woof!" said the bear, pleasantly.

"Eeeeeee!" said Mademoiselle Sylvia, and crumpled up in a faint.

"Oh, Lord!" said Pat Mahoney and, loosening his hold on the ladder, leaped to the floor.

"Woof!" said the bear, facing him.

"Scat, you!" said Mahoney, advancing on him with his fists up. "Get out! Beat it!"

"Woof!" said the bear.

Mahoney said a little prayer in his mind and smacked the bear on the nose with a left jab.

"Woof!" said the bear, aggrievedly, backing up. "Woof! Woof! Woof!"

He shook his head pathetically, ambled dejectedly to his cage, crawled in and, to make absolutely sure that no ill-natured humans would bother him further, caught the door with one paw and slammed it shut after him.

"Woof," he said, spiritlessly as a parting tribute to the conversation. "Woof."

"Hey, you!" the stage manager called to Mahoney. "Get a move on! They're playing your stuff."

Mahoney saw that some other performers were caring for Mademoiselle Sylvia, and he cocked his hat on one side of his head, shook himself into his stage personality, and went humming and clogging out in front of the footlights to do his stuff.

Now, Pat Mahoney's stuff was rough but funny, vulgar but effective. It forced even the majority of the judicious to reluctant grins, and it certainly went big with the groundlings. Pat had the feet of a genius and the appearance of a New York gangster. He danced divinely and did it with his hat cocked over one eye, his hands in his pockets and the general manner and expression of a tough stick-up guy on a vacation and looking for trouble just to make things feel homelike.

He was a queer card, was Pat. His act was always billed as the Mahoney Brothers. Pat was the original and only Mahoney, but he always hired a partner who worked with him, and whoever he secured immediately became for professional purposes the other Mahoney.

There was no real reason for Pat to have a partner. He had plenty of stuff to work single, but Pat had an inferiority complex; he thought the stuff he did was terrible hokum, and he never could understand why and how it got across.

So, he always had a partner to help him out. None of them were ever any help to him except to give him a chance to catch his breath between dances, but Pat didn't know this.

It was because of a partner that Pat was playing the string of comparatively small time through upstate New York, breaking in a new Mahoney.

The audience roared its approval as he finished his first number.

"The boobs," he muttered to himself as he bowed and smiled. "They never give her a hand, and then they fall for this rough-house hokum and hoofing of mine. They don't know class when they see it."

As he bowed himself off to give his partner a chance to do a tenor solo about wanting to go away back some place, he saw Prof. Tomaselli standing near the bear's cage. He started toward the professor with the idea of giving him a mild call-down for going away and leaving the cage door unlocked. The professor advanced to meet him and beat him to the speech.

"What for are you busta my bear in da snoot?" he demanded, brandishing both clenched fists in eccentric circles.

"What for did I bust him!" said Mahoney, amazed. "Why, you misplaced fruit peddler, are you tryin' to give me a call down for hittin' a full-grown bear in the nose with my fist? Why, say! Men get medals for less than that!"

"He's a nica gooda bear," said the professor, dancing with rage. "He's no scratch; he's no bite; he's no do something bad to anybody. You busta my bear, I'm goin' to busta you in the nose!"

He stepped in quickly, and made good on this threat and jumped back before Mahoney could counter. Mahoney gave a yell of rage and started after him. The Italian squealed with fright and scuttled for the stage door, with Mahoney at his heels. Out into the alley they raced and around the corner.

Two minutes passed and no Mahoney. His partner finished his song and bowed himself off. The orchestra played Mahoney's cue music for his entrance and then played it again. Still no Mahoney. The frantic stage manager shoved on a monologist to stop the stage wait. The house manager came storming back stage, demanding explanations.

"That gauze fluffer started the whole fuss," said the stage manager, and proceeded to explain according to his prejudices.

Ten minutes later Mahoney rushed in, panting and holding a well-reddened handkerchief to his nose.

"The dirty Wop hopped a truck and kicked me in the face when I tried to climb on after him," he said, wrathfully.

"Oh, is that so?" said the stage manager. "And what do you think was going on here in the theater while you were getting your face kicked? I suppose you think maybe somebody come up from the audience and did your act for you or something like that, huh?"

"I shouldn't have run out like I did," Mahoney admitted. "But that Wop got me so sore I lost my head. You see, it was like this"——

"I know all about it," said the house manager. "That gauze fluffer started the whole thing, and she goes out on her ear right now. She's through! She's rotten, and I should have canned her after the first performance, anyhow."

"Wait a minute," said Mahoney. "If she goes, I go. If she's through, I'm through!"

That was something else again, for the Mahoney Brothers were the headline act at the Elite and drawing big.

"Oh, well," said the manager, backing down, "of course, if she's a particular friend of yours, Pat"—

"She ain't no friend of mine, particular or any other kind. I never met her. I never spoke to her. I see her come on and go and do her stuff the same as the rest of you. That's all. But I know class and she's it. You think she's rotten, but she's only over your head. She's too good for you, that's all."

"All right, Pat," said the manager, soothingly. "Have it your own way."

"I will," said Pat, belligerently. "I'll have it till I meet someone big enough to make me have it some other way, an' I don't see anyone that size around here."

Pat was original in his championship of Mademoiselle Sylvia. The audiences endured her, spending the time while she was on the stage in looking at their programs to see what followed and hoping that it would be better. The house managers along the line sent in adverse reports to the booking office, and the stage hands and performers sneered at her as a stuck-up highbrow.

But Pat adored her. Where the others saw snobbishness in the slim, blonde girl's reserved manner, Pat sensed only what he called class and argued her case with any and all who attacked her. His championship of her cause was indeed quixotic, for Pat had never spoken to Mademoiselle Sylvia or received so much as a flicker of recognition from her gray eyes as they passed or stood near to each other on the stage or in the hotel, the railroad station or train. Nor did he champion her cause with the idea of making an impression that might lead to an acquaintanceship. Pat had his own ideas about Mademoiselle Sylvia, and the thought that she might like to have him as a friend was not included among them.

But when he returned to the hotel after his battles with the stage manager, the bear and the owner thereof, Mademoiselle Sylvia accosted him in the lobby and thanked him for what he had done.

"Aw, that wasn't nothin'," said Pat. "I was glad of a chance to do somethin' to show that I'm not sore on you like a lot of cheap performers on the bill."

"They don't like me, do they?" she said, hesitantly, with a wistful note in her voice.

"You can bet they don't," said Pat. "You're a lady, and they're a bunch of bums. You're class and they ain't. They should cheer when you go by! You show 'em up for what they are. Me, I'm different. I'm nothing but a rough-house guy, but I don't get sore when I meet somebody that's got class. No. I like it!"

He paused and smiled knowingly at her. Then, abruptly: "I know about your folks."

She turned pale. "My—folks?" she said, speaking with difficulty.

"Don't get scared," he said. "I ain't goin' to tell anybody unless you give me leave, but I know you come from swell folks."

She drew a long breath and smiled slightly. "How do you know that?" she asked.

"I can tell from the way you look an' act an' talk," he said. "That dress you got on now, it don't look like it cost much, but I bet it did, didn't it?"

"It cost enough," she said, flushing.

"Sure," he said, heartily. "An' then you don't wear no rocks, an' that's another sign."

"Rocks?"

"You don't know what rocks is!" he exclaimed. "You ain't been troupin' long, have you?"

"No," she admitted. "This is my first professional experience."

"Rocks is diamonds," he explained. "Right away when I first seen you I noticed you don't wear 'em. I'm wise. Real people don't wear their rocks here, there, an' the other place, 'cause they don't care whether people know they've got 'em or not. I know." He leaned forward and spoke confidentially. "I bet your father's a millionaire."

She drew back. "Let's not talk about it, please," she begged.

"All right," said Pat. "I know how you swell people are. You never like to talk about yourself. There's just one thing I'd like to tell you, though, if you won't get mad. Promise not to?"

"Yes," she said, reluctantly.

"It's just this," said Pat. "If I didn't know you was a real, sure-enough high-up I'd make an awful play for you."

The attraction for contrasts may have been responsible for the fact that Pat Mahoney and Mademoiselle Sylvia became good friends during the course of the next two weeks. Pat attended her with all the frank joy of a stray mongrel pup following a new-found master.

And so, when disaster befell Mademoiselle Sylvia, she went to Pat with her trouble and told him of it in a small voice while her lips quivered and tears stood in her eyes.

She had received a curt note from the booking office saying that the reports on her act had been uniformly unfavorable and that they would be unable to give her any more time.

"You're over their heads," said Pat, consolingly. "You're too good for this small time. Why, say, I'll bet if you was playin' the big houses you'd be toppin' the bill right along."

"But how can I get the chance to play the big houses?" she asked.

"The right kind of publicity would put you across," said Pat. "Why don't you give the newspapers the story about who your folks are an' how you come to go on the stage an' "——

"Please," she pleaded. "No! No!"

"All right," said Pat hastily. "I got another idea. I don't know if you know it or not, but Harry Buscovar is my agent."

"Buscovar?" inquired Mademoiselle.

"Don't you know who Harry Buscovar is?"

"The name sounds familiar," the girl said, vaguely.

"Familiar!" Pat exclaimed. "Why, he's the greatest agent in New York. He can make any act in the business just by bookin' 'em. If he seen you an' booked you, why, right away you'd be the only livin' gauze fluffer that ever made Isadora Duncan look bad at her own game."

"But how am I going to get a man like that to see me and book me?" Mademoiselle Sylvia asked.

"That's my job," said Pat. "I only took this string of small time to break in my new act, an' Buscovar told me as soon as I thought I had it smoothed out to leave him know an' he'd jump out to wherever I was an' catch me. I'll wire him right away that I'm ready, an' when he comes to catch me he'll get you, too. See?"

"Do you think he'll like me?" Mademoiselle Sylvia asked, anxiously.

Pat hesitated a little before answering. "Buscovar's a nut about classy press stuff," he said. "If I could tell him that maybe if he booked you on the big time you'd be willing to bust that yarn about who your folks are an' how you come to"——

"No!" said Mademoiselle Sylvia, vehemently. "Not even to get on with Harry Buscovar?"

"No!"

"I guess you mean it," Pat said, regretfully. "Never mind. We'll make him like you, anyhow."

Pat telegraphed Buscovar that afternoon, and at the next day's matinee the great agent was on hand. Pat saw him before the show opened and fervently sang the praises of Mademoiselle Sylvia. Buscovar listened, with a tight, skeptical grin slightly creasing his fat face.

"They hear different round the booking office. Anyhow, I'll have a look at her."

He sat in the stage box throughout the show, and after the last act had made its effort he went back stage and met Pat again.

"What do you think?" Mahoney asked, anxiously.

"Your new act is rotten," said Buscovar. "Your own stuff is all right, but you'll have to get rid of that curly-haired perfume hound of a partner you've got. I bet he mixes a mean soda when he's working at his regular job."

"Oh, never mind about that," Mahoney said, impatiently. "I can easy get a new partner if you don't like this one. But what do you think of Mademoiselle Sylvia? Ain't she great?"

"She's rotten, too," said Buscovar.

"Now, listen, Harry; don't get off this gal too hard till I get a chance to tell you some more about her," Mahoney said, desperately. "If you don't like her stuff, you don't like it, an' that's that. But you ought to book her anyhow."

"Sell me that idea!" said Buscovar, derisively. "Do that first an' if you get away with it I promise to pay you something down for an option on the Brooklyn Bridge."

"There's a story in her that'd make great publicity," said Mahoney.

"Yes?" said Buscovar. "What is it?"

Mademoiselle Sylvia's eyes filled with tears. She covered her face with her hands.

"I don't know," said Mahoney.

"That's a great story," Buscovar said, solemnly. "That ought to dirty up the front page of every paper in New York. I can see it now: 'Stage Mystery. Gauze Fluffer Has Great Story, but No One Knows What It Is. Everybody in Town Stop Work and Guess.' Wonderful, Pat! You ought to quit the stage and turn press agent."

"I mean I know there's a great story in her, but I ain't found out just what it is, yet," Pat explained. "I know in a general way, but I ain't got all the details yet."

"Oh!" said Buscovar. "Details! I knew there was something lacking. Well, what's the story?"

"She comes from swell folks," said Pat, confidentially.

"Yeh?" said Buscovar. "If she didn't do no better at home than she does on the stage, I bet her folks were sure glad when she come from 'em. What is she? An exiled Russian Princess or something like that?"

A startled expression appeared on Pat's face. "Say, you know, I wouldn't put it past her, at that," he exclaimed. "I see in a Sunday paper a while back where this country's gettin' crowded with them Russian royalty people that got chased out by the bolsheviks."

"Haven't you asked her who her folks are?" said Buscovar.

"Sure," said Pat. "But she won't tell."

A gleam of interest appeared in Buscovar's eyes. "Won't tell, heh?" he said. "That sounds like maybe she might be real, at that."

"Sure, she's real," Pat insisted, earnestly. "You'll have to put up an awful spiel to get her to tell you who she really is an' how she come to go on the stage an' all that, but if she'll come through for you, you'll have something."

"She'll have to come through with something good if I book her," said Buscovar. "Well, let's see this gauze fluffer an' have a talk with her."

"She's at the hotel," said Pat, eagerly. "I told her I'd probably bring you there to see her."

"You see, it's like this, miss," said Buscovar, as he sat at the table across from Mademoiselle Sylvia in the hotel dining room. "There's got to be some kind of a big story in you or you're cold, see? There was a time a few years back when anybody that could come out on the stage barefoot, without much clothes on, and move around a little without getting pinched, could have all the time they could play at good money. But them days is gone by, lady, believe me! It used to be that you had to be a classical dancer and do artistic stuff, or else they wouldn't let you wear no clothes, but now anybody can wear no clothes much and get away with it. And, of course, the people would rather see a good, snappy, young chicken step out and strut some jazz stuff without much clothes on her than to look at you do that artistic stuff dressed the same way. Now, as I said, if we're going to put you across, what we got to have is some kind of a sensational story about you to get a lot of publicity."

"I see," said Mademoiselle Sylvia, mechanically.

"Now, Pat Mahoney, here, tells me you've got some such kind of story in your system," Buscovar went on. "If you have, let's hear it and I'll tell you whether it's good enough to give you a chance or not."

Mademoiselle Sylvia wet her lips with the tip of her tongue, nervously, and started to speak twice before the words came. "What—what kind of a story do you want?" she asked.

"What kind of a story have you got?" Buscovar replied. "Mahoney here says that you come from wealthy people. He says that maybe you are related to royalty, or maybe you are a daughter of a millionaire. If that's so, then why are you dancing on the stage? Mahoney says probably you're one of those women who got to have a career and will work whether you need the money or not. That's for you to tell us. And if you come from swell folks, why did you come? And did you have a fight before you did and maybe get disinherited or something like that? Come, come! Tell me about it, so I could know if I should use you."

Mademoiselle looked reproachfully at Mahoney.

"I done what I thought was for your best interests," Pat protested, earnestly, in answer to her look. "I promised I wouldn't tell nobody about who you was or what people you come from or nothing like that, and I didn't. I didn't tell him nothing about it. All I did was tell him to come and ask you would you tell him. Aw, go on, Miss Sylvia! Open up and tell him, won't you? I know you're going to be heartbroken if you don't get by with this stage stuff, and this is the only chance you got to put it over."

"If I tell you, will you get me plenty of engagements on the big time?" she asked.

"Sure!" said Buscovar. "If it's a good story and we can get lots of publicity on it, why not?"

"Will you give me tonight to think it over?" Mademoiselle Sylvia asked.

Buscovar pursed his lips.

"I ought to get back to New York this evening," he said. "Still—well—all right. Then in the morning, miss, you will let me know for sure if you can tell me the story or not, hey?"

"Yes," said Mademoiselle Sylvia. "In the morning."

"It's a good story, isn't it?" said Buscovar. "I would hate to wait here all night and then have you tell me you was just a daughter of some fellow that only had a couple of hundred thousand dollars and didn't amount to nothing. Of course, if your father was maybe a Senator or any kind of a big public man that the people knew about, that would be all right, even if he didn't have so much money."

"I'll let you know about it in the morning," Mademoiselle Sylvia said, faintly.

"Say, what's eatin' you, Harry?" Pat exclaimed, indignantly. "Of course it's a good story, whatever it is! Ain't you got sense? Can't you tell by your own eyes that this lady ain't a fake or a fraud of any kind? Don't you know real people when you see 'em?"

Buscovar pursed up his lips and looked at his watch. "All right," he said, after a little. "Maybe you know something you haven't told me. Pat, you maybe you have just got a good hunch. Anyhow you're so sure that it will be worth my while I'll wait over. You know I'm a busy man and I should be back in town, but you never double-crossed me yet, Pat, and so I'll take your tip and stay."

"Atta boy, Harry!" said Pat, beaming.

"In the morning, then, miss?" said Buscovar, rising.

"Oh, wait!" said Mademoiselle Sylvia, laying a detaining hand on Buscovar's arm and staring distractedly at Pat. "Wait!"

"Yes?" said Buscovar.

Mademoiselle Sylvia's eyes filled with tears. She covered her face with her hands. "Oh, I can't!" she sobbed. "I can't do it!"

A characteristically skeptical grin appeared on Buscovar's fat face. Pat expressed only genuine alarm.

"Why, what's the matter?" he exclaimed.

"I thought maybe I could think up some kind of a good lie to tell Mr. Buscovar and make him believe it and get some booking on the big time," she said, brokenly. "But I can't do it when you believe in me so! I'm just nobody, Pat. Just nobody at all. When I was 9 years old a farmer in New Hampshire took me out of an orphan asylum and adopted me and then"——

"Orphan asylum!" exclaimed Pat.

"Yes," said Mademoiselle Sylvia dejectedly. "I told you I was nobody. That's true. I'm just nobody! I worked on the farm until I was 16, without even the hope of ever doing anything else, and then Priscilla Parsons came to stay with us."

"Priscilla Parsons!" said Buscovar. "The old classic dancer?"

Mademoiselle Sylvia nodded. "She'd had a nervous breakdown, and she came to our place to rest. She taught me a little about classic dancing and gave me the idea that I might get away from farm drudgery and make a living for myself. After she went away I practiced and practiced and practiced.

"It was harder because everybody laughed at me. My room was too small to work in, so I always had to go out somewhere, and wherever I went somebody would always follow and laugh at me. I got so finally I didn't mind much. I used to practice out in the orchard and just let them laugh all they wanted to."

"Laugh?" said Buscovar, with a gleam of interest in his eyes. "Laugh? People watching you practice laugh while you was practicing this dancing?"

"All the time," said Mademoiselle Sylvia, sadly. "Always. The family, the neighbors, everybody. But I kept at it and finally I got away and got a small engagement and then I"——

"And they would laugh, hey?" said Buscovar. "They would sit and laugh at you?"

"Yes," said Mademoiselle Sylvia, beginning to sob again. "Oh, I'm through! I'm a failure! People have always laughed at me, and they still do. I can hear them out in the audience snickering. I can see you're laughing at me, too, now. Oh, I don't care. I'm through!"

She rushed from the dining room, weeping hysterically, and hurried upstairs to her room.

Pat rose from his chair as though to follow. "Why, the poor kid!" he said, huskily. "The poor kid!"

Buscovar caught him by the arm. "Did you hear what she said, Pat?" he asked, eagerly. Then he laughed at her."

"Sure," said Pat, grimly. "I heard. I wish I had 'em all here, those boobs that laughed at her. I'd like to take 'em on one by one, dare 'em to make 'em laugh! The poor kid!"

"Don't be a sap," said Buscovar. "You should not want to smash the people that laughed at her. You should want to make them pay money to laugh at her again. Now, listen—I got a hunch! That new partner of yours is a bum. He won't do. She need somebody! Now, listen! A satire on the two-legged male gazelles that pull all this classic bunk. Get her to do her stuff just a little worse than it is now, to help out, and it will be immense."

"The poor kid," said Mahoney, starting for the door. "I get you, Harry," he called back over his shoulder. "Great idea. Be a knockout. Wait for me here."

Three weeks later in another theater Harry Buscovar again sat in a stage box watching Mademoiselle Sylvia doing her stuff. Tears of mirth were streaming down his cheeks, and his fat sides ached from the effort of convulsive laughter. Looking weakly at the audience through his befogged eyes he saw only people in varying stages of hysteria. On the stage Mademoiselle Sylvia was solemnly going through almost the same motions that had brought her nothing but failure and derision. They were almost the same motions, but not quite. Each step and gesture was just a wee bit exaggerated, and the result was pure burlesque so consummately comic that those who watched were stricken helpless with mirth. Opposite Mademoiselle Sylvia capered Pat Mahoney, barelegged, but with huge Charlie Chaplin shoes on his feet, a leopard skin around him, a wreath of flowers about his neck and a battered old stovepipe hat upon his head. A sort of placard on the stage bore a placard informing the audience that the dance the two were doing represented "The Bridal Day of a Bologna." The two dancers finished and left the stage, to return and bow and bow and come back and bow and bow again and again and yet again.

And while they bowed hand in hand before

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

FROM reading almost any fictional work dealing with Monte Carlo, one gets the idea that hardly a day passes without the suicide of an unlucky gambler. And one is further impressed with the marvelous arrangements at the Casino for removing the bodies and covering up all traces of these numerous tragedies.

To get the real facts about these dramatic happenings I visited the cemetery in Monte Carlo to obtain at first hand, so to speak, an authentic record of these luckless victims of the gilded vice of the temple of chance. I felt sure there would be a talkative grave digger who would dish the dirt.

As it happened, the very moment I arrived at the little cemetery, high up on the mountainside above the capital, I encountered a solitary hearse. Ah, I thought with ghoulish glee, here is what I am looking for—real local color. In that hearse, without a mourner, is all that is mortal of a poor unfortunate undone by the Goddess Fortuna.

So I followed the attendants when they lifted the casket from the hearse and carried it to a newly opened grave. And with uncovered head I watched it as it was lowered into the cold ground.

"Another victim of the Goddess Fortuna, I suppose," I said to the foreman of the burial unit, when the sad details were completed.

"You didn't know him?" he asked, with an air of puzzled surprise.

"No, I just happened by," I explained, adding that I supposed there were many funerals of suicides and that I was interested in attending one.

"Ho, ho, ho!" laughed my new acquaintance. "That was Gustav Julian—the old waiter at the Cafe Trianon. Poor old Gustav—he died three days ago of dropsy. I thought you might have known him at the cafe."

"This is the first grave we have dug this month," said the leader of the group. "Why, we don't have three burials a month, do we, Jean?" he added, turning to the stocky grave digger, who was leaning on his shovel.

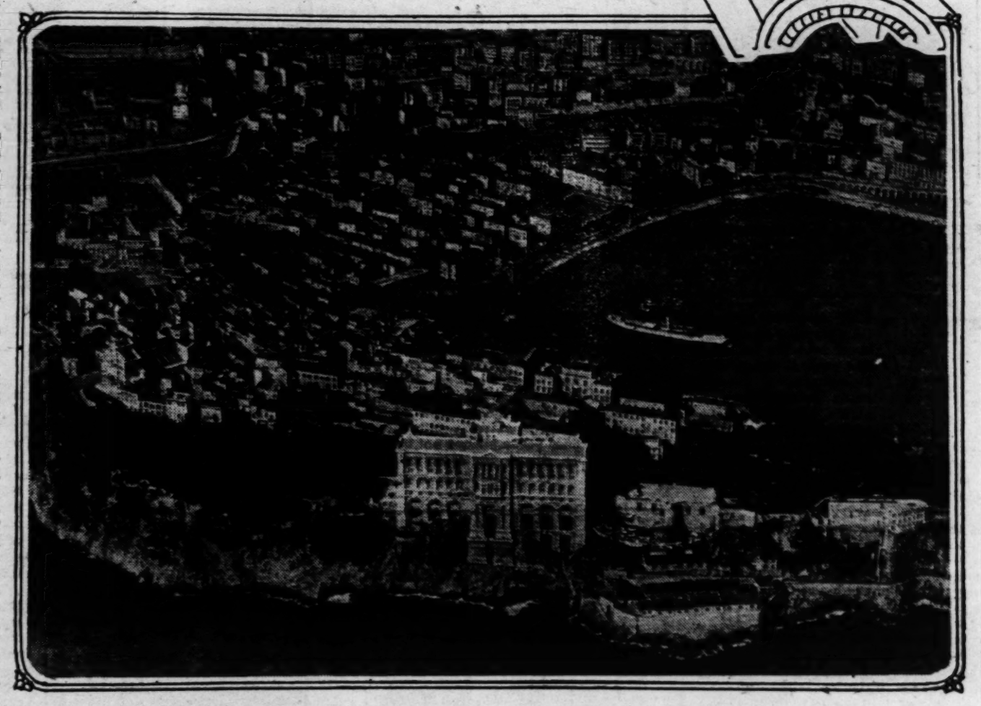
And I was so obviously out of the picture that there was nothing for me to do but give the foreman 5 francs and take my departure.

That evening I went to the Casino, where I soon found myself at one of the many roulette tables playing with 5-franc bone disks—risking less than 25 francs on each spin of the ball.

I was amazed to find the majority of the players in ordinary street clothes. In fact, the man or woman in evening dress was rarely to be encountered. Most of the players were American or British tourists and the comparatively few women who were hazarding their 25-cent chips looked more like concierges than Duchesses. It was the jakiest gathering of would-be high rollers I had ever encountered.

I entered the "salle privee"—to which a card costs nearly $5—where I felt sure I'd see some high play. But the crowds around the tables were not much sportier than in the less expensive rooms. The majority of the gamblers were risking 10-franc discs—the minimum stake. And when it is remembered that 10 francs don't make a half-dollar, even a stack of them don't mean anything.

In vain I looked around for players risking big sums. In vain I looked for beautiful adventuresses, for distinguished-looking noblemen, for American captains of industry. I hung around the "salle privee" for two hours hoping that someone would blow his brains out so I could see the attendants earn their money. But there wasn't a single attempt at self-destruction on the part of anyone. In fact, I didn't even detect a suicidal glint in the eyes of anyone I encountered during my entire stay in Monte Carlo.



Airplane view of Monaco, capital of the principality of that name, which contains only eight square miles. In Monte Carlo, a suburb, is located the Casino, world's most famous gambling resort.

The next day I went to the Sporting Club—the gambling rooms adjoining the Hotel de Paris—and the smartest rendezvous on the Riviera. And there I did see a group of well-dressed men and women—mostly British—playing baccarat with 1000-franc notes—about the equivalent of $50 bills.

But compared with the big play at Deauville or what I have often seen at Bradley's at Palm Beach, it was a piking spectacle. At Bradley's, for instance, as much as $600,000 has changed hands at one table in a single night. At Monte Carlo if one risked 10,000 francs at a time—$500—one would become a celebrity.

Mind you, I don't assert that there is never a suicide at Monte Carlo, or that no one ever goes broke there. What I do assert is that the Monte Carlo of 1924 is not the Monte Carlo of before the war.

In the first place, a different class of people are patronizing it. Because of the low rate of exchange it is overrun with Britishers who are looking for a cheap holiday. There are practically no Russians with any real money to spend, and—naturally—very few Germans. The heavy-bank-rolled Americans spend their winters in Palm Beach—the majority of spenders on the Riviera being of the tourist variety. They fill the hotels, buy a lot in the shops, but they do not play with 1000-franc notes. They crowd around the tables at the Casino where the minimum hazards are 5 and 10 francs, but at the Sporting Club they are usually satisfied to look on.

As for the French—they are too smart to spend the winter in Monte Carlo, where the warm weather is as much a myth as its trail of suicides and ruined fortunes.

Because it functions the year round, instead of less than three months, as do Palm Beach and Deauville (the real season at Deauville is less than 30 days), the Casino at Monte Carlo is a highly prosperous institution. Its shares are quoted on the Paris Bourse and its annual turnover—in francs—is quite impressive.

But despite its numerous attractions and its marvelous beauty it is not the pre-eminent resort of wealth and fashion it used to be. A new money class is abroad in Europe today—a class of people more intent upon making money than spending it. The great spenders who used to haunt Monte Carlo think twice before they toss 1000-franc notes on the green-covered tables, because they no longer know where their next mille note is coming from. Kings in exile, emigres and their ilk are not prodigal spenders.

Whether Monte Carlo will ever live up to its fictional reputation is something no one can predict with any certainty. But even though holiday trippers from London should be replaced by heavier-bank-rolled visitors, I don't see much hope.

You can figure it out yourself. The receipts at the Casino last year were in the neighborhood of $12,000,000. This means that the 500,000 people who visited Monte Carlo in the same period contributed less than $25 apiece to it.

However, it is not because of its piking play or the holiday trippers—or even because the Prefect of Police informed me that its trail of suicides was the bunk—that I find Monte Carlo a disappointment.

It has become respectable.

Making Old Plants Young Again—With Light

Goldenrod, and what different amounts of illumination did to it. The little plant at right had only short days, while the tall, flowering specimen at left had long periods of artificial daylight.

The rejuvenation which is being attempted for men and women actually has been accomplished for various members of the vegetable world—Government scientists use special cabinet, equipped with high-power electric lamps—Flowers are made to bloom out of season, or kept from blooming at all, by changing the length of their "days" — Prolongation of the potato's "day" from sunset to midnight prevented the formation of tubers—Light is proven to be the chief factor in determining the character of plant growth :: :: ::

WHAT surgeons have tried to do by transplanting glands from young animals into the bodies of aging men and women, physiologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture have already successfully accomplished in plants. Ponce de Leons of the vegetable world have been given back their youth. On the threshold of old age, with their early death imminent, they have been made to send out fresh, vigorous branches, to flower and to fruit again and again.

But this marvelous rejuvenescence is but one of the wonders wrought. Trees have been caused to keep their leaves beyond the natural period. Flowers which ordinarily bloom in the spring and the fall have been made to blossom in midwinter. Grains which ordinarily yield one crop a year have been made to produce several. Vegetables which have hitherto failed to fruit in our latitude have been made to yield abundantly.

Life histories have been changed root, stock and branch. Dwarfs have been converted into giants. Giants have been changed into dwarfs. The same individual has even been caused to show different stages and forms of growth on its different branches at the same time.

These startling upsets of nature's normal schedule suggest a wizardry which challenges belief. Yet there is no hokus-pokus about it. Drs. W. W. Garner, H. A. Allard and R. A. Steinberg, who have actually performed these seeming miracles, make no secret of their method. They merely control by the use of artificial light the length of the days in which the plants grow.

At the new building of the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council in Washington, the Department of Agriculture has installed an exhibit where the public can see the experiments in progress. Behind glass windows, in a large metal cabinet flooded with light from high-power electric lamps, the response of various plants to different periods of illumination are demonstrated by the growing plants themselves. A layer of water, between the electric lamp above and the plant growing beneath, filters out most of the heat from the light rays so that the true effect of the light itself is obtained.

Golden glow and late cosmos plants of the same age grow in each of two compartments of the cabinet. Those in the first get a short made-to-order day of 10 hours. Those in the second compartment are given a long day of 16 hours before the light is switched off.

Now, every housewife who has raised late cosmos and golden glow outdoors in her garden under natural daylight knows that late cosmos blooms in the fall and that the golden glow blossoms in summer when the days are long.

A similar thing happens in the cabinet. Although the temperature, moisture and plant food are the same in the two compartments, and the only difference is in the period of light to which they are subjected, both plants show the seasonal differences characteristic of their kind in nature. The cosmos blossoms only in the short-day compartment while the golden glow blooms only in the long-day compartment.

This clearly demonstrates not only that the length of the light period is the chief factor in determining the character of plant growth, but that artificial light can be successfully substituted for natural daylight. It is the key to all the wonders which Dr. Garner and his co-workers have performed in radically changing the lives of many fruits, flowers and vegetables. Restoration of youth to old plants and other apparently miraculous transformations have been accomplished not by violating nature's laws, but by closely imitating nature's own methods.

For thousands of years men have known that the duration of daylight varies with the seasons and with changes in latitude. They have also been acquainted with the fact that plant behavior varies with the seasons and with changes in latitude. But the bridge between these two facts was not built. Temperature and other environmental factors were thought to explain the periodicity of vegetable budding, blooming and fruiting.

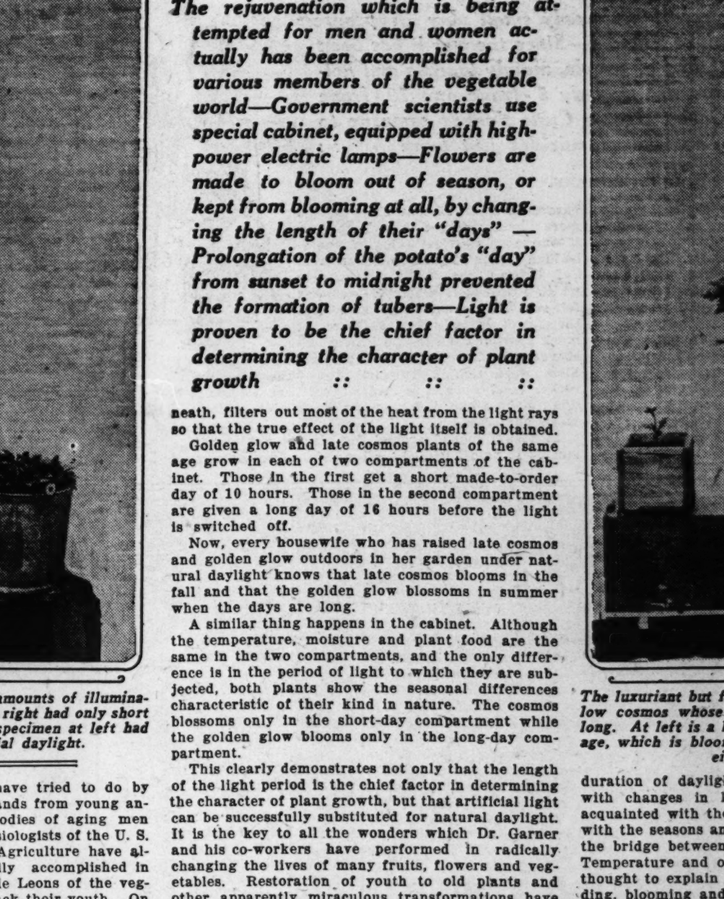
Now, however, the discovery that nature's most important way of regulating plant growth is by changing the length of days is like the famous egg trick of Columbus, simple and obvious once it has been demonstrated. For the annual cycle of length of day is the only consistently rhythmic feature in the plant's environment.

The reason this "why-didn't-I-think-of-that" discovery was not made much sooner is probably due to the fact that many different plants using many different day lengths are found in the same latitudes. There is a large group which blossoms only during short days and another large group which flowers under long-day conditions.

The violet, for example, is a well-known member of the short-day group. It flowers profusely when given 10 hours of illumination. When its day is extended to 16 hours, however, there is nothing produced for a bouquet except a luxurious growth of leaves and long stems. Late goldenrod is another short-day plant. When given a long day it can even be made to become taller and taller until it reaches gigantic proportions, but the characteristic yellow flower does not appear.

By proper manipulation of the lights for plants raised under the electric lamp or by merely cutting the natural daylight period by taking the plants into dark chambers at the proper time, these short-day plants can be made to flower out of season during nature's long days. Or by giving them continuous long days with more light they can be transformed into vegetable giants.

Or, take the coreopsis, for example. It is a long-day plant. When exposed to a long day of 16 hours it quickly develops long flowering stems and flowers. But when given the short day of 10 hours



Electrically-lighted cabinet in the new building of the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council, Washington, D. C. The illumination passes through a layer of water, which filters out most of the heat but permits the light to reach plants below. Here the influence of artificial illumination upon the growth of flowers and vegetables is being demonstrated.

der which violets bloom, it merely forms a rosette of leaves close to the ground, and does not blossom. With artificial light, however, nature's short days may be supplemented and these unfruitful dwarfs can be made to blossom at a time of year when they would not ordinarily flower. Long-day summer flowers can in this way be made to furnish decorations for Christmas and for Easter.

That many plants can in this way be made to flourish and fruit out of season and that giants can be reared is perhaps obvious. But in some cases, root growth underground has also been controlled by the light which the aerial part of the plant receives. Day lengths unfavorable to development of leaves and vines have caused extensive growth in the subterranean sections of plants. On the other hand, by extending the normal day of potatoes from sunset to midnight by artificial light, formation of the tubers was prevented.

It hardly seems surprising that one part of a plant should be influenced by what affects another part. When, however, a single plant is seen showing

On the other hand, by extending the normal day of potatoes from sunset to midnight by artificial light, formation of the tubers was prevented.

It hardly seems surprising that one part of a plant should be influenced by what affects another part. When, however, a single plant is seen showing the characteristic growth of two different seasons on its separate branches, the wonder widens.

In these experiments, a partition has been placed between two branches of the same short-day plant. One side of the partition was exposed to a long day and the other side was given a short period of daylight. The branch on the long-day side continued to grow leaves and branches characteristic of the youth of the plant in nature. The branch on the short-day side blossomed and entered upon old age.

Two different types of development were produced at the same time on the same plant. Similar results were also obtained on the same branch in the same plant. By arranging partitions so that the middle part of the branch could be treated to a long day of artificial light and the parts below and above given only a short day, freaky-looking plants with fall blossoms near the bottom, summer vegetation in the middle, and more fall blossoms on top have been produced. The lights in these cases seem to affect only the parts of the plant on which they fall.

In this strange cosmos, however, it will be noted that one part was old and the other part young at the same time. The blossoms and flowers are the reproductive organs of mature plants. After flowering and producing seed, annual plants ordinarily enter upon old age and shortly afterward die. But by proper manipulation of the daylight period by artificial means, instead of the old age being the end or instead of the plant being old in one part and young in another, it can be rejuvenated, the old can be made truly young again.

"Turn backward, turn backward, O
Time in thy flight
And make me a child again"——

Would not be a futile plea on the part of a plant with the scientists controlling the light. The Department of Agriculture experts have repeatedly and at will accomplished this apparent miracle of taking plants in the advanced stages of old age, with their normal life work of bearing fruit finished, and making of them young, fresh, vigorous giants.

his head. Then he would say: "Garry, you are now in the air service, aren't you?" and answering because of the slight pinch on the tail, Garry would mew "Yes."

We had Garry two years and a half, until he wandered away from us in Virginia to die. He made the trip from California to Virginia, from Virginia to Missouri, from Missouri back to Virginia in a crate, and he would still be traveling with us if he were living.

Before we left Seattle we bought a little coupe with wire wheels, with the additional charm of a clock, a speedometer and all kinds of trick accessories. In this wire-wheeled car we toured Southern California, where I bought a hundred oranges for a quarter, and where alligator pears graced the family table at any time, where the light over Mount Wilson brought a prayer of thanksgiving for being alive, and where the sight of the Pacific on the road beyond Santa Monica made a happier woman of me. Life has its compensations and I was glad it rained so much and that there was snow on the mountains when it came time to say "Good-by to you." Besides, in those days we were in mourning for the Roma's destruction at Langley Field, Va., which was a personal grief to us.

We were to travel to Virginia from San Francisco through the Panama Canal to New York. But what to do with our little coupe and the first little car recently converted into a racer was a question that now confronted us. Two cars, no matter how small, to be transported across the continent, seemed quite a problem. So we sold them both. And I cried when I remembered all the happy times we had had in both of them. We had to leave Garry in California, too, until we could send for him. We left him at a veterinarian's in Pasadena, where he was surrounded by cats and dogs of high degree. He looked so sad when we left that we felt he understood that we were going far away from him.

For almost a month we led a life of lazy content on an army transport. Panama was of interest mainly because of the wonders accomplished by the American occupation of the canal zone, the Minton china and the fine French perfumes sold in the commissary, and the queer habit the automobiles have of running on the left-hand side of the street instead of on the right. We were all made members of the Century Club while we were there and we received a royal welcome from our friends in the service. One flyer from France Field proved his devotion by coming over to see us in the pilot's boat in the Caribbean. As there was a storm coming to welcome us we thought this a test of true friendship.

For a time after we landed in the States we lived such a gypsy life that with the exception of many trips of historical interest in Virginia our automobile tours were limited. We drove often to Williamsburg, the driver bored but obliging, but the wife, who comes from a long line of Virginians, was thrilled over every old house, every secret staircase, every old doorknocker.

To stand on the erstwhile stoop of the old House of Burgesses and to feel that Fatrick Henry had once stood on that selfsame spot was a thrill, and the old Bruton Parish Church was to me a real delight. In the churchyard I loved the quaint old tombstones—one, in particular, which told of the virtues of a certain Virginia wife, written by her widower, and I had a good laugh when the old colored sexton told me the story that goes with it. The heart-broken widower set out on horseback some 175 years ago to Richmond to have this selfsame tombstone made. On the way up he fell in love with a sprightly damsel. Taking her on the horse behind him, he went on his way, bought the tombstone in Richmond and rode back to Williamsburg with the new wife and the tombstone intact.

On that first trip from the South home to Missouri, we found romance lurking everywhere. It was in the fall of the year and I never remember the country more beautiful. Across the Alleghenies there lay a haze of fall, the trees were beginning to turn, and all along the way through Maryland the farmers were selling ap... on the road. You could buy them at rudely constructed stands even on the mountain tops.

In Fredericksburg, Va., we strolled through streets that spelled Romance in every house. We peeked surreptitiously in at the windows, saw walls lined with wonderful old portraits, spinets in dim corners, parlors filled with Hepplewhites and Sheratons. I will never forget looking out in the moonlight from my window in the hotel, across the dim street where in the top of the old church a light clock shone down, making a path of mellow light on the street below. I fully expected to see George Washington come from one of the old gardens and go to his Masonic meeting in the hall where he often went.

Virginia of the dear, dead past, if your automobile roads only equalled your history, how wonderful it would be for those who love you! For I, like thousands of other Missourians, am one of your grandchildren. However, I must forgive you, for in a year I noticed a great change. After a year's absence, driving from Fayetteville, N. C., to Missouri, we found the highway at South Hill, Va., to Washington, D. C., in a most excellent condition. This, too, is historic ground. Little markers along the road told us the position of Gen. Lee's army, and the peaceful country from Petersburg north made one question the possibility of great battles in the present fields of plenty and peanuts.

In our old station on the Peninsula of Virginia the country seems never to have recovered its former prosperity, and even today it shows the desolation of war. Not so in Central Virginia. In Richmond my partner was more interested in showing me the exact house where he passed his examination for the air service in 1917 than he was in any museum or historic church.

On that journey we passed a queer couple—a blind man led by a little boy. They stood by the side of the road asking for lifts from passing motorists. We saw them first in Maryland, patiently hailing first one car and then another. At Uniontown, Pa., we saw them again and our last glimpse was in Richmond, Ind., where they were waiting on a country road. I wondered if they were taking a transcontinental tour in this way, and, if they were, just how long it would take.

I'll not soon forget the different hotels in which we slept, for every night's lodging was a new experience, from the humble hotel rooms in little towns to the big hotel in Columbus which afforded us a good laugh, tired and dusty as we were. For there we were given a room which had evidently housed five or six politicians at once. The room was tremendous. It had two big double beds, and a day bed or two. I counted the lights as I undressed. There were 13 separate and distinct wall brackets and one huge chandelier in the middle of the room. There were two writing desks, two chiffoniers, two bureaus; in fact, I have never seen so much furniture in any one room anywhere. The bathtub was tremendous, and I wondered as I plunged in what famous men or past Presidents had used that selfsame room; for were we not in Ohio, where Presidents are as plentiful as good roads?

At Dayton we stopped at a hotel which seemed rather deserted. As we ate our dinner we were alone in the dining room and the sight of the uniform evidently interested our waitress, for I heard her exclaim as she went into the kitchen: "Look at that soldier and his wife! She must 'a' caught him durin' the war."

Each time we make the trip home over the National Highway we always spend the night at Washington, Pa. It is in the nature of a pilgrimage for me. For there I went to boarding school in the good old days, and I can feel the years roll back when I stand on the ivy-covered porch of the old seminary once again. I am just 14. Washington, sometimes called "Little Washington," is a lovely little town, and even with its street torn up as it was on our last visit it will always find me faithful to it. We have not yet been lured through Pittsburg and probably never will be.

tourist food for thought. To work underneath the ground all day for one's living seemed terrible to us. "Not for mine," said my flier; "give me the pure air above the earth where I earn my living." These little mining towns in Pennsylvania and West Virginia are exactly like the stage setting of one of Eugene Walter's plays. The little houses fairly hang over the sides of the hills. One wonders why they do not tumble down. You see them even in long stretches of the Alleghenies where there are no towns, built in settlement after settlement.

Then Gettysburg! To every soldier, it matters not whether he marches or whether he flies, there is in that one word Gettysburg all the charm of battle. What mint is to the julep, what the fire call is to the oldest horse at the engine house, so the battlefield of Gettysburg is to an American soldier. But the first time we went through Gettysburg we were on the run. We were behind one whole day in our schedule and my partner must get home to New York City for Sunday. So at the entrance of the battlefield on the highway we decided to close our eyes to all the tempting monuments and go right on. (I might say here after being stationed in Virginia I developed monumentitis, i. e., I can never pass any tombstone or monument without stopping the car to get out to read the inscription.)

Just as we were going at a pretty good clip down the road a figure in tan, with a shining star on his breast, stepped out, and far away as he was we could see him ordering us to stop, in no uncertain terms. My partner said: "Well, I guess the jig is up, and we are arrested. Don't say a word, now. Never argue with a traffic cop. Just think of driving nearly a thousand miles without even a flat tire and then having to be arrested this far East!"

By this time we had come up to the commanding figure, who stood with his arms outstretched, as we thought commanding us to halt; then we heard him say: "Guide to the battlefield, sir; guide to the battlefield! I can take you around on a complete tour, sir, for ——" The head of the house breathed several low, definite expletives in refusal and we drove on. As for me, I trembled all the way to Philadelphia.

To anyone who is tired of the grind of every day, I say get out your car and go touring. In every state of our Union you will find romance, for no place is too small or too insignificant to be of interest or to awake new appreciation of this country. In a little Scotch Presbyterian graveyard in North Carolina the Birdman and I sought the grave of Walter H. Page. It was truly American to find him lying surrounded by his kinsmen under a simple slab which told nothing of his greatness—who has so lately been honored by England in her greatest abbey. Truly an American in his lack of pomp, does he lie in his native North Carolina soil.

For a jaded palate I suggest a trip—just anywhere across our continent, east or west or north or south, direction matters not. I recommend North Carolina as heartily as I do California, or Washington State, or the District, or Virginia. In our little car my partner and I have learned something of good and something that is truly American from each of them. For we both are lovers of the sea and the skyline, the deep woods, the quiet that lies over mountain and valley at twilight. The space and quiet of the heavens suit the flier—and a calm, peaceful America for his wife.

The Crow Indicted as a Criminal

carry off the baby's playthings, mother's sewing and crocheting utensils, grandma's spectacles, and even grandpa's pipe, all without apology, and hide them somewhere out of doors, or in the old barn, where we would sometimes find a pile of his pilfer.

"So, in summing up the evidence, I adjudged the crow to be guilty of violating practically the whole category of the criminal code. He is black; he is a pirate, a robber, a thief, an assassin and a murderer, and if so convicted he deserves the sentence of extermination by capital punishment, which execution should be encouraged by a legislative act, offering a premium for his scalp."

So much for the indictment!

Now let us see what the other side says, the party of the second part, comprising those who defend the crow for one reason or another. First, take a look at the introduction to Farmers' Bulletin No. 1102, prepared by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey and issued in August, 1920:

"The crow is best known by the unfavorable reputation it has acquired in the cornfield. Notorious also are its raids on the poultry yard, its depredations on wild birds and its attacks on crops other than corn.

"Less heralded, however, but no less important to the farmer, is the crow's warfare on insect pests. Insects supply about one-fifth of its food, and those preyed upon include some of the worst pests with which the farmer has to contend—grasshoppers, caterpillars and white grubs and their parents, May beetles.

"From the evidence at hand the crow's merits and shortcomings appear about equally divided. While it would be unwise to give it absolute protection, and thus afford the farmer no recourse when the bird is doing damage, it would be equally unwise to adopt the policy of killing every crow that comes within gunshot.

"Much of the good the crow does can ill be spared, and the damage it inflicts may be materially lessened by proper measures against such birds as prove to be a nuisance."

Fifty-fifty, then, is the finding of the Federal Biological Survey. Which means that wholesale slaughter of crows would upset nature's balance, disturb the smooth course of nonhuman events, and thereby work harm to the human race.

"The highest ornithological authorities," writes Winthrop Packard, for the Audubon Society, "including the experts of the United States Biological Survey, are agreed that the common crow ordinarily does more good than harm and should not be killed except where need of special local protection warrants it, as on game farms and similar specialized areas. The Biological Survey says:

A well-known St. Louis sportsman and naturalist, asked what he thought about the crow, and whether it should be shot at sight, reflected briefly and replied:

"Well, I don't like crows, anyhow, but I'd hate to waste my ammunition on them. As a sportsman, I don't care to kill anything I don't like to eat—and who eats crow anyhow, except some politicians?"

Telling Mile-High Weather for Airmen

information to the trained observers who are following their flights with powerful instruments.

The whole object of the existence of a pilot balloon is to tell how fast the wind is blowing wherever it happens to be. Made of light rubber, inflated to a diameter of two or three feet, it offers no resistance to the wind and travels at practically the same speed. Once turned loose it rises at a rate of from 600 to 800 feet a minute. It is soon out of the sight of the unaided eye, but observers follow the balloon with theodolites for sometimes as far as 40 or 50 miles if the sky be clear.

Such are the methods used by our Weather Bureau for smelling the weather a mile or more above the earth. Just what has been found out by use of them?

The most important, perhaps, is that the atmosphere does not keep on getting colder as far up as it extends. Near earth's surface, under average conditions, the temperature drops a degree Fahrenheit for every 300 feet additional altitude. This drop continues only to a height of from six to eight miles above the surface. At that altitude, where the temperature falls to about 80 below zero Fahrenheit, the lowest temperature level is found.

Farther up, even up to 20 miles, the temperature doesn't go any lower or only to a slight extent, and sometimes it gets warmer as the balloons go higher.

It has been found that the coldest air is above the equator and that in our latitude it is often colder at great heights in summer than in winter. Temperature reversals near the ground have been observed. In winter sometimes it is warmer a few hundred feet up than at the surface. The same is true over the colder parts of the ocean in summer and along the coast when a summer sea breeze is blowing.

Makes Autos Go 40 Miles On a Gallon of Gasoline

The Western Specialty Company, of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, announces the perfection of an amazing device which is enabling car owners all over the country to more than double their mileage from each gallon of gasoline used and at the same time remove every particle of carbon from their motors. When the device is attached, automobiles have made over 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline—increased their power and pep tremendously and eliminated all spark plug difficulties.

This inexpensive little device is entirely automatic and self-regulating and can be easily attached by any one in a few minutes without tapping or drilling.

The management of the company states that in order to introduce this startling new invention, they are willing to send a sample at their own risk to one car owner in each town who can show it to neighbors and handle the big volume of business which will be built up wherever it is shown.

Just send your name and address to the Western Specialty Co., 1616 Laceola Bldg., Sioux Falls, S. Dakota, and get their free sample offer.

The Man Who Refuses to Be a Millionaire

as you now own $300,000, your dividend will make you $600,000 of stock that you will own and control outright. Then if all of you combined, including the salesmen and workers in other shops, bought another $600,000, and I gave you the stock apportioned to me, amounting to $600,000, you would then own $1,800,000 of the stock of the company and I would own only $600,000. In other words, instead of having a controlling interest I would only have about one-fourth of the entire issue of stock.

"It has already happened in our company when we were attacked from the outside that workers have come to me to find out whether I was selling out or not, saying that the report was being circulated that I was cashing in and that if I was they wanted to sell their stock. You can see if I only owned one-fourth of the stock, and some such report as that should be started, how easy it might be for someone on the outside to get control of our company; and it is easily conceivable that there are those in this room who are planning to get married, go into business themselves, or for some other reason not be with this company in the future. If they were allowed to buy two shares of the stock for $300 and were given two more shares for nothing, and could sell it tomorrow for $400, which would only be the par value of the combined stock, there naturally would be much of this stock change hands and get away from both you and me.

"More than that, I am not telling you that which is new to you, nor reflecting upon your intelligence in any way when I tell you frankly what you already know—that there must be much done in the way of education before you are equipped to take over the company and manage it in its entirety, and this educational work will take us another five years. Therefore, the conditions named above will govern the distribution of this stock. This will leave the voting control of the company in my hands for the next five years, the same as it has been during the past five years. Please understand that there are no conditions except on those getting their first four shares of stock, which they really get at half-price.

"I want you all to get one point clear: That is that I am not getting a dollar for any of this stock, so do not let anyone tell you that I am selling out. I still have my original $600,000 and I have the voting power of all of your stock; hence am tremendously more interested in the progress and development of the company that I would be if I owned it all.

"The second great commandment is that we shall love our neighbors as ourselves, and if there are 4000 stockholders in this company, I must be 4000 times as much interested in its success and development as I would be if I owned all of the stock.

"Let no one misconstrue what I am doing by saying that I am giving you this stock. I am giving you nothing. I am only being true to the trust that you have reposed in me, in seeing that you get what rightfully belongs to you."

Mr. Nash mentioned the first "Golden Rule" meeting with his employes—"our first little shop meeting at the beginning of 1619"—when 29 shop workers were present. "My message," he said, "was that we were all brothers and sisters, children of the same great Father, each one having equal rights to justice, fair treatment and privilege. I told you then that as long as we ran that shop the Golden Rule would be the only governing law. I explained what that meant as I understood it then, when I said it meant that I must pay you the same wages that I should want if I were doing the same job and you were paying me.

"An industrial miracle has been wrought since that time. In five years and five months our business has grown from $132,000 per year to $7,000,000 per year. With such development in this growth there has come to me a new revelation of the real meaning of the Golden Rule. As each new ideal came I tried to live it. My heart sings with joy today because I can stand before thousands of my fellow workers and say I have honestly tried to live the golden rule with you and not simply preach it at you; but, thank God, there is something that gives me even more joy, and that is that I can just as honestly say that you—all of you—have tried to live it toward me and toward each other, and together we have tried to live it toward the public."

Less than a year after that first meeting, the force of employes having grown to more than 200, Mr. Nash called another conference and offered a plan involving profit sharing. The employes voted not to take a share of the profits but to leave the fixing of wages in the hands of "Golden Rule" Nash. Early in 1920 there was another meeting, the profits having grown beyond the point where the Nash conscience could stand the strain of adding to his own wealth. The employes voted to accept the proffer of profit sharing until conditions became more normal.

But instead of becoming "normal," conditions continued to be such as to show extraordinary profits. Rapid growth of the business soon made it evident that a larger capitalization was necessary. There was a large treasury surplus with which to declare a stock dividend.

Constant expansion of the business ever since, with increasing profits, now has resulted in Mr. Nash's determination to turn over the chief ownership and the general management of the business, after five years, as outlined, to the employes.

The Gauze Fluffer

footlights, Harry Buscovar sat in the box with his eyes closed, ecstatically planning their professional future. He knew a winner when he saw one.

A few days later Mademoiselle Sylvia and Pat Mahoney stood in Buscovar's office in New York while the great agent outlined the good things that were in store for them.

"Now, about the billing," he said, at last. "How's it to go, Pat? Pat Mahoney, supported by Mademoiselle Sylvia? How's that?"

"Not so good," said Pat. "Let the billing read the same as always, only cut the brother stuff. Just call us 'The Mahoneys.'"

"Yes?" said Buscovar, with an interrogative inflection.

"Mademoiselle Sylvia blushed rosy red and hid her face on Pat's shoulder.

"Um-h'm," said Pat, grinning over her shoulder. "Um-h'm—The Mahoneys.' That's all."

A cunning dress for the little girl is this knitted model in blue, with yellow bordering. Besides being pretty, it is wrinkleproof. The dress was shown at a recent exposition of outdoor and sports costumes.

This is a reproduction of the drawing by Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects, of the $8,000,000 building planned by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., to occupy the entire block between Tenth and Eleventh streets and Pine and Chestnut streets, in St. Louis. The "terraced" pattern is similiar to that required by the new zoning law in New York City. This structure will tower 56 feet above the Railway Exchange Building.

First prize at the annual "stunt" show of students at the Illinois State Normal School was awarded to a group of dancing girls, for their living statuary. In the number depicted here, the dancers were apparently decorative figures painted on a vase. They came to life, danced and then returned to the still pose again.

—"at last he had created the perfume that would carry out his fiendish revenge."

A fragrance no man could resist

IT was a strange revenge this great perfumer chose. Another man won the girl he loved. So he made, just for her, a perfume so bewitching that no man could resist the woman who wore it.

And, curiously, this subtle fragrance did as its jealous creator had planned. Immediately men began showering her with attentions.

Her husband, it happened, was a jealous man—a hot-blooded Spanish aristocrat.

And the French Perfumer's fiendish scheme went farther than even he had anticipated. It led to a three-sided tragedy.

The complete story of this tragic romance is told in a charmingly prepared booklet which is yours for the asking; either by mail or by requesting "that Mi Nena booklet" at your favorite perfumer's, who now carries this wonderful new odeur.

It tells of how the formula of this irresistible perfume called Mi Nena (Spanish for "My Darling") was found in the vault of the French perfumer after his death; how it was secured and perfected by Parfumerie Rigaud and how it has now been made available for the women of today.

Generous trial vial for you

A generous flacon of Rigaud's Mi Nena, Petite size, most artistic in design and suited for your purse or hand-bag, will be mailed you with the complete booklet story of the origin of this wonderful romance-odeur if you will pin a one dollar bill to this advertisement and send us your name and address plainly written. Address Petite Dept. 10-R, Geo. Borgfeldt & Co., 111 E. 16th St., New York.

Your perfumer carries the following complete line of toilet accessories, all fragrant with Parfum Mi Nena: Extract, Toilet Water, Talcum Powder, Face Powder, Sachet Powder, Lip Stick, Cold Cream, Vanishing Cream, Face Powder Compact, Rouge Compact, Bath Salts, Body Powder.

As a woman I help other women

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Graduate Nurse

Bringing charm, immaculacy, and peace of mind in solving woman's oldest hygienic problem—the NEW, scientific way

This is to offer you a book telling of a new way in personal hygiene. A book that thousands of women have read, and found peace of mind, exquisiteness and better health as a result. Simply write for it.

Modern science has found a better way—safer, less embarrassing, more hygienic—than the old-time "sanitary pad."

It is called KOTEX. Nurses in war time France first discovered it. Now 8 in 10 women in the better walks of life use it. The bad habit of makeshift methods is rapidly being ended.

60% of many ills common to women, according to numerous authorities, are due to improper, old methods. That's why doctors so strongly urge KOTEX.

What it does

KOTEX is a newly discovered material. Made of Cellucotton, it is far more absorbent than ordinary cotton. It absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture.

It is hygienically treated. Hence does not invite dangerous germ life to increase and multiply — the cause of many ailments.

No trouble disposing of

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—simply discard it. No embarrassment, no difficulty.

Women who seek daintiness, peace of mind, exquisiteness and safety under all circumstances, use it. Once you do, no other method will ever satisfy. And millions will tell you this.

Easy to get it

All drug and department stores have KOTEX in plain packages. Get it without embarrassment simply by saying "Kotex." 12 snowy white, immaculate folds in the medium package.

I would like to send you a new book for women on this subject, written by a doctor. Just write for it. And if you have never tried KOTEX, I will be glad to send you a sample, free.

Fashionable women are always slender

Can you wear the modish clothes which you see in the shops? Or must you deny yourself pretty things because you know they will not fit—because your figure is no longer slender?

The smartest costumes all require a slender figure—a smooth unbroken silhouette.

Yet many fashionable women who now wear original models, once suffered from overweight. They found the pleasant way to reduce—Marmola Tablets (thousands of men and women each year regain healthy, slender figures this way). With these tablets you, too, can have a slender figure—no exercises or diets.

All drug stores have Marmola Tablets—one dollar a box, or they will be sent in plain wrapper, postpaid, by the Marmola Co., 1700 General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Summer Fun Like This in SEATTLE and the "Charmed Land"

A VACATION filled with delightful new experiences awaits you in the "Charmed Land." The attractions range from snow sports on high mountains to bathing in the Pacific.

Snow-capped Mount Rainier, easy to access, and with every facility for outdoor fun on its mountain flower-decked meadows and mighty glaciers. Steamer rides on picturesque Puget Sound, including the San Juan Islands, set in a sapphire inland sea, and the glorious fjords of Hood's Canal. Enjoy the Cascade and Olympic mountains, Mount Baker National Forest. Take the circle tour around the Olympic Peninsula and into British Columbia. Fish in lake, stream or the sea; bathe in lake or ocean surf; play golf in comfort on cool evergreen courses.

This is the cool summer playground where the average daily summer temperature is 62 degrees. Sleep under blankets every night.

Visit the great sawmills of the Pacific Northwest, salmon canneries, the berry fields and the apple orchards. It is a tremendously rich and interesting empire.

Make your headquarters in Seattle, gateway to Alaska and the Orient, which affords every metropolitan attraction found in a great world city. Seattle, overlooking snow-capped mountains, evergreen forests and inland seas, will fascinate you. The boundless energy of this progressive 'out west' city will hold your interest.

Low round-trip summer excursion fares are only a little more than the one-way fares, with choice of routes returning. Ask your ticket agent.

Sunbeam
THE IRON OF IRONS

A Simple thing~ but Oh My! What a Difference it makes!

THINK of it! The very finest iron made—the Sunbeam—and a permanent place to keep it. Your iron always new and bright and clean! Your whole ironing outfit—iron, cord and stand—all in one moisture-proof, fire-proof, tarnish-proof, compact case!

A simple steel container. But what a convenience it is. And what a protection. A time-saver, too—everything always together. Note how handily it works. The lid falls back. The front drops down. Then, ironing done, you replace the iron immediately, without waiting for it to cool.

See this new Sunbeam Set and you'll see the biggest improvement in electric irons in the last ten years.

A handsome case, too. Finished in Delft Blue enamel, trimmed with gleaming bands of nickel-plated steel—you'll be as proud of your Sunbeam case as you are of your beautiful Sunbeam!

Have your dealer show you this new idea in electric irons—the Sunbeam Set—a lifetime ironing equipment for $8.50 complete.

ERRIOT FOR ISARMAMENT AWES PLAN, ND SECURITY

French Premier Submits Declaration to Cabinet, and Is Ready to Face Parliament.

ENERAL NOLLET'S PLACE SIGNIFICANT

War Minister Has Been Head of Commission Which Put Into Effect Rulings Against Germany

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 16.—The ministerial declaration of the new Government to be read in the Senate and chamber at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon will be "fairly long, but at least precise," Premier Herriot told the newspaper men at the end of his first Cabinet council at noon today.

"We wish the Parliament to find if it can accord us its confidence, and we desire to tell it everything about our projects," the Premier added.

There had been no difficulty in reaching an agreement of the terms of the declaration, he said. The document was to be read to President Doumergue at the ministerial council in the Palace of the Elysee this afternoon.

A semi-official resume of the contents of the Herriot ministry's declaration, given out by the Havas Agency, says the principal points will be:

Foreign policy: Consolidation of the peace by agreement among the peoples and by extension of the roles of the League of Nations, the International Labor Bureau and The Hague Tribunal.

The re-establishment of normal relations with Russia.

Acceptance without reservations of the experts' report, with maintenance of the occupation of the Ruhr until the guarantees provided for in the Dawes report are constituted and handed over to international organizations qualified to administer them.

Resumption of the control of Germany's disarmament and solution of the problem of security by the realization of guarantee pacts under League of Nations authority.

Internal policy: General amnesty except for rebels and traitors.

Re-employment of discharged railway men.

Suppression of the French embassy at the Vatican and strict application of the law as to religious congregations.

Reduction in military expenditure in a measure compatible with the country's security."

The fiscal program includes the abolition of the laws established by decree during the latter part of the Poincare regime; establishment of the Government monopoly in matches; establishment of a rigorous inventory of the situation with a view to entering a balanced budget; the prosecution of fiscal frauds; strict application of the income tax laws and a new arrangement of direct taxes, easing the charges created by the taxes on consumption and particularly by the present tax on business turnovers.

The educational reform program includes the abrogation of former Minister Berard's decree for the compulsory study of Latin in the high schools.

The industrial and social programs demand respect for the eight-hour day and the right of the syndicalists; recognition of the right of Government employes to organize and administrative reforms.

The final draft of the Government's first statement to Parliament will be gone over tomorrow morning by the Cabinet.

An active session of the Deputies following the reading of the document is indicated. Already numerous speakers have been listed for debate, notably Louis Rollin for the bloc national, Leon Blum for the Socialists and Marcel Cachin for the communists.

Nollet's Appointment Important.

The Premier, replying to a Matin reporter relative to the selection of his Cabinet, lays stress on the choice of the Minister of War.

"The competency of Gen. Nollet is unquestionable," he said. "He knows better than anyone the
